Doyle Connor, Florida Commissioner of Agriculture, was voted an honorary member of the Young Democrats Wednesday night.

The student organization also passed a resolution commensuring backing and booing at the FSU reception for Mrs. Lyndon Johnson last week.

Connor is actively supporting the Johnson-Humphrey ticket and has appeared at several campus rallies sponsored by the Young Democrats. He is the first honorary member ever tapped by the FSU club.

"Connor has willingly given of his time to help our club," said Erickson, YD president, said. "His endorsement is an outstanding compliment to an outstanding young Democrat in state government." The Young Democrats expressed concern over what they termed harassment of the First Lady and other dignitary who were guests of the University last Thursday.

will work in the new Psychology Bldg. Present plans do not include a rat activity wheel, according to building authorities.

Building Not For Rats Alone

by TONI BOSWELL

"A building without windows?" There's nothing but white rats over here!"

No matter how it might be analyzed, the new psychology building has brought similar remarks and inquiries from the students of FSU. The building, originally slated for completion by the end of November, now is expected to be ready for use by the first of March. Cost of construction has been set at 1.2 million dollars.

This new Psychology Annex will house departmental research projects which are said to be increasing by a factor of five. Research projects involving animal studies and learning, effects of radiation on behavior, and the visual processes will be some of the studies carried on in the new wing.

Students also will delve into such problems as skin sensitivity, the regulatory mechanism of hunger and thirst.

StudentWants Books

The FSU Administration today received a plea from Jerry Gogol, in Bogota, Colombia, in a letter requesting that FSU students aid in acquiring books for Colombian students.

"I am writing this letter to you as a teacher and an ex-Peace Corps volunteer now working with the United States Information Service in Bogota, Colombia.

"Not long ago, Gustavo Jaramillo, a student of mine, asked me if I had any books on physics I could loan him. When I asked him why he didn't visit the bookstore and buy one, he told me the price was beyond his means.

"That day I went to one of Bogota's bookstores and asked for their price list for books on academic subjects.

"For a book on physics, the list quoted a price of $165.00 Colombian pesos or $16.50 American dollars. I was both surprised and shocked at this figure. Why did a book which sold for $5.00 in the United States sell for over three times that amount in Colombia?

"Their explanation was both weak and false: The Colombian government places stiff tariffs on all books entering the country; therefore, the price is increased to insure a profit after taxes. The truth is that the government does not tax incoming educational material.

"Using practices which have long been abandoned in the United States, the Colombian bookstores in co-operation have elevated prices on a cornered market, since this country does not print its own educational material.

"The next day I asked Gustavo about the book situation in the universities of Bogota. The situation was equally shocking: few copies of the books which supplement the courses are maintained, and these are gone long before the demand is filled.

"Students are forced to study in groups, to get the necessary information they need to pass their courses. But Gustavo had a suggestion: did I know of anyone in the United States who might send books to help the students?

"You and I know how the average book drive ends up. The actual demand is overrated when put on paper, and the organization which gets the letter feels irritated when faced with the quantity.

"I fully realize your obligations to the students on your campus. This is why I am asking you for only five new books in any of the scientific or technical fields.

"A major oil company here in Colombia has promised to establish a library on the campus of the national university, to house these books; so please help; send them to Milton Leavitt, Director of the National Center, United States Embassy, Bogota, Colombia.

"Believe me when I say there are thousands of Colombian students who are being cheated out of their greatest desire and need because they have no source materials at their disposal.

"If men like Gustavo Jaramillo are to take their place in a modern, enlightened world, they must have books to do so. You can help him and many others like him by making this project a success. Thank you so much."

Students are requested to bring any books to 302 Westcott. The University will handle shipping.

Kentuckians Down; Bulldogs Are Next

by BOB CORNETT

What a difference a week makes. Last week at this time the Seminole's looked due for another bleak Homecoming, the end of a 3-0 record and a general massacre of the overmatched Tribe.

The massacre occurred as planned, except for one slight change. The Indians won. Not since the days of Dan'l Boone have so many Kentuckians been scalped at once.

With scalps and coonskin caps hanging from their belts, and number ten added to their name the Tribe will send a war party to Georgia this weekend to slit the throats and hopes of the Bulldogs.

Georgia would like to play the part of the rescuing cavalry, and upset the Seminoles. This would give them much needed recognition, and put a little life in a so-so season.

A preliminary scouting report (you probably saw the smoke signals over the pines) reveals that the Bulldogs will fare little better than General Custer.

The Georgian's have an offense keyed to two running backs, Bob Taylor and Don Porterfield, who will have trouble dodging the tomahawks of the "Magnificent Seven." The backs can expect little help from the air force as the Bulldogs have a measly 32% passing average.

The Bulldogs can hope for little help from their defense which will have to contend with Back of the Week Steve Tensi and pass catching genius Fred Biletnikoff.

About the only prayer Georgia has is that the Tribe will just take their scalps.

FSU Puts Rating Up To Test Sat.

FSU will lay its national ratings on the line Saturday as the Seminoles march into Georgia to meet the University of Georgia Bulldogs. The Seminoles and Bulldogs have had seven previous meetings, with the Georgians having an edge on the series, 5-2. However, their victories came when FSU was a relatively small foot-ball power. The Tribe defeated the Bulldogs the last two times they met and are ten point favorites Saturday.

The Tribe attained national recognition after humiliating Kentucky 48-6 before a record crowd in Campbell Stadium last Saturday. FSU was ranked tenth by the Associated Press and twelfth by the United Press International and first by the Dunkel index.

The Seminoles also ran off with individual honors last week as Steve Tensi was named AP Back of the Week and Coach Bill Peterson was UPI Coach of the Week.

The most encouraging development in Georgia's football season had been the very obvious improvement of the FSU game by game, Georgia Head Coach Vince Dooley called the Clemson game the team's best all-round performance so far. The Bulldogs are 2-1-1 for the season. After being beaten by Alabama 31-3 in their opener, they rebounded to trim Vanderbilt 7-0, tie South Carolina 7-7 and subdue Clemson 19-7 in their most impressive victory.

Gymkana Begins Wednesday

Gymkana presents its fall spectacular "Safari," in Tully Gym Wednesday through Saturday nights at 8 p.m.

Tickets are $1.25 for the public and 50 cents for students with I.D. cards. Children under 12 will be admitted lightly for 50 cents.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights high school students will also be admitted lightly for 50 cents.

Tickets will be on sale at the University Union. To be sure and see a great spectacle should go Wednesday or Thursday.

The student troupe of 100, directed by Mr. Hartley Price, has built 20 acts into a fast moving show performed in a tropical jungle setting to music filled with African rhythms.

The Gymkana Show is divided into three main parts -- the internationally known gymnasts, co-eds, and the nationally famous Tallahassee Tumbling Tots.

The FSU gymnastic team has established one of the outstanding competitive records of any athletic team in the United States. It has been held in high national and international esteem and has placed men on the Cuban, Swedish, and United States Olympic teams.

The team established a phenomenal record of 55 team championships. It has won two National Collegiate championships, and three National AAU champions.

In addition, team members have won over 300 individual championships. This year Jon Culbertson, Rick Miller, Bill Beavers, and Joe Taylor will perform.

Consuming will richly carry out the "Safari" theme. One of the first groups to take the floor will be 13 coeds who will do a dance called "Panther Pursuit." Eleven are white-helmeted hunters and two are the hunted.

Twenty Miss Gymkana contestants including the reigning Miss Gymkana, Dolores Lord, will pass in review, each costumed as a cobra, leopard, gazelle, flamingo, lion, or other animal of the jungle.

Among the acts of the show will be a table and chairs act, acts on the high bar, flying rings, side-horses, trampoline, tumbling mat, parallel bars, and vaulting table.

Ten women gymnasts will do a drill team act dressed in black leotards with white sequins to make them look like zebras.

Tallahassee's Tumbling Tots, who have appeared on several nationally televised shows this year, will take the floor in a "Pygmy Pig" act.

Member of this troupe of teens and sub-teens, coached by Bob May, are Mary Ann Beaudoin, Laurie Becker, Twinkly Freeman, Vickie Freeman, Margaret Gwynn, Jean Feacock, Kendall Raker, Becky Thompson, Sharon Love and Rosie Love.

Coach Price, who has been responsible for 11 national championship gymnastics teams -- five at FSU and 6 before that at the University of Illinois -- said this year's show should be one of the best.

Larry Aaron, who emceed last year's show, will keep things moving as a master of ceremonies.

SAFARI - BOUND

Beauchamp and Carl Farrell do an adagio act in Gymkana's "Safari" at Tully Gymnasium Wednesday through Saturday.

Kynes To Speak On Civil Disobedience

General Kynes will be speaking of the Pre-Law Society in the Library Room at 7:30 p.m.

"Isobedience" is the topic of the speech which has been before at FSU. The speech is the responsibilities that with rights of citizenship raised strong controversy, received his LL.B. from the University of Florida and was in the Florida Bar in 1955.

In recognition of his civic achievements, Kynes was picked as Ocala's Outstanding Young Man in 1958 by the local Junior Chamber of Commerce, while the State Jaycees named him one of the five outstanding young men in Florida in 1960.

Kynes closed his private law practice in 1961, and accepted an appointment as executive assistant to the Governor of Florida where his duties required him to become intimately acquainted with virtually every phase of state and local government.

During the 1963 Legislature, Kynes was recognized as the official manager of the College Building Amendment Campaign. Other educational matters which absorbed his attention included improvement of professors and teacher's salaries and adequate financing of textbooks for public schools.

Kynes married Miss Marjorie Hix in 1954 as a F.U.J. cheerleader. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha social fraternity, the Phi Delta Phi legal fraternity, the American Legion, the Junior Chamber of Commerce and the American Bar Association.

The Pre-Law Society of FSU is a pre-professional society organized to promote a closer relationship among pre-law students, to acquaint them with the law,

USSR, Theater 'Focus' Topics

'Focus' joins moderators Wayne Cowart, John Perkins, and a faculty specialist for a discussion of the recent developments in the Soviet Union concerning the resignation of Premier Nikita Khrushchev, tonight at 8:30 p.m. on Channel 11 WFSU-TV.

Highlighted in the discussion will be the legal processes of succession in the USSR, especially Khrushchev's, and what effect it will present to the Western world. Perkins will conduct an interview with University Theatre Director, Richard Fallon, on the theatre program here at FSU and particularly the forthcoming production of "A Man For All Seasons." Portions of scenes from the play will be shown.

John Merting, Student Body President and Mike Wigelius, Secretary of State, will discuss the Student Government's newly created legislative body.

In the weekly editorial, past, present, and future Pow Wows will be analyzed.

AVON CALLING ?

...no, it's Deanna Weber, a Delta Zeta, the feature girl (and Miss February) for the 1964-65 Sigma Phi Epsilon Calendar.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Calendars On Sale Today Through Friday

The Fifth Annual Sigma Phi Epsilon Calendar goes on sale today through Friday at tables set up outside the Student Union, Bill's Bookstore, and the Sweet Shop.

The calendars, which cost 50 cents apiece, will be on sale from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the above places, or may be purchased at any time from any member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity.

The Sig Ep Calendars feature twelve sorority women, one representing each month of the year. The coeds are chosen at the yearly Calendar Girl contest, usually in March in Westcott Auditorium.

The 12 representatives are chosen by a faculty panel or judges on the basis of beauty, poise and charm. Featured this year in the 17 by 12 inch calendar are: Sandra Riley (ZTA), Rita Coolidge (AGD), Janet Dunn (DDJ), Jo Eta Lawrence (DG), Deanna Weber (TZ).

Joanne Elliot (PBF), Marty Jo Terrell (AXO), Missy Herman (KKG), Cooke Winchester (PM), Sheila Clarke (KAT), Carol Sue Malt (SSS), and Pamela Koch (XO).

The 12 finalists each represent a theme for the month in which they are pictured.

One of the 12 finalists is chosen as the Sig Ep feature girl. For the 1964-65 calendar, Miss Sheila Clarke was chosen as the feature girl; her picture graces the title page of the calendar.

Sheila Clarke was chosen Miss Tallahassee last year, and is a member of the 1964 Homecoming Court.

The FSU chapter of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity originated the idea of making Sig Ep calendars five years ago. Since that time, the idea has spread to over 100 of the 160 Sig Ep chapters across the nation.

Norbu Presents Tibet Lecture

Thubten Jigme Norbu, brother of the Dalai Lama will speak in Ballroom C of the University Union tonight at 7 p.m.

He will lecture on the culture and customs of Tibet, and will present a film showing the escape of the Dalai Lama from Tibet.

As the brother of the Supreme Spiritual and Temporal Leader of Tibet, Norbu gives the first family account ever rendered in America of the solemn ceremonies and innermost sanctuaries of Tibet, including life in the Dalai Lama's palace. He describes the Dalai Lama's dramatic escape from the Red Chinese, and gives a gripping account of his own earlier flight.

At the age of eight, after childhood years passed in shepherd life in a remote Tibetan mountain area, Norbu was recognized as the reincarnation of the far-famed Tapster and was destined to become a high-ranking monk.

He was led to the great monastery of Kumbum, where he and his family were treated with honor and endowed with a stable inheritance. Then followed years of intensive study and training.

Admission to the program will be $5.00 for students, $1 for faculty and staff, and $1.25 for non-university. Tickets are available at the central ticket office in Westcott, and at the door the night of the performance.

Public Can Arrest Hate Campaign

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Offers Article Criticism

To the Editor:

"Martin Luther King belongs to 60 Communist-front organizations—more than any other Communist in the United States. He is promoted and encouraged by the media."

"David Lawrence and Sen. Barry Goldwater are both Jews. They are our enemies. They are trying to take over the growing Right Wing in America. David Lawrence is conspiring up the Jewishness of the NAACP as well as the Jewishness of Communism."

These quotes were taken from an article in the St. Pete "Times" by Mr. Lowell Brande. He reports on the growing amount of "hate literature" which is being dispersed in the U.S.

The public is able to do much to help prevent these perverted minds from spreading their filth. The Sept. 27th issue of "Parade" gives information on the Fair Campaign Practices Committee which tries to prevent smear tactics. It suggests that if you find any "hate rumors and accusations," send them to Fair Campaign Practices Committee, 790 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

There is another way though, and several houses in Michigan are doing it. Dan Smoot, a fair propagandist, has long been spreading hate.

Among many examples of his work are the following accusations: democracy is mobocracy, Negroes are inferior people, Rep. James Roosevelt, D., Calif., is virtually working for the Communists, and that Senator Lyndon Johnson was a "traitor."

Joel Sellen, a N.Y. Herald reporter, discusses the housewife's legal battle against Smoot in a recent issue of the St. Pete "Times."

Smoot's Michigan League of Women Voters became disturbed over Smoot's accusations. In the local newspaper, the L.W.V., in conjunction with the four housewives said that the Smoot Report was made up of "slanted information, half-truths, innuendos, and sometimes worse."

For this, Smoot asked for $500,000 in damages—half from the L.W.V. and half from the four housewives.

The L.W.V., by his attorney, says that Smoot's actions were "legally to stir opposition and harass his critics." The judge asked Smoot for a $15,000 bond.

This was done because if a person brings suit for a frivolous reason, then he is held responsible not only for court costs but also for the fees of the defense lawyer.

Second, the defense lawyer contends that Smoot should be immune from recourse to libel because he is a "public analyst." Recently, the Supreme Court held that politicians under certain conditions can not charge libel.

Third, the lawyer is going to argue that the L.W.V. were right in their opinion of Smoot.

Of course, court action will be used only in isolated cases in the "war" against "hate literature." In addition to turning material over to the already mentioned committee, citizens can also go to local newspapers and politicians (in most instances) for help.

Goldwater Astounding

Goldwater is indeed an amazing man. At least, he never fails to amaze me.

On numerous occasions Sen. Goldwater has pledged to cut federal spending and to organize military establishment. The senator would require to abolish the draft and rely on voluntary enlistments in the armed services. He would assume that the elimination of the draft would require substantially higher military pay scales, and, consequently, a larger military budget. Mr. Goldwater wants to continue the construction of strategic bombers as well as missiles. Again this would suggest a rise in government spending.

Mr. Goldwater tells American farmers that he will reduce and end price supports, the soil bank, and operating loans.

The senator has agreed that the rapid end of price supports will

In reply to article "Be Smart—go R.O.T.C." (Oct. 8), I would like to make some criticisms. There was one distortion and several omissions.

Students who become doctors of medicine receive a commission upon entering the services; hence the value of R.O.T.C. is lessened. Students planning to achieve Ph.D.'s must consider they will spend eight years in college and may marry in these years; hence the value of R.O.T.C. is lessened.

Students receiving bachelor's degrees in chemistry, biology, etc., can join the Public Health Service for two years and this removes the draft obligation. A student entering the fields of engineering may become employed by a vital defense organization, conferring temporary draft immunity; he may then marry, becoming draft exempt.

Students entering the Air Corps become temporarily exempt from the draft and may marry and become a civilian exempt (or they may join a vital defense organization or enter medical school).

Contrary to the statement in the mentioned article, the draft is being drafted while the draft education prerequisite for some positions are slim, and the draft and annual renewal of draft education is not difficult.

I believe the article was irresponsible and must have someone more knowledgeable in detailed facts such as "Flambeau" so concerned about the draft, the best decision regarding their lives.

I also make the point that authority present the statistics of conscientious objectors in the "Flambeau" to compare with this. This is because there is scarcity of sober information regarding classification II-D.

Defends Frats

To the Editor:

I feel that it is time for a stream of the criticism against the fraternities that has been present in the past few years. I think the close look is taken of the signs on at the last football game and see that only a small number of the fraternities were involved. I have seen many non-fraternity carrying—these varied because that we know so well. In some instances I have seen conduct that if performed by a fraternity would bring severe censure from their chapter officers. I think a person is very small if he feels an entire system had because of the conduct of a few.

Baby Seminoles Amaze

Hey, there goes Chingachgook! No, not the Indian—one of the Freshman football players. You really can't see them! Suddenly, they seem to be Baby Seminoles all over this campus! After walking into Speech 105 yesterday, I was convinced that I had been taken over by the Indians.

I am referring, of course, to the Mohawk haircuts that are currently being worn by the other members of our Freshman football team. The head shaving resulted from an excess of team spirit, and serves as wonderful publicity stunt.

Until recently, I didn't even know we had a Freshman football team. Then one day, I noticed a lot of frenzied activity out on the practice field. At first I thought it was a couple of fraternities; but the teams were too well coordinated and the ball did too much moving around the field. Naturally, all this prompted a little inquiry on my part, and eventually I discovered that these were the Baby Seminoles, our Freshman football team!

This year the squad numbers fifty-one strong. Thirty-nine of these players are here on football scholarships and the other twelve just came out for the love of the sport. Most of the squad hail from Florida and her two northern neighbors, Georgia and Alabama. However, others come from as far north as Ohio and Indiana.

One of the Freshmen are under leadership of Coach Tractor, who proudly states that he hasn't lost a single man since practice began. He attributes this to a smaller size of the squad.

The Baby Seminoles reported for practice on the 23rd of August, and have been in training ever since. Fraternities are wondering how they still alive—much less still in college!

The week before school started the team practiced twice a day. Now they work it down to every afternoon and Saturday mornings. The only problem here is that all fifty-one players have classes and homework hanging over their heads. And if they thought he had problems.

Besides all the classes, the players have an unbelievable time schedule to meet. They are required to be up and finished with breakfast by a certain time, practice two and a half hours a day, and participate in enforced study halls between eight and ten every evening. To top it all off, bed check is at 10:30!

Let's face it, a healthy respect for you can develop for an organization that you didn't even know existed a couple of days ago!

FSU Cleans OK

To the Editor:

I read Name Withheld's letter in the October 1 issue of the "Flambeau" in which she criticized the FSU laundry service.

If she has found a better laundry I would like to know where it is. My family and I are favorably impressed by the low cost of the service and the excellent workmanship. Possibly N.W. sent wooleys or knits which should have been dry cleaned and isn't laundered.

I understand that the long waiting period was due to an unanticipated number of students using the laundry service, and since the addition of personnel and a night shift, this situation has been corrected.

Both Hells Frightening

To the Editor:

The Monday editorial concerning the fear inspired by the Christian doctrine of Hell greatly interested me. I would be the first to second the proposition that we must "substitute careful thought for blind acceptance of what we are told," but I think this needs some qualification.

The Christian must reason within the framework of his presupposition of revealed truth, even as Plato built upon his presupposition of innate truth. In order to build, any philosopher must first assume. The Christian assumes revealed truths as found in Christ and in Scripture. Because of this he cannot ignore Hell merely because the idea scares people.

We would all agree that the insidious fear generated by the threat of a worldwide nuclear holocaust is anything but beneficial to the mental well-being of modern man. And yet we cannot choose to ignore the possibility of such a catastrophe. Indeed, to do so would mean great peril to ourselves and our country, for any state that the threat of war is fear-provoking and psychologically harmful, does not remove the reality of the threat. The slinking thought remains.

Similarly, if we attempt to write off the question of Hell as a "psycho-religious mistake" as we use modern logic, or repression—thinking or self-denial—repression.

If the Christian remains true to his presupposition (as any philosopher must) he will find that he cannot ignore the reality of Hell.

Goodwin Harrold To Head Dept.

Dr. Irvine Goodwin Harrold, a member of the faculty of the University of Tennessee and head of the mathematics dept. there for the past three years, has joined the FSU faculty as professor and chairman of the mathematics dept.

A specialist in topology, Harrold served as consultant to Union Carbide for 12 years and was winner of the Oak Ridge Nuclear Research prize for 1949.

He delivered the invited Guggenheim address of the American Mathematical Society in 1956. Harrold has served on several advisory boards including the Andrew Wilson Selection Committee, and as regional representative of the Society of Industrial and Applied Mathematics leadership program.

He has also served as a regional representative on the National Research Council.

Harrold has published widely in topology which along with applied mathematics is his research area. He plans to continue his research at FSU as well as direct graduate work and administer the department.

FSU Post Office Doubles Volume

The FSU Post Office has more than doubled the number of its boxes this fall.

It now has 6,780 postal boxes enough for every student living on campus to have one of his own. Until this fall, it had only 3,200 boxes, necessitating two to three students sharing each box.

This expansion was made possible by the change of location of the FSU Post Office to the area previously occupied by the Student Center Cafeteria. A new cafeteria has been developed in the new University Union Building.

The change of location has brought other postal improvements also. A wrapping service, a writing table and an improved stamp counter are provided in the new quarters.

Approximately $1,700 was invested in new equipment for the Post Office according to Dave L. Rabon, FSU postmaster, to provide better service both for students and university departments.

Although there are now sufficient boxes for each student living on campus to have his own box, only the freshman have one apiece this year.

Rabon explained that most upperclassmen prefer to continue sharing boxes than to change box numbers and combinations.

His plan is to assign a single box to each new student each year. At the end of four years, each student will have his own box.

The FSU Post Office has six deliveries daily. The recommended times for students to check their boxes are 10 a.m., 2 p.m., and 4:30 p.m.

KARL MOHR

K. Mohr Named To Opera Staff

Double billed as the first production of the season, the State Opera Association of Florida will present Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci" and Paul Hindemith's "Therese and Jack" in Operanman Music Hall on Nov. 11, 12, and 13.

As Technical Director, Tallahassee Karl Mohr and his staff have planned settings and light design which will add dramatically to the three performances which will take place within the intimacy of Operanman Music Hall.

"The contribution of all 70 members of the cast will be seen and heard to the best advantage when the curtain is raised on this exciting season," said Mohr.

Mohr is the Director of the Bach Singers, Manager of the Opera Guild and was Assistant Stage Director of last year's State Opera production of "Susannah."

A holder of two FSU degrees, Mohr has further graduate study in musicology at the University of California at Berkeley and in opera in Vienna and Germany. Through the sponsorship of Richard Wagner's Granddaughter, Mohr was the recipient of a scholarship to the Bayreuth Festival Master Class during the summer of 1962, where he studied opera production under some of the world's most outstanding figures. Mohr is responsible for settings and light design for which additional equipment, originally created for the Asolo Theatre in Sarasota, has been purchased.

Reader Offered Platform Puzzle

How clear is the FSU student on issues appearing in the presidential platform?

The following statements are taken from either the Republican or Democratic platform. How well have you prepared and learned your homework for the Nov. 3 election?

1. Democracy in America rests on the confidence that people can be trusted with freedom. It comes from the conviction that we will find in freedom a unity of purpose stronger than all our differences.
2. It is a high mission of government to help assure equal opportunity for all, protecting every citizen an equal chance at the starting line but never determining who is to win or lose. But government must also reflect the nation's compassionate concern for those who are unable, through no fault of their own, to provide adequately for themselves.
3. We pledge a strong, fiscally sound system of Social Security, with improved benefits to our people.
4. We pledge full implementation and faithful execution of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, and all other rights and opportunities guaranteed by the Constitution to every citizen.
5. The Civil Rights Act of 1964 deserves and requires full observance by every American and fair, effective enforcement if there is any default.
6. We will continue to fight until we have succeeded in including hospital care for older Americans in the Social Security program, and have insured adequate assistance to those elderly people suffering from mental illness and mental retardation.
7. We are determined to continue all-out efforts through fully-enforceable measures to halt and reverse the arms race and bring to an end the era of nuclear terror.
8. We will seek further tax reduction—in the progress we need to remove inequities in our present tax laws. In particular we should carefully review all our excise taxes and eliminate those that are obsolete.
9. We pledge improvement, and full and fair enforcement, of the anti-trust statutes, coupled with long overdue clarification of Federal policies and interpretations relating thereto in order to strengthen competition and protect the consumer and small business.
10. We will take every step necessary to carry forward the vital military research and development programs. We will pursue these programs as absolutely necessary to assure our nation of superior strength in the 1970's.

Purpose of the two-week workshop sponsored by the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is to assist police training directors in the development of juvenile delinquency training programs within their home areas.

Home Economics School Uses Modern Educational Concepts

By BARBARA BAKER
Flambeau Staff Writer

The days of the spinning wheel and home-made bread are gone forever, as obsolete as buggy whips and bloomers.

Our educational trends have undergone noticeable changes since Sputnik first raced across the sky, and the modern progressive thinking in the Home Economics School is merely one indication of this.

Hortense M. Glenn, dean of the School of Home Economics, sums up the feeling in this way: "The U.S. Department of Labor has reverted preserving the traditional link with the past in its reverence for the child and home, has been one of the most forward-thinking on campus. Home Economics has been included in the offerings of FSU and its predecessors since 1905. It became a separate school in 1918.

The master's degree program has been active since 1914, at which time the first master's degree through home economics was granted.

In 1948, the School of Home Economics initiated programs at the doctoral level, and since that time 50 Ph. D. degrees have been earned by students through the various departments of the school.

The school is organized into four departments: Clothing and Textiles, Food and Nutrition, Home and Family Life, and Home Economics Education.

statistics which indicate that a college woman can expect to spend at least 25 years of her life working outside her home, whether or not she marries."

"This points up the importance of preparing for the kind of work which will bring her satisfactions and make it possible for her to combine two careers, making a home and professional service. We believe that the Home Economist may really spend her life in "Complementary Careers," she continued.

Seminoles Squeak By Determined Bulldogs 17-14

by BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

Fred Biletnikoff showed the world why he's All American material in Athens Saturday as he led the Seminoles to a 17-14 come from behind victory over the Georgia Bulldogs.

Biletnikoff teamed with Steve Tensi to take the Tribe 79 yards in the last 11 minutes of play and defeat the fired up Bulldogs who had kept FSU off stride all afternoon.

The victory hinged on one play in the scoring series. The sputtering Tribe offense had finally put together a drive that took them from the FSU 21 to the Georgia 46.

In three plays the Seminoles had netted exactly five yards. If they punted with fourth and five the best they could hope for would be to hold the Bulldogs to a 14-10 margin.

If they went for the first down and missed they would give the Georgians the ball in excellent field position for another touchdown that would ice the game, 21-10.

Coach Bill Peterson elected to go for the first down. Tensi dropped back in the pocket, looked for his favorite receiver and threw. Biletnikoff, double teamed, leaped high in the air to pull down the crucial first down pass on the 30.

From here Phil Spooner ran for another first down on the twenty, getting his second good run of the afternoon.

Tensi once again called on Biletnikoff. He tossed from the 20 to Biletnikoff on the five, who took three men with him into the end zone for the winning touchdown.

This last drive was the one bright moment for the Seminoles who were scrambling all over the field trying to catch the determined Bulldogs from the opening kick-off to the last 95 seconds.

Only brilliant individual efforts by Bill McDowell, Dick Hermann, and especially Winfred Bailey prevented the Georgians from running all over the "Magnificent Seven" and the "Formidable Four."

Only the superior talents of leaping Fred Biletnikoff pulled the offense from a spasmodic sport to an airborne aggressor.

Wayne Swinford took the opening kickoff for the Georgians from the five to the 38. From here quarterback Lynn Hughes ran the club through the Seminole Defense to the FSU 24.

On a third down pass play end Pat

Hodgson fumbled on the three and Bill McDowell recovered for FSU. Two plays, a 40 yard ramble by Spooner and a 50 yard pass play to Don Floyd, put the ball on the Georgia four.

Three plays yielded no gain and Les Murbok came in to kick a field goal for the Tribe and put them ahead 3-0 in the first quarter.

Heavy pressure on the quarterbacks kept either team from moving and they had to exchange punts. The Tribe got its second break of the game on Fritchett's punt from the Georgia 47.

The ball touched a Georgia player and Bill McDowell recovered for the Seminoles on the Georgia 16.

It took the Floridians four plays to maneuver 16 yards with Lee Kiermore going over from the one to put the Tribe ahead 10-0.

After the kick-off the Bulldogs roared straight down field on the running of quarterbacks Hughes and Preston Ridelhuber for their first score.

Ridelhuber carried the 57 yard drive with a four yard tum for the 11, 17-14.

FRED BILETNIKOFF

...led the Tribe to the dramatic victory in a come from behind game that saw Biletnikoff and Tensi catch two passes in the last drive to put the Seminoles ahead 17-14.

BULLDOGS BITE!

...was the sad discovery of quarterback Steve Tensi who was constantly hounded by a voracious crew of Georgians who came close to upsetting the number ten in the nation Seminoles.

Others in the cast are Paul Hutchins, Alex Kurjack, Henry Polic, Bill

Aldredge, David Martin, Al Harris, Anne Phillips, Jeanne Falls, and Anna Clancy.

The play, which ran two seasons on Broadway, centers around Sir Thomas More, King Henry VIII's influential adviser, who is caught in the midst of the changes brought about by the break of Henry VIII with the Catholic Church.

Due to his unshakable principles, More is unable to yield to the demands of the King and his faction to give them verbal support.

He cannot publicly support the opposing faction and thus receive their protection. More is eventually executed because of this conflict.

Fallon considers More an interesting variation as a protagonist.

He thinks the theme of the play of prime importance. For this reason he explained props lowered from the ceiling, a "Common Man" who speaks to the audience, and fake-looking scenery will be used.

Tickets for the production are available at the Main Ticket Office.

Danforth Graduate Fellowships For Teachers Deadline Monday

The final date for application by students for nomination in the Danforth Graduate Fellowship national competition is Monday, according to Dr. Robert A. Spivey, University Chaplain, before the FSU.

Graduating senior students who are interested in a career in college teaching may apply for nomination by FSU before this deadline.

The candidate should submit his name, current mailing address, approximate grade average, and proposed field of graduate study to the Office of the University Chaplain, 245 Suwannee Arcade.

A faculty committee composed of Dr. Gular Bosch, chairman of the art department; Dr. Charles Grigg, sociology department; Dr. Hans Plend, physics department; and Dr. Spivey, University Chaplain, will interview the candidates to determine the nominees from FSU. Up to five may be nominated.

The Fellowships are open to men and women who are seniors or recent graduates of accredited colleges in the U.S., who have serious interest in college teaching as a career, and who plan to study for a Ph.D., in a field common to the undergraduate college.

Foreign Film Tonight

Tonight at 8 p.m. the Foreign Film Series will present "Jules and Jim," a French movie. A limited number of season tickets are still available at the door.

field common to the undergraduate college.

Applicants may be single or married, must be less than thirty years of age at the time of application, and may not have undertaken any graduate or professional study beyond the baccalaureate. The Fellowships are open to persons of any creed, race, or citizenship.

"Special attention is given to three areas in considering candidates for fellowships," said Spivey.

"Evidence of flexible and wide range intellectual power and academic achievement which is a thorough foundation for graduate study will be considered," he said.

"Personal characteristics which are likely to contribute to effective teaching, and to constructive relationships with students will be examined," Spivey added.

"Evidence of concerns beyond self-interest and narrow perspective and which take seriously the questions with which religious expressions attempt to deal will also be considered," he explained.

The award is for one year, and is normally renewable for a total of four academic years of graduate study.

Fellowship stipends depend on individual needs. Current annual limits are: single, $1800; married, $2200 plus dependency allowances for children; and required tuition fees. Other national fellowships may be held concurrently with a Danforth Graduate Fellowship.

'The Red Shoes' To Open Series

One showing of "The Red Shoes," winner of the Academy Awards, will open the new University Union Classic Film Series tomorrow in Westcott at 7:30 p.m.

"The Red Shoes" which is replete with music and dancing, is based on a tale by Hans Christian Anderson and was the first feature-length film to present a ballet in its entirety.

The Classic Film Series as well as the new Little Seminole Matinee Film Series will eventually be held in the Moore Auditorium upon its completion. Until that time, they will be held in Westcott.

Admission is $.50 for the movie.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Answers Attack On Student Govt.

To the Editor:

I would suggest that William Ray take a closer look at the FSU "crity din" student government which he so readily blasted in his column of Monday, October 5.

He stated that "Students consider SG some sort of private club. In the past, all that SG appears to have done is shuffle committees, investigate their own internal affairs, rewrite the constitution and serve as an official looking rubber stamp for the administration."

First of all, I would like to invite Mr. Ray to the student government offices to have a look at the programs and activities handled there.

I would also point out that student government has, in operation, some 250 programs which directly effect the students on campus and which all of the students on campus can participate in, if they wish.

Some of these are the student insurance program which allows university students to full, year-round coverage where accidents and sickness are concerned. This is not a branch of the administration. It was instigated and is run by student government.

The rally bureau is another example of SG activity. It was formed this year by SG and has been credited with coordinating the biggest and best pep rally in the history of the school.

In addition to this, SG is constantly working on public relations throughout the southeast and the state of Florida. Through programs in this field, many students have been influenced into coming to FSU and many civic leaders have enjoyed a better insight to FSU and its student activities.

As far as students looking on SG as a private club, I feel this is the students' fault.

At the beginning of this school year, all new students and transfer students were given personnel forms to fill out and turn in to the SG office. If they were interested in working in this field, Articles in the "Flambeau" also announced that any students interested in working in SG were welcome to apply.

Since the instigation of this program, more than 100 persons from the application lists have been assigned to work on various programs in SG. Many of these now have jobs as directors of certain programs.

Some 40 percent of the total number of students who expressed interest in student government are now actively participating.

Other programs, such as the Political Education Committee which was fully explained in a "Flambeau" article, have been announced in student publications. In announcing them SG requested participation by students in the programs.

In all, student government, if it is a private club, is open to all persons who qualify as university students and has an overall working of more than 600 students.

In summary, I suggest that Mr. Ray know more of his subject before degrading it and that if he feels left out because he is not an active part of student government, he apply for a position as a working member of a group that has the student body FIRST in its mind.

To the Editor:

The Delta Gamma sorority and the Phi Kappa Phi fraternity would like to thank the Tri Deltas, Phi Deltas, Theta, Kappa, Sigma Kappas, and Delta Chi's for their thoughtful help after a fire that burned away a portion of our float Thursday night. Without their assistance we would have had a difficult time preparing for the parade in the morning. This wonderful spirit actually emphasized the true meaning of sisterhood and brotherhood.

To the Editor:

As an alumnus of the U. of F. and at present a graduate student at FSU I would like to make a few comparisons between the two schools which might bear on the present furor over the Pow Wow.

Although the two institutions are both state supported land grant colleges, their resemblance ceases at this point. The U. of F., possibly due to its previous status as a men's college is so far in advance of FSU in the area of personal freedoms, both intellectual and physical, as to make comparison ridiculous.

Unlike their comparable Tallahassee group the townspeople of Gainesville have no voice in the decisions of the school nor do they expect it. Unlike FSU their Artist Series, Gator Growl, and football games are primarily for the benefit of the students, and if the townspeople are not pleased by an event they have a simple expedient that the ones here might try—they stay home the next time.

I agree with the remarks by the student body president, and would like to add that I think the University should be primarily a place in which a student is encouraged to question, disagree, and argue with the established.

In the course of this it is hoped that he will develop his own philosophy which possibly may not agree with the predominant attitudes of a relatively provincial Southern town. It is entirely possible that when the last of the old girls' school faculty and deans at FSU die off or retire there will be a change towards a more liberal view than now exists, and perhaps at that time the townspeople will lose their favored status also.

As a certain English author phrased it: "Tis a consummation devoutly to be wished."

An address by Dr. Paul Piccard, Director of the FSU Honors Program will highlight the meeting. FSU Student Body President John Merting will present and narrate slides of the FSU campus.

Grove Now Open

A product of slave labor, the antebellum mansion, former home of territorial governor of Florida, offers students the opportunity to view the ruggedness of early Florida history.

The plantation, called the Grove, was once the home of Governor Richard Keith Call. It predates Florida's admission to the Union by 20 years, when the government buildings in Tallahassee were nothing but three log cabins.

The Grove has been in the Call family ever since it was built. The timber for the house was cut from trees growing on the grounds. A kiln was fashioned to make the brick. A huge well, now boarded up, testifies to the ruggedness of life in the wilderness.

Tea Fetes Atwood

About 30 guests attended a tea given in honor of Miss Eva May Atwood, French professor, at the Faculty Club Thursday afternoon. During the tea, Miss Atwood showed slides taken during her recent two and one-half months trip around the world under the auspices of the Asian Seminar.

After the (Almost) Fall

Peterson Praises Persistent 'Bulldogs'

By RICH HALTEN
Flambeau Sports Writer

It's back to the practice field for Florida State's unbeaten but often shaken Seminoles.

Following the Georgia game that nearly gave the Tribe rosters heart failure, the team viewed films of the Saturday battle and then held a concentrated workout.

In a Monday morning analysts Coach Bill Peterson gave plenty of credit to the Bulldogs for a very close, hard fought contest. Georgia was apparently as up for this game as FSU was last week against Kentucky. Coach Peterson quipped, "The Magnificent Seven is still magnificent." The Bulldogs came up with an entirely new offensive style, one the Seminole defense had not scrimmaged against. "This accounts for the yardage they picked up on the power sweeps," said Peterson. "It was a matter of adjusting."

Although it was a close scare in Athens Saturday afternoon, "Coach Pete" agrees that the team learned a good lesson, that they grew up some more in the Georgia game. "When you get to the top you have to learn," commented the FSU mentor. "It was good we both learned and won at the same time."

Up until this season, and even then, critics took delight in labeling FSU as a team that couldn't come through with the big play. Once again though, the 1964 Seminoles proved they could come through in the clutch. The seemingly unbreakable combination of Steve Tensi and Fred Biletnikoff was instrumental as the Tribe came storming back in the fourth quarter after a Georgia score that put the Garnet and Gold behind for the first time this season.

Tensi mixed his running plays and well timed passes to heavily defended Biletnikoff to drive 79 yards in 12 plays. In one Tensi fired to "Fleet Fred" with fourth down and four yards to go. Biletnikoff leaped high to snag the aerial from the mass of Georgia defenders.

Moments later it was a twenty yard shot from Tensi, and Biletnikoff covered the last five yards literally carrying the Bulldog secondary across the goal line.

Peterson believes the closeness of the contest should not jeopardize the FSU national standing. But Coach is only worrying about VPI and this weekend's trip to Virginia.

It is homecoming for the military school and they'll be playing their hearts out. Partly to knock off the highly rated Seminoles, but more-over should they win the entire campaign will probably get a weekend pass.

VPI features the deadly passing of All-American candidate Bob Schweikert and power running of fullback Silas Urt, who Peterson calls one of the toughest we'll face.

Expresses "Moderate" View On Pow

Harsh Action

We feel that the seven organizations placed on administrative and social probation (the ATO's, AXO's, AGO's, XPO's, KAT's, DG's, KKG), and the SAE's who had their local charter lifted for two trimesters are bearing the brunt of unjustified and so-called "righteous" indignation which resulted from pressures outside FSU.

Dean Day spoke of the "grave concern for the image (of FSU) expressed to him through numerous telephone calls and letters from students now on campus as well as from alumni and friends of the university."

In his second apology to the townspeople, made Friday, Dean Day further commented that "I am certain the majority of the Florida State students deplore the actions of the few..."

This is the crux of Dean Day's argument.

Yet, if the letters on the editorial page are any reflection of the opinions of FSU students, the validity of Dean Day's statement is at least open to serious question.

We are not at all sure that the majority of students who attended the Pow Wow "deplored the actions of the few..." We cannot understand how Dean Day became so "certain."

However, the point in the long run is not whether a majority of students approved or disapproved of the Pow Wow skits, but the summarily severe and ominous tone of the disciplinary actions taken.

For the implications of Dean Day's decisions encompass the whole student body of this University, both individually and collectively. The mailed fist which struck eight social organizations would be many times more injurious to a single student.

The eight fraternities and sororities are not alone responsible for what happened at the Pow Wow except in the narrowest of senses.

All of those who inwardly enjoyed the skits and then hypocritically expressed disapprobation, as well as all of those who sincerely approved of the Pow Wow, are responsible and should take note, for a new arbitrary note of authority seems to be taking root in the Dean of Students' office.

We are presumably students at this University to learn. Learning involves testing in reality not only the theories of the classroom, but also, and sometimes more importantly, our cultural heritage and attitudes.

Part of the functions of the Dean of Students is to foster the development of intellectual and personal qualities which hopefully will lead to the eventual growth of truly mature, capable citizens.

We doubt that a repressive, dogmatic policy on the part of the Dean of Students will permit this growth.

RLS

To the Editor:

During the past week, all of us have been saturated with the pros and cons of the Pow Wow issue. The majority of the viewpoints have come from the extremes, as is normal for any controversial issue.

Perhaps a moderate opinion might offer an insight into what happened, who's to blame, and how we can avoid its recurrence.

At the writing of this letter, three groups have been absolved from any blame. The remaining groups expect disciplinary action of some nature.

What did happen before and during the Pow Wow? The Pow Wow Committee (students and faculty) started the ball rolling by leaving the choice of skit content to the groups involved. In the past, FSU has been quite reluctant to consider its students mature.

On very few occasions have the Greeks, or anyone else, had the opportunity to assume any responsibility. Suddenly opportunity knocked.

Inhibited youth, when released from their shackles, tend to go to extremes. True to form the skits were, in general, extreme. Subtle wit, even risque, is proper and enjoyable at an event of this nature. Grossness for the sake of grossness has no place.

The skits fitted both categories. Probably the greatest mistake in Friday night of censored material or material not approved by the reviewing committee. This was sheer stupidity and deserves reprimand.

However, certain groups who played it straight and presented only approved material face cagitation. This fact is deplorable and reflects unfavorably upon the administration.

However, even some of the skits that were approved were in bad taste when one considers typical Pow Wow audiences. Like it or not, the Pow Wow is traditionally a family affair attended by Fallahsians, and out-of-town alumni and parents.

The greatest roar of dismay has come from these sources. Certainly their tastes and reactions should have been considered. So—who is to blame? The faculty, administration, and students are all at fault.

How can we prevent the recurrence of similar snowballs? The only punishment feasible should be for those who deliberately altered previously censored skits. However, the rest of us—faculty, parents, townspeople, and students alike—can learn a lesson. FSU has been a unique university.

It has a distinct casualness all its own. It is an academically sound institution and yet one in which we can enjoy ourselves. It's not a party school. It's been a good place to send a son or daughter. Let's keep it that way.

With education comes free-thinking; the chance to think for himself, to enforce norms and standards essential in the shaping of character. In most cases, the student needs to have some freedom of belief.

There are many important reasons why they are his now because they have been tested and found to be the best way for him to learn. They should have them, with proper guidance. Lion comes mistakes. It is necessary for learning. Learn to accept them, for they shape young lives.

Hindsight is better than foresight. We have all learned from this. Let's hope the next time all parts is better next time. The paper is better next time.

Administrative Action Bodes New Moral Tack

To the Editor:

We are glad that the administration has taken action against the immorality which was displayed at the Pow Wow at Homecoming. Such strict action should prevent any further displays of this type.

The moxie of this type of immorality has been at an all time low but maybe the sanctions taken by the administration will start a new trend of morality at this campus. Perhaps I will no longer be embarrassed to take a girl to a campus function. Thank goodness I did not have a date at the Pow Wow.

What if my parents had come up for the weekend? My mother being an alumni of this University would probably have taken me out of school, and put me in a denominational school, like Furman.

Fraternities really do nothing for the campus and should be eliminated.

Everything good that has ever happened is blown up. However, everything they do bad is kept in the news. The student government is setting up a puppet of the administration. The Houses of the Rites are commonly known as a puppet house should be kicked off campus.

We want to cooperate with the administration on the things they are doing. They should be more alert and really concerned for student life and campus betterment.

We now want to make a commitment. All the students who want to see their appreciation of the administration for what they are doing on Landis Green in front of the library for the biggest thing ever seen on this campus, I will come on this day afternoon. Hallahan, Landis.

Articles may be turned in at other times to the Union Main desk in the 2nd floor lounge area of the Activities Bldg. Room 201 is located near the main desk.

Miss Carmen Rogers will give a talk tomorrow at 4 p.m. in the large lounge of Longmire on the subject of "Sir Thomas More."

The talk is in connection with the University Theatre Production of "A Man for All Seasons," which is being presented in Conrad Auditorium today through Sunday.

Dr. Conrad Fallon, director of "A Man for All Seasons," will also be present and a discussion will follow the talk by Miss Rogers.

Students who wish to change majors and faculty advisors must come to 105 Dodd Hall between Oct 19 and Nov 6, 1964.

If you plan to make a change please do so early in this period to facilitate seeing your new advisor in the green trial scheduling period that will follow.

The Alliance Francaise will meet tomorrow at 7:15 in the library lecture hall for a short business meeting. It will be followed by a lecture and refreshments at 8 p.m.

The speaker for the evening is the Reverend Father L. Barjon, S.J., director of the Important French magazine "Les Etudes." He will speak in French on Albert Camus and Andre Malraux.

SAILING ASSOCIATION: The Sailing Club will have a meeting for all members—old and new—at 7:30 p.m. in room 555 of the Institute of Molecular Biophysics Building, tonight.

BOWLING: The Wednesday Mixers will face the Foul Line tonight at 7. Anyone interested in joining the league is welcome to come.

INTRAMURALS MEN: League leaders will meet today in two important deciding games as undefeated Sigma Phi Epsilon is pitted against undefeated PI Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta defend their unblemished record against Theta Chi who have never lost.

Other afternoon games will find Alpha Tau Omega meeting SAE; KA taking on SX; FDT battling SN; and DN plays KS.

The games will begin at 4:10 p.m. and 5:15 p.m.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: The tennis semi-finals will take place this afternoon at 4:15 in the courts behind the women's gym. Last week's final saw Platts defeating Marcy McKay 6-3. Fran Clark over Bryna Mahoney 6-0. In the intermediate doubles Pat Logue and Shirley Nelsons beat Payton Wright and Kathy DeArmas 6-3.

For the beginning singles Joyce Jordan defeated Norma Bell 6-4, and Diane Dieter beat Gail McCucker 6-0. For the doubles Jody Dance teamed with Debra Paramore to win the Monday-Wednesday league as they defeated Mickey Hendricks and Kathy Warren 6-0.

INTRAMURALS RESULTS: FSU overran Cleveles 26-0; George Logan defeated the Majors 24-0; Miami Village held ASU sevens 19-0; A K Psi beat Engineering Science 13-0; ASU defeated Dime-day 18-15; and the Majors's new their league lead as they edged out a victory over South 20-15.

Friday's final and Majors over Cleveles 24-0. Wesley sweeping out a 24-0 victory over FSU; and Kappa Sigma swept South 24-0. Monday's league meeting, ASU and Dime-day repeated the task triumph as they beat their 14-0, while Miami A K Psi 26-0 Friday night. See Saturday for a wrap-up at 10 p.m. See Tuesday for games Saturday and Keifer.

over Hill 13-0, FSO beating Delta Sigma PI 19-12, and Wesley over Hearstone 13-0.

In a playoff game Kappa Sigma caught Lambda Chi Alpha behind their goal as they won by the slight margin of 2-0.

Next week will mark the beginning of the final playoffs as the league leaders meet for the championship games. All spectators are invited to come and watch the action.

FRED BILETNIKOFF

...with try to latitude in the Seminoles' sixth victory over the Tribe travels to Blacksburg, Virginia, Sunday to face the Cavaliers of VPI. Biletznikoff was the hero in the Tribe's victory over Georgia last weekend, catching a pass for a TD in the fourth quarter that won the game.

Must Duel With VPI QB

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

Saturday's gridiron clash at Blacksburg, Virginia, could well turn into a battle of the quarterbacks, as Steve Tensi will try to lead the Tribe to its sixth victory and Bob Schweickert will try to bring the Militia a homecoming victory.

The match should look a little like last week's match with the Georgia Tech Bulldogs. Schweickert is the same kind of roll out quarterback that the Georgians featured. Schweickert is also a better passer than the Bulldog duo.

After last week, though, the "Magnificent Seven" and "Formidable Four" should not have the same trouble containing the VPI attack. Again they have two men to key on—Schweickert and fullback Sonny Utz.

They opened the season with wins over Tampa and George Washington and then lost to Wake Forest, Virginia, and West Virginia. They'd like to get back on the winning side with a homecoming victory over the flying Seminoles.

The Tech Gobblers don't boast a very impressive record at 2-3, but this could be deceiving since Schweickert hasn't been running at full power in the last few games. But the Tribe has a lot to worry about. With the Gobblers' defense, they can settle that score and make the homecoming. The Tribe will be looking to recover all the points they lost in Athens.

Coach Bill Peterson has a powerful crew of quarterbacks. Among his top four are Steve Tensi, Biletznikoff, Biletznikoff, and South. All-American Tensi, caught eight touchdowns in 193 yards and was named MVP over Georgia, and South was named MVP in Florida.

Sailors Show

FSU placed third in the St. Andrews Bay Yacht Club Regatta in sailing action over the weekend. Vanderbilt took first place and the University of Florida second.

In the four race regatta the Seminoles were disqualified in the first, finished second in the second, and came in third in the third race. The sailors did pick up a victory in the fourth race in Bill Mains sailing.

Tulane, Florida Presbyterian, and St. Petersburg Junior College were the other schools participating.

His passing party should be in fine form. Tensi leads the offense and passing in 83 yards and was named MVP in 48 miles.

Defensively the "Magnificent Seven" and "Formidable Four" have been scored on. Tensi doesn't want to see a Winfred Bailey, Jr. (Duke Hermann) win here.

I love a man in Van Heusen "417!"

You can tell he's important, ready to move up. That "V-Taper" fits and flatters his rugged, rangy physique, and the executive styling of traditional button-downs or crisp Snap-Tabs should take him to the top. Broadcloth or oxford, in all the greatest colors, oh man...that's the shirt for my man!

Greeks Petition Blackwell For Pow-Wow Appeal

The IFC and Panhellenic have asked Sen. President Gordon W. Blackwell, in order to appeal the administrative and social probation placed on two fraternities and six fraternities by the Dean of Student's Office.

At press time at 12 midnight, Blackwell was in the meeting were not available.

The appeal groups were given the chance Monday as a result of the report of a committee of Deans concerning the Pow-Wow.

Blackwell was flummoxed around the time yesterday concerning the resignation of several of a few more reviewing committee.

Blackwell said no such action was being contemplated.

Neither the office of the deans nor the Student Government would make a statement concerning the decision action until after a statement by Blackwell.

The actions of the Deans has led to a series of criticisms by concerned students and Greeks for what they felt was harsh punishment.

Such speculation has been heard from several individuals proposed intention of dismissing fraternities altogether from campus life.

All this so far, however, has proved to be mere rumor.

Several other campus action groups are reportedly considering action in connection with the issue of student government.

The Senate plan of action has been met with mixed responses.

Many students seemed to be bored with the entire affair, expressing the feeling that the entire issue had been overdone.

Others, however, both defending and attacking the actions.

Members of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity, the group hit hardest by the discipline, were reportedly shocked over the severity of the action.

The charter was revoked by the Student Government leaving them as an unaffiliated group on campus.

Many are very disappointed and are planning to take action against our Student Government.

Blackwell said Julian Proctor, SAE representative, said that an appeal would be forthcoming.

Gymkana Show Playing Tonight

The annual Gymkana Show will last night in Tully Gym, featuring contestants for Gymkana. There are present in various costumes on the theme of the "Gymkana Show".

Mike McElberty, a Kappa Kappa Gamma member, was attired as an iguana.

Mike McElberty, a freshman majoring in psychology, was attired as a panda bear.

GIL TURNER

... noted folksinger and instrumentalist, relies on the harmonica for traditional atmosphere in the production of "Spoon River Anthology," to be here Tuesday night.

Early Songs Of American Past Second Artist Series Feature

Songs from the American past, played on the harmonica, guitar, and banjo will play an important part in the stage presentation of the "Spoon River Anthology" to be presented as the second Artist Series Tuesday in Westcott Auditorium beginning at 8:30 p.m.

Folk singer, Gil Turner with Marion Childs will perform a group of songs as varied as the Edgar Lee Masters poems that make up the production staged by Touring Theatre, Inc.

Each of the actors assumes a number of characters, who deliver the brief poems, sometimes playing a brief scene with another character, now often speaking alone to the audience.

The contrast between succeeding scenes is often sharp and surprising.

The use of folk music not only helps to weave different moods, it also serves as a unifying force in the production.

A visual and musical climax of the production comes when Fiddler Jones, played by Carl Esser, recounts his joyous life that "ended up with a broken fiddle—and a broken laugh, and a thousand memories, and not a single regret."

"To free his hands for picking—and a strumming, Turner uses an around the neck metal harmonica holder, popular with folk musicians.

Tickets for the performance are available to students at the Central Ticket Office in Westcott. There is no charge for student admission, but students must present their picture I.D. card with the yellow certificate of registration, stamped "Paid."

Anarchy Danger Present: Kynes

Speaking on Civil Disobedience before the FSU Pre-Law Association last night, James Kynes, Attorney General of Florida, stated that "if the individual conscience is left to decide whether laws are to be disobeyed, nothing can result but anarchy."

Kynes stated that "if we are all allowed to break laws, there will be a clash of conflicting personalities and eventually, anarchy. Either we accept the rule of law in all areas or we shall be ruled by the force of mobs."

The speech by Kynes, part of a series of legal addresses to be presented by the Pre-Law association this trimester rejected civil disobedience and "irresponsible disrespect for the American system of government."

Reminding the audience that the term "Civil disobedience" does not exist in the legal profession, the Attorney General stated that, "Either you adhere to the laws and respect for the state and nation, or you break these laws."

"In a democratic society," he continued, "A man's badge of honor should never be judged by his jail term, but by his contributions to his fellow man."

Defining law as "the collective organization of individual rights," Kynes reaffirmed that, "In order for a system of government or function, it is imperative for any individual living under the government to respect the laws."

Sen. Stearns Elected Legislative Pro-Tem

Gene Stearns, junior class senator, was elected president pro-tem of the seventeenth Student Senate at its sixth session Wednesday afternoon.

Stearns was elected by secret ballot, with Senator Julian Proctor, past senate president, the only other nominee for the position.

In other action, the Senate discussed a resolution proposing the presentation of a "Student Government Award" to the Outstanding Sophomore Football Player, which would be presented annually.

The resolution was introduced by Senator Bill Sizemore who said, "I think the Student Government needs to put in this effort to show its appreciation to the football team for making school spirit better this year."

He added that he felt the award should go to a sophomore since they got little recognition, presently.

The resolution was co-sponsored by Senators Joy Dickinson, Nancy Ashley, and Jack Slipperly. It was referred to the Judicial and Ruler Committee for further consideration.

The only other legislation passed in Wednesday's session was a resolution to advise the Faculty Nominating Committee of the suggestion by the Student Senate that the University Union Pool be named after no individual, living or dead.

Chaplain Spivey Talks On Morals

Dr. Robert A. Spivey, University Chaplain will deliver a speech on the subject "Goldwater and Morality" at the Baptist Student Union auditorium this evening at 6:45 p.m.

Spivey will deal with "questions about our society which the candidacy of Senator Goldwater raises."

This speech is one of a series of speeches given by faculty and prominent members of the community on current and important topics.

Motorcade, Pep Rally Planned

Barbara Walker, chairman of the rally bureau, has announced that a motorcade and pep rally will begin tonight at 7:30 p.m. to urge the Seminoles on to victory Saturday.

day over VFL.

The motorcade will begin in front of Westcott at 7:30 p.m. and will terminate at Opperman amphitheatre with a pep rally.

"Kay Lewis, captain of the cheerleaders and the rally bureau have worked closely to make this rally the best of the year," Miss Walker said.

The Seminole football team and the FSU Marching Chiefs will be on hand for the rally.

"The team has proved to us that they can win against the greatest odds, so let's show them the support they deserve. I still think we'll make it an 11-0 season with the last game being played in the Orange Bowl," Student Body President John Merting stated.

New Sculpture Exhibit Premiers

With a special opening today at 7:30 p.m., some 40 sculpture representatives of a new art movement concerned with visual structure and motion will go on exhibition in FSU's Art Gallery.

Some of the sculptures achieve the effect of motion through light changes and some through changes of color, according to Curator Charles S. McGee.

All the constructions in the exhibition are from two workshops: in Italy, in Milan and Padua. The exhibition is sponsored by the Olivetti Co. and is based upon a much smaller show which was presented in 1962 in Milan, Rome, Venice, Rome, and Düsseldorf. It comes to FSU under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institution Traveling Exhibition Service.

Following an underlying concept of the object of art as a fluid series of impressions, the new art form is sometimes called "programmed" art.

Examples include colored liquid and air bubbles moving through plastic tubes making different arrangements of color and shape.

Pioneering the art movement were such Italian artists as Bruno Munari, creator of such designs as his "Useless Machine" (1935).

The exhibit will be up through Nov. 15.

Domino New Senator

Carl Domino defeated Bill Sopher and Tom Dink in the special elections for Precinct 13 for Kellum Hall Senator.

Groups Sponsor Presidential Vote

From 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. today the Young Citizens for Johnson and Youth for Goldwater are sponsoring a show vote to allow students to express their opinions of the presidential candidates.

There will be four polling places on campus—one in front of Bryan Hall, the Seminole Dining Room, Strozier Library, and one in the Patio of the University Union.

"Certificates of participation will be required in order to vote, and the principle of 'one man one vote' will be upheld," according to Max Gelders, spokesman for the Johnson group.

Students who are 21 years of age and over are to check a prepared statement on the ballot that they are at least 21 years of age.

Three sets of data will be collected from the straw vote—the presidential preference of all the students who vote, of those over 21, and of those under 21.

The results of the vote will be publicized by various media, including radio, TV, and newspaper.

Student Art Teachers Choose Officers For Upcoming Year

Officers were elected during the first business session of the newly affiliated Student Art Teachers Association, a student chapter of the National Art Education Association. New officers are, President, Barbara Wilder; Vice-President, Mary Howard Lipscomb; Secretary-treasurer, Nelyne Allan; alternate Secretary, Sandra Davis; Social Chairman, Lorraine Hedges; Faculty sponsor is Fred Metake, Jr., associate professor of art education and constructive design. Dr. Ivan Johnson, head of the art education and constructive design dept. of FSU spoke at the second fall meeting on the purposes of the organization and the opportunity for personal and professional growth through active participation. "The art educator in a community," said Dr. Johnson, "does well to associate with others in his wide attention and will become a professional group by attending local, state, regional, and national meetings of the association whenever possible." "This contact provides atmosphere for exchange of ideas and discussion of problems they face," he said. Johnson stressed that continued professional growth of the teacher is vital if he is to offer effective services to the community in which he teaches. Dr. Johnson is a long time supporter of the organization has held offices of president of the Western Art Assoc. and both vice-president and president of the National Art Education Assoc. He is presently on the editorial board of the organization's journal, "Art Education." Christmas projects and means of raising money for the association are under way. The student art show in March of this year drew much attention and will become an annual event.

STEP FORWARD WITH FORD MOTOR COMPANY

An Open Letter to the 1965 College Graduate from Donald N. Frey, Assistant General Manager, Ford Division of Ford Motor Company

Donald N. Frey was awarded a master's degree in metallurgical engineering by the University of Michigan in 1957 and a doctorate in 1959. One year later, he joined Ford Motor Company as manager of the Metallurgical Department in the Scientific Laboratory. In 1962, Dr. Frey was appointed assistant general manager of the Ford Division with responsibility for all engineering, product planning and purchasing activities. He is 41 years old.

America's automobile industry is in the midst of a challenging era, with prospects of an even more exciting and demanding tempo in the years to come. Ford Motor Company is determined to achieve leadership in all phases of its operation. This leadership promises to bring lasting success to the company, its employees and its stockholders.

It will take people to accomplish this objective. Engineering, finance, styling, marketing, product planning, sales—all require people with the knowledge, judgment and personal drive to avail themselves of the unprecedented opportunities offered by a great industry.

The automobile business is growing. More cars are being bought now than ever before. With increases in population and consumer buying power, even more will be bought in the future. Realizing this, Ford Motor Company seeks to attract college graduates who have the capacity to grow with the company and the market.

Right now, our plans call for employing about a thousand of the best 1965 graduates we can find, with all types of educational backgrounds. We need specialists, but we also need persons with broad liberal-arts training who can handle a wide variety of assignments. Actually, in our company, many graduates grow into jobs totally unrelated to their degrees. They have discovered that Ford offers intellectually challenging opportunities for those with the ability to seize them. We invite you to make the same discovery.

Contact your Placement Office and arrange to see our representative.

SOCCER CLUB: The FSU Soccer Club travels to Jacksonville this weekend for a game between the Seminole team and the Dolphins of Jacksonville University.

The team will hold a practice Saturday before the game. They will leave Sunday morning for the East Coast. All members are required to come to the practice to participate in the game Sunday.

For further information, call Doug Padgett at 222-0208.

BOWLING CLUB: The Beasts, Lucky Strikes, and the Holi-Rollers face the foul lines tonight defending their lead over the Thursday Mixers. Bowling will begin at 7 p.m. The teams are tied with a 6-2 record. The Beasts have a 68 total pin lead over Lucky Strikes and a 161 pin count above the Holi-Rollers.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: The Tuesday-Thursday league championship game will be played this afternoon at 5:15 p.m. The schedule can be located outside the women's locker room.

Due to last week's rain, the archery schedule will be the same as for last week.

The golf tournament continues this weekend on Saturday. Girls can participate in the morning session at 8 a.m. or in the afternoon at 3 p.m. A car will be provided to and from the University Golf course. Players are to be in front of Montgomery Gym at the scheduled times.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Playoffs for the flag football team start Monday with the Championship game scheduled November 2 at 4:10 p.m.

The bowling intramurals roll this afternoon in the second day of a four day tournament. Fourteen 5 man teams bowl 3 games with total pin fall determining the winner in a single elimination match.

Badminton and Ping Pong get underway Monday in Tully Gym with Ping Pong beginning at 4:10 p.m. and Badminton played in the evening at 7 p.m.

INTRAMURAL RESULTS: Pi Kappa Alpha defeated Pi Kappa Phi 24-0, Sigma Nu overran Delta Chi 20-0, Phi Delta Theta beat Theta Chi 26-6, Pi Kappa Tau and Sigma Chi played to a deadlock at 13-13, and Lambda Chi edged out a victory over Pi Kappa Psi 6-2.

CHESS CLUB: The Chess Club will travel to Gainesville this weekend for the Florida Student Tournament sponsored by Gainesville High School. The tournament is open to all high school and college students who wish to compete.

The club is making plans for a match with the Yellow Jackets of Georgia for next month.

'Magnificent Seven' - Minus One Meet Schweickert, Utz, And VPI Gobblers

The "Magnificent Seven" will be without the services of one of their ball players when the Seminoles travel to Blacksburg, Virginia to meet the VPI Gobblers.

Coach Bill Peterson said today that Frank Pennie will not play because of illness. Pennie is under the care of a doctor.

Peterson said today that the team is feeling ready for this game. He said that they were a little down after the Georgia game, after suffering a blow to their pride. But, he continued, they are all right now and ready to go.

This week of practice may cause the defense also polished up their game around the goal line. Last week they allowed two touchdowns in the game around the goal line. Last week yardage.

The VPI defense some consternation. Peterson said that the team had been working on the passing game and had developed some new pass plays.

The Tribe already has one of the diversified and deadly passing attacks in the nation. Built around flanker Fred Biletnikoff and quarterback Steve Tensi.

Coach Pete also said that the defensive team had been working to find the way to stop Gobbler quarterback Bob Schweickert and fullback Sonny Utz. He called these two the best quarterback-fullback combination the Tribe will face this year.

Safari Continues Tonight In Gym

Gymnastics continues tonight in Tully Gym at 7:30 p.m. with a show in which the gymnastic team, the Tallahassee Tumbling Tots, and the Gymbark Court are featured.

The theme of the show centers around African "Safari."

Beginning with a number called "Familiar Pursuit," the show precedes along the jungle trail narrated by the master of ceremonies, Larry Vargo.

The Gymbark Court enters in a number entitled "At the Water Hole" followed by a vaulting table act called "Elephant Leap."

Various other acts include "Safari Land" with a girl's drill team; a lion's roar act, "Monkey Maneuvers" and "Slink-Snakes" with eleven parallel bars.

The grand finale will feature the Gymbark Pledge and Dolores Lord.

Dance Tomorrow

The University Union dance committee will sponsor a jukebox dance tomorrow night from 8-11 in the Union Ballroom of the University Union.

Refreshments will be 25 cents star or 10 cents cash.

Circle K Sunday

The Kappa chapter of Circle K International will meet Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. in the Club Room of Longline.

Greeks Issue Pow-Wow Statement

FSU Joint Panhellenic and Interfraternity councils have issued the following statement concerning the 1964 Pow Wow:

"The Interfraternity and the Panhellenic Councils in accord would like to issue the following statement in hopes of clearing up many misunderstandings and misconceptions involving disciplinary action growing out of the 1964 Pow Wow parodies.

"Following the announcement of disciplinary action, to the groups involved, a meeting was called Monday October 19 of all fraternity and sorority organizations.

"In two consecutive meetings of this kind a final statement of appeal was drawn up and approved Wednesday morning in a special meeting.

"This followed an earlier draft that had been drawn up and was used as a basis for the final statement."

"The original draft was placed with President Blackwell Tuesday morning; but, due to time and circumstance, could not be discussed with the representatives of the Councils at that time.

"The final statement, clarifying points presented in the original draft, was given early Wednesday afternoon to President Blackwell. Later that afternoon Jim Brandt, IFC president, Debby Allen, Panhellenic president, and Joyce Kilian, representing John Merting, student body president, were requested to meet with Dr. Blackwell at 10:00 Thursday morning."

"The final statement considered in the Thursday morning meeting in effect said that in the light of circumstances leading up to the Pow Wow and involving subsequent investigation, the fraternity and sorority responsibility for the incident did not warrant the severe penalties imposed."

"The statement did not attempt to defend the poor judgement used in the presentation of the skits. Neither did it claim that we did not we were without responsibility concerning the incident."

"We feel that our appeal was completely and fairly considered by Dr. Blackwell."

"Evolving from this meeting was not only a clearer understanding of the action taken on the Pow Wow, but the initiation of a beneficial channel of communication between administration and students."

"We continue to believe the penalties are too severe in nature, but a proper course of action has been mutually decided upon by the Greeks and the administration. We sincerely hope this course of action will be enlarged upon to encompass all students at FSU."

"We feel that through rational group approach our appeal was fairly considered. The result was a clearer understanding of the need for a better channel of communication between students and administration."

"The Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils are attempting to lead the way to future utilization of these channels by independents as well as Greeks."

Coffee Hour Today

Director Richard Fallon will speak on "A Man For All Seasons" at the English Coffee Hour today at 4:10 p.m. in the Westminister House, Student Government chairman of the Coffee Hour, Jeanne Williamson, said, "The Coffee Hour last week with Dr. F. Townsend as speaker was very well attended."

"All students, faculty, and staff are invited to come today as we feel that we're lucky to have the Coffee Hour again this year," she stressed.

The English dept. had discontinued the Coffee Hour due to the slight interest last spring. The Student Government and the "Flambeau" felt that there was enough interest to plan the reorganization.

Eight Speakers To Lecture On Juvenile Court Problems Today

Eight speakers, including five judges, will discuss problems and practices of juvenile courts in Florida at a two-day forum in the Library Lecture Hall today and tomorrow.

Speakers for the first session at 2 p.m. today will be Sgt. Harry Wallace of the Lakeland Police Dept.; John W. Hamilton, assistant counselor of the Polk County Juvenile Court; Judge G. Rowdon Hunt, Domestic Relations Court of Polk County; and David Walters, director of the Training School for Boys at Marianna.

Paul A. Urvach president of the Florida Correctional Association at FSU, said the speakers would alternate in presenting similar programs at Florida A. and M. University.

'Cherry Orchard' Tryouts Set

Try-outs for "The Cherry Orchard" will be Monday and Tuesday in Conradi Theatre at 7 p.m.

"The Cherry Orchard" promises to be one of the most challenging and exciting shows selected by the University Theatre. Dr. Arthur Dorlag noted in discussing the upcoming production.

The cast is made up of ten men and five women, each requiring a variety of characterizations.

"This play," Dorlag stated "has been a constant subject of controversy since its premiere by the Moscow Art Theatre."

"Some people, including the director Stanislavski, saw it as a sad and somber piece of dramatic work. But conversely, the playwright, Chekhov insisted, and most modern critics agree, that it is a comedy," Dorlag explained.

Some of the play's characters have to go through such emotional and comical experiences as mooring like a dog, frequent tears, pretending to play billiards, strumming a guitar and dancing the Russian version of the American square dance.

Dorlag also noted, "Someone has said the play is like a long poem, it has to go through a completely detailed analysis and to try and summarize it would do the play a great injustice." There are translations available in the library and the theatre office in 115 History.

LBJ Material Given

Young Citizens for Johnson and Young Democrats are requested to meet at the University parking lot, tomorrow at 10 a.m. to pass out literature in Tallahassee.

'Pete' Wants To Rewrite Last Year's Gobbler Clash

Anybody who has anything to do with FSU football, from coach to concession salesman, will remember October 26, 1963.

The scene was Doak Campbell Stadium and the occasion was FSU's fumbling away a 31-23 decision to Virginia Poly.

Tomorrow, a year later, it'll be the same two foes with much the same cast, played on a different stage. And Coach Bill Peterson hopes to rewrite the 1963 script with a throwing, thrashing offense, and a thundering, thwarting defense.

It's game number six for both teams and to date the Seminoles sport a much more impressive slate—it's clean.

Only the tenacious Georgia Bulldogs have thrown a scare into Florida State Football fortunes for '84. But not even their sheer determination could change the results on the Athens scoreboard last Saturday. And until the NCAA starts ruling on something else besides points, 17 to 14 still wins.

Two weeks running the Seminoles have been ranked as the nation's tenth football power. And, at the risk of sounding overconfident, prospects look very good for the rest of the season culminating on November 21st. That's when the Florida Gators, now ranked ninth, come to Tallahassee for what could easily be the biggest game in the state's history. But that's all a month away. FSU takes to Blacksburg the stingy Magnificent Seven (no need for quotation marks this late in the season). This week they'll be without the services of Frank Pennie in the forward wall, but word is Coach Pete and the defensive brain trust have an excellent replacement chomping at the chin strap.

These stouthearted lads hope to spend the afternoon in the VPI backfield pursuing tricky Tech signal caller, Bob Schweickert.

Reports indicate VPI fears the bomb. That is, the long bomb from FSU's Tall, Cool One, Steve Tensi, to indefensible Fred Eilenhoff. Both on the long and short routes the passing game has been nothing less than outstanding. And the talented young running backs will be looking for those wide open spaces.

Virginia Tech enter the battle with two wins and three losses, and so far don't look like the same band that rolled up a 1963 rally of 8-2 to win the Southern Conference.

The offense may be a sleeper.

SEND-OFF AT 12:30

"Give the football team a big send off," said Coach Bill Peterson today. Go to the Tallahassee airport at 12:30 p.m. today to see them off to Blacksburg, Va. and the VPI Gobblers.

Spoon River' Premier On Campus Tomorrow

"Spoon River," the haunting, heart-warming, and hilarious portrait of American life in the Middle West at the turn of the century will be a presented tomorrow evening in Vestcon Auditorium at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are now available at the Vestcon ticket window but there is still a limited supply remaining. Students are required to present their stamped I.D. cards in order to attend their tickets. "Spoon River" is the product of the fertile mind of Charles Aldman who conceived and adapted the stage presentation from Edgar L. Masters' "Spoon River Anthology."

Masters' observation of people and life evoke the sights, the sounds, and the smells of a specific time and place, and this time and place is at the same time universal. The passions and lives of "SPOON RIVER" are the passions and lives of today, too. The husband who lets his wife destroy him; the wife who honestly felt he was worth destroying; these are among the characters found in every era. In attending the performances it is imperative to be there prior to curtain time at 8:30 p.m. No one will be seated after the curtain time until intermission.

Johnson Stomps Goldwater in Straw Political Vote Thursday

The results of last Thursday's FSU referendum preference vote gave President Lyndon B. Johnson a large margin over Sen. Barry Goldwater here on the FSU campus. Over 1000 students participated in the contest which gave President Johnson 54.95% of the vote and his Republican opponent 41.05%. Numerically, these figures break down to a 125 vote plurality of 1121 to 597 for President Johnson. The straw poll vote was given under the bipartisan sponsorship of the FSU Young Citizens for Johnson and Youth for Goldwater groups. Three sets of data were tabulated from the vote which included: (1) the 21 and over voters; (2) those under 21; and (3) the overall campus vote.

Of the over 21 voters, Johnson carried 62 percent with 439 votes, as compared to Goldwaters 268 votes and 38 percentage. Of the under 21 voters, Johnson carried 56.39% of the votes and Goldwater 43.61%. Overall vote gives 1121 to 59.95% for Johnson and 797 or 41.05% for Goldwater.

Examination of the data reveals a sizeable Johnson plurality in all three categories. However, the voters over 21 tended to vote heavier for Johnson than did those under 21. Goldwater, on the other hand, tended to draw better among those under 21, but his 43% margin there still indicates his minority position among the younger participants.

According to Glen Lausberg, chairman of the Young Citizens for Johnson, since the figures listed here do not include the undecided, the apathetic, and those who will change their vote in the final week of the campaign, it is difficult to predict exactly how FSU will vote on Nov. 3.

The results of this year's vote have been compared to a similar poll taken on campus in 1960. In 1960 Richard Nixon defeated John F. Kennedy in a close race sponsored by the FSU Student Government, 1278 to 1122.

On the basis of the difference between the 1960 and 1964 results, this comparison reflects a change in the political climate on the FSU campus or else the voters permitted Republican voters are voting for Johnson, according to Lausberg.

The vote on campus seems to closely parallel the findings of the national Gallup and Harris polls in both 1960 and 1964. In 1960, Nixon and Kennedy were running in a neck and neck nationally as well as at FSU.

William Miller Here For Address Today

Youth for Goldwater-Miller announced that Rep. William E. Miller, the Republican nominee for Vice-President of the U. S., will arrive in Tallahassee today for an address from the Capitol steps at 2:40 p.m. Miller will lead a motorcade directly to the airport at 4 p.m. He is the first of the candidates for the nation's highest offices to make an appearance in Tallahassee. Miller has served in the House of Representatives nearly 14 years and is a prominent member of the House Committee on the Judiciary.

In 1948, Miller was named an assistant prosecutor to the late Supreme Court Justice, Robert A. Jackson, and played a major role in the prosecution of Nazi war criminals during the famous trials at Nuremberg, Germany.

The Representative became the Chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee in 1960. The following year, he filled the position of Chairman of the Republican National Committee.

Tragedy Called 'Picture Of All'

By SALLYANNE HAFKAKER Assistant News Editor

Ricard Fallon called "A Man For All Seasons" a "beautiful picture of us all," when speaking at the English Coffee Hour, Friday afternoon in the Westminster House. Fallon said he was not an authority on Sir Thomas More, the character in the Robert Goltz play performed by the University Theatre last week, but that he spoke only as an authority on one produced at "A Man For All Seasons."

"Three Penny Opera" provided the basis for Bolt's ideas on what he called "alienation." He used many devices such as having a character speak directly to the audience to shock them and prevent them from becoming too engrossed in the play.

Fallon stressed the role of the Common Man who he says explains the point of what the author is saying. The Common Man provides the subplot for the main plot which is the story of More.

The Common Man is showing "you that we're all part of every century." Fallon thinks that there is one thing that Bolt wants to say and that is "in the midst of tragedy of a great man whom we've made a saint, is the Common Man."

The problem in the play, Fallon thinks, is the conflict of keeping an oath to the king and an oath to God at the same time. There "is not a person in the play without a conscience," he said.

Fallon says that "More trusted society." He wanted to maintain his individuality - conscience - in the midst of a changing society. More stood still because he could alter his principles but not his convictions.

"We can't alter our convictions because that is what makes us ourselves," Fallon added. The theme which he sees in the play is "the tragedy of a man of us all - that we trust in society and that society fails to live by its own convictions."

"The people who executed More are the people who failed to live by their own faith and conscience," he stressed. This Friday Dean Laurence Chalcraft will speak on "Humanities in an Age of Natural Science, by a Social Scientist" at the Coffee Hour at 4:10 p.m. in Westminster House.

recedy to the Capitol and will return to the airport at 4 p.m. He is the first of the candidates for the nation's highest offices to make an appearance in Tallahassee.

Professor Levine Delivers Address

Professor David Levine delivered one of the addresses published in the proceedings of an institute on "Public Health Nurses in a State Replication Program" at Grotto, Conn. Levine recommended that community services for the mentally retarded be related to "the specific" which give rise to retardation.

"There must be related to better maternity care, to better programs of nutrition, to the reduction of perinatal mortality, to comprehensive family services, to the introduction of legislation, to day care centers to fill the gaps in pre-school intellectual stimulation for children," he said.

Absentee Ballots Due

This is the final week for all absentee students to register for absentee ballots in pre-school intellectual stimulation for children," he said. Although deadline dates vary from county to county, it is important to send for registration applications immediately. For further information about a particular county in Florida, students may call the Leon County Supervisor of Registration at 227-4043.

Greek Activities Benefit Community

One charter has been yanked; still other chapters are on probation. An overabundance of letters are damning and chastising the Greeks of FSU.

After all, those gross and mischievous fraternity men and snobbish sorority girls must be put in their place. Imagined it is a disgrace that our Greeks are irresponsible, crude, immature, phony, belligerent, bellicose, etc., etc., etc.

Yes, we must all "H'm 'em again, 'em again, harder, harder." "Hoi! We have nothing to lose but our miserable activities."

Yet, I must point out to those enlightened reformers, who would probably like to see Jonathan Edwards replace President Blackwell as the head of our university, that you do have more to lose than your passions.

For instance, it happens to be the policy of the Inter-Fraternity Council to appropriate $100 from their treasury for the "Legend," which is read and enjoyed by all of the students of FSU.

For instance, the Homecoming Queen, who represents the entire university, on this most important occasion, is sponsored by those "gross" fraternity men of FSU. For instance, the majority of students that participate in student government, and do not default upon their responsibility to their alma mater, are Greeks. And let us not forget, that it was, to a great degree, through the efforts of the FSU student government that the dream of a new student union became a reality.

For instance, those magnificent and extremely expensive homecoming floats that were rolling through the streets of Tallahassee for the benefit of the student body, denizens of Tallahassee and our illustrious alumni, represent the efforts of the Greek community.

For instance, those students that had the courage to candidly portray college life as it is, and to actually uphold the students' right to freedom of expression at the Pow Wow, were Greeks.

Now this is all not to say that the Greeks are perfect—they aren't. They should concentrate more of their efforts on studies, community service and in aiding charities. When they say that they will do something, such as aid in the distribution of polio vaccine, they should meet their commitments. However, the benefits of the Greek community far outweigh their drawbacks.

The Greeks are important at FSU, and they merit the praise of the student body and the administration, and they should not be the scapegoat for university shortcomings or the whipping-boy of the malcontents.

Y.A.F. Won't Debate

To the Editor:

What is wrong with the Young Americans for Freedom on this campus? Why are the YAF'ers so unwilling to debate important issues themselves? Why must they bring in a "big gun" from outside to do their work for them?

It wasn't too long ago that Fulton Lewis III was on this campus. YAF at that time had issued a challenge to any student or faculty member who was willing to debate Lewis on one of a number of topics. I accepted that challenge, only to be turned down by YAF because I was considered "too conservative."

When my roommate heard the reason (or excuse) for my being rejected he just about choked to death. "You, a conservative," he chorused, "Well, it all depends on the way you look at it," I said.

If the members of YAF are sincere in their desire to have important political issues debated on campus, let them word the proposition to be debated, issue the challenge to debate to any of their fellow students who are interested, arrange for a public meeting somewhere on the campus, give a reasonable time for their opponents to prepare, and most importantly, have lead YAF'ers from the FSU campus (students if you please) debate a case side of the question.

But to ask an inexperienced person to grapple with problems in opposition to a skillful and experienced debater is to ask that person to make a fool of himself. If the YAF'ers really want the issues debated, they must be willing to debate the issues themselves.

Upholds Security Police

To the Editor:

What is the role of the Campus policeman?

Is it to baby sit with college students, to follow them around and play watchdog, or is he the person we make fun of when we get away with some act that is strictly hairy-high school?

Example—pulling letters off the front of buildings, or knowing his limitations and taking advantage of them. We know we can get away with it.

These instances and others have prompted me to look into the campus police situation. I started asking and finding out some facts. One Tuesday, Oct. 13, which was there only one patrolman on the streets of FSU? Why? Money (lack of), that's why.

I asked myself another question: What do Jr., Sr., and Graduate students find pleasure in breaking the rules and regulations pertaining to the driving on campus between the hours of 7:30 A.M. - 3 P.M.?

Proof—on Tuesday 10/13/84 between 11:15 a.m. and 12 noon at the West entrance to "Campus" (corner of Park and Woodward Ave.) 29 cars entered campus.

Of these 29 cars (now on campus), 10 bore the Blue Restricted (local) on the bumper. 10 had no seal at all and the 3 remaining were Staff and Faculty. Do these 10 students think they are getting away with anything?

They drive on campus with the thought in their mind of not getting caught; they are breaking the regulations that fellow students and faculty have spent many hours working on.

A sign says ONE WAY—we don't drive down that street the "wrong" way just to see if we get away with it. Then why do students persist in driving on the "Campus" when they know it is against the Traffic Regulations?

When are the students (with cars) of FSU going to show they deserve the fame and responsibility the Administration, Students' Gov., and our football team, among others, are trying to earn for us as a great University.

Jazz Deserves More Public Attention

This writer contends that a large portion of society has not been exposed to the world of jazz or the life of jazzmen.

Consequently, the familiar glare of public disapproval is often directed to the dimly lit nightclubs, back-lot jam sessions, and so-called drunken brawls where the avant-garde of the art form in question translate their innermost thoughts into music.

These progressive individuals are, in general, labeled with negative terms, slapped about by society, and excluded from civic responsibility. Even the best jazz musicians will not admit that their profession is synonymous with security and social prominence. They will, however, readily concede that music is a true medium for creativity. And they have a point.

Jazz is the musician who plays it, it's such a personal expression of emotion, that no one definition can truly apply, in an attempt to analyze the term, though, certain characteristics are evident.

Improvisation, syncopated rhythms, and counterpoint (the blending of two independent melodies into a single harmonic texture in which both melodies can be individually recognized) are standard components.

Sensitivity and a rare emotional depth are prerequisites. Jazz is a free-lancer's paradise, it has few constraints, plays like with arrangers, but can readily be adapted to the personality of the artist.

As Pete Fountain phrased it when he divorced himself from Lawrence Welk's outfit, "Jazz is law and square is square, and never the twain shall meet, nor should be as an insult, he was expressing a dislike for restrictive composition. Spontaneity and humor are often found in the jazz idiom. The former is so closely related to improvisation that the two are almost indistinguishable. Propelled by the rhythmic section of an ensemble, the soloist has a limited amount of time in which to express himself.

The latter is an outgrowth of a good mood and is usually a riddle. But, as in the case of Bill Evans in his "Conversations With Myself" album, there are times when humor is so forthright that it is unmistakable.

Widely publicized, most people are aware that the language of jazzmen differs considerably from the norm. Where the common man might say, "If you'll advance me ten dollars, I'll come to the rehearsal," the musician will inevitably cut corners and intone something resembling, "Flap me a ten and I'll make the sessions."

Other examples might include "It floats" instead of "That arranged in a beautiful," "You're in the groove" or "You're on top" in place of "You're performing at your best," and "See you at the jam" in lieu of "I'll meet you at the job."

This careless use of language is a clue to an understanding of the music these jazzmen handle so well. In speech and at their "figs," the inflection of a sentence or musical phrase indicates an expected action. In short, concepts are dealt with rather than words, chords instead of individual notes.

Big band jazz deserves considerable attention, I'm not only referring to the powerful impact of an eighteen piece dance band—screaming brass, rippling phony, mellow woodwinds, and a pulsating rhythm section—but also, and more specifically, to the unit sound that radiates from the organized ensemble. It is essential, of course, that the Big Band be fundamentally organized. It would be foolish to expect jelling of a worthwhile from eighteen different musicians playing in their own style.

The "planned sound" should be distinguished, however, from restrictive arrangements. Jazz, out of necessity, is extremely liberal. Although a composition may have a basic scheme, it will not be outlined in detail.

The resulting freedom of expression gives the jazz musician ample time to "fake" or improvise in his own style. Creativity is not hindered.

I think, without hesitation, of the Count Basie aggregation when I hear the phrase "Big Band jazz." His group, with its crisp trumpet work and complementary minor sax solos, is the perfect example of the unit sound. Other notables include the Hampton, Benny Goodman, and Gene Krupa.

Jazz can never truly gain in status until the critical, and in most cases, bigoted, public, takes a closer look to something it does not fully understand.

Here at FSU, you may ask, what can be done to lift jazz above harsh, unreasonable criticism? Two attempts should be made.

In the first place, a more rounded collection of recordings should be shelved in our music library. Personally enjoy classical music, but feel there should be a variety of discs for those of us who find it interesting.

Secondly, you, the reader, might expose yourself to jazz recordings. And after the first number, don't falter. Turn up the volume and play the flip side—it usually flows.

Campus Cops 'Asinine'?

To the Editor:

Saturday, partly as a result of the exciting Georgia game, and because we needed some exercise, four of us fellows decided to throw a football around amongst ourselves. After a brief search for a place to play, we found a small practice field (just befitting for four) behind the University School across from Nat-Sal.

We had just begun to play when out of nowhere appeared two campus cops, dressed in ominous blue and with gun holsters hanging loosely at their sides. They were obviously expecting trouble—or looking for it.

The game stopped abruptly as they stuffed us to us. There was a moment of silence as one of them mustered up all his respect and esteem for the FSU student body and then said as politely as he could, "You guys better git out here."

We were startled. Our first reaction was "Why?" Had there been a robbery? Were there vandals in the area? Was there a group of Florida High students who wanted to use the tiny practice field?

Our immediate answer was no. There was only the whistling of the wind through the nearby bushes near which two young girls (ages 7-10) were practicing handstands, and around the playground equipment where another fellow was quietly working out on the parallel bars.

"You had a cop with a gruff voice as he came to shove the two little girls. "No one is supposed to play here. Now git out!"

"Rules?" we thought as we left the practice field. Who could be so asinine? Who could be so void as to devise such a "rule?" Florida State has had many fines. Children have been thrown out of vacant lots; they have been thrown off streets; but this is the first time they have been thrown out of a playground!

Congratulations, "Officers!"

Turkey Tumble Touted Tribe Despite Fleet Fred

By BOB CORNET

Flambeau Sports Editor

Fred Biletnikoff couldn't do it twice. Despite his breaking two FSU pass catching records out gaining the entire VPI passing offense, and contributing eight of FSU's 11 points, he couldn't bring the Tribe from behind as he did last week in Athens, Ga.

The VPI Gobblers were beaten everywhere in the statistics except in the score. There they had the Seminoles' 5 down 20-11 in Saturday's Gobbler Homecoming.

The man most responsible for knocking off the Tribe was VPI quarterback Bob Schweickert. He passed for one touchdown on a sneaky tackle eligible play. He personally contributed the two other scores on five-yard scoring jaunts. The Tribe got their two scores on a nine yard field goal by Les Muddock in the first quarter and a four yard pass from Steve Tensi to Biletnikoff in the fourth quarter.

Biletnikoff also picked up the two point conversion on a pass from Ed Fritchett. After the conversion a frustrated Biletnikoff threw the ball into the booby VPI stands.

The Gobblers capitalized on offensive impotence inside the 20's and two interceptions to beat the high rolling Seminoles. The tribe was in scoring position five times without crossing the VPI goal line.

The first Gobbler score came after one of the interceptions in the second quarter. Ken Whitley stole a Tensi pass on the VPI 46 and ran it back to the FSU 31.

Schweickert and fullback Sonny Utz ran the club down to the 19 where the Tribe held for two plays. Showing extreme guile, the VPIers decided to dig up the tackle-eligible play for the first touchdown of the afternoon.

The Gobblers picked up their next tally on a 55 yard drive, aided by a clipping penalty. Reserve quarterback Bobby Owea plugged the team to the 19 where Schweickert came in to get the TD on five yard sweep.

When Tensi tried to rally the Tribe in the early part of the fourth quarter he ended up throwing the game away as he had his second pass intercepted.

John Ratble ran the punt return back 30 yards to the FSU five where Schweickert again ran the ball over for the tally that tied the game.

Intramurals Begin Playoffs

CHESS CLUB: FSU's number one chess player, Robert Ludlow challenges all comers to a simultaneous chess exhibition to be held tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Lafayette Community Center.

Ludlow will play over 25 games simultaneously. Any person who can beat or play him to a draw will win a chess book. Everyone is invited to the match either as a spectator or participant.

SAILING ASSOCIATION: Due to the increased interest in the Sailing Club, which now numbers over 60 members, the club is planning on buying six more Flying Junior vessels to assure boats being available for pleasure sailing.

Future plans of the club include a "Sorority Saturday" during which all sorority girls will be invited for a day of sailing.

Anyone interested in joining the club can obtain a membership card for five dollars in room 15 of Longmire. Members must pass a swimming test or wear life jackets in order to participate.

BOWLING CLUB: In a close touch and go battle, the Four Roses edged out a seven pin victory over the Kingpins to win the third game and total pins. They take over the league lead by the slim margin of 366 pins as the Blue Devils moved into second place taking four games from the Kaguans. Both teams are tied with a 11-5 record. The Kingpins hold third position by 144 pins over Amor with a record of 10-4.

Dave Peoples led the scoring as he converted the 6-7 split for a 202-531, followed by Gary Hainline with a 177-484, and Richard Seward 168-477. Don Peoples made his first split conversion as he picked up the 5-10 split. Mike Selznick made the 3-9-10. Sherry Southard made the 3-10 as she rolled a 182 game. Bill Malthouse, Charles Spencer, and Phyllis Boutwell also converted the 3-10.

INTRAMURALS: All intramurals volleyball, tennis, archery, and golf.

begin league playoffs and semi-final B and C and ping pong tournaments.

AFROTC Slates Formal Dine-In For Ballroom C

The Air Force ROTC Detachment at FSU is having a formal "Dining-In" for all advanced cadets Thursday at the University Union.

The dining-in is a formal dinner function for members of a military organization or unit.

The guest of honor and speaker for the affair will be Colonel James M. Keck, Commander of the 465th Heavy Bombardment Wing, Robins Air Force Base, Georgia.

While its origin is obscured by the passage of the centuries it is believed to have begun as a custom in the Roman Empire, was adopted by the early universities, and later spread to military units when the officers' mess was established.

Its purpose is to bring the cadets together in order to create an atmosphere of comradeship, social respect and to further their appreciation of the value and tradition of the military life of an Air Force Officer.

Prizes Awarded

The Creative and Interfraternity Literary Awards have voted to donate $100 to be awarded for outstanding creative writing published in the Literary and Literary anthology, Letter to the Editor, Carolyn Christensen, Editor.

The awards are in progress for giving a prize to the creative writing contest in which the winning short story, poetry, and essays will receive cash awards. Art work used in the magazine layout and cover will also receive prize money.

Interfraternity President Debby Allen said that the group was "glad to help encourage creative literary effort on campus."

Any student interested in submitting creative writing or art work may send or take typed, double-spaced manuscripts to the Legend office, 332 University Union.

Students should be sure to keep a copy of their entry, as manuscripts will not be returned, Miss Christensen said.

Show Set For FSU Band Day

Downtown parades, pre-game and half-time shows at the FSU-Southern Mississippi game are in store for some 2500 young bandmen who will be on campus Saturday for FSU's Band Day.

Coming from a 150 mile radius of the city and from the states of Georgia, Alabama and Florida, 47 bands will begin the day with a strenuous schedule of rehearsals. From 4 to 5 p.m. the bandmen will parade through downtown Tallahassee, after which the bands will go to Campbell Stadium where they'll be on hand for the game at 7 p.m. Bands will fill the air as some 200 twirlers present a colorful twirling review as a pre-game spectacle.

"Political Spectacular" will be the title of the halftime show, to be opened by the Marching Chiefs.

Twist In Westcott

Due to the incompletion of Moore Auditorium, the Classic Film Series presentation of "Oliver Twist" will be shown in Westcott Wednesday evening.

There will be only one showing at 7:30 and admission is $3.50.

Oliver Twist is a superb rendition of the delightful Dickens novel with Robert Newton, Alec Guinness, Kay Walsh and Francis L. Sullivan.

Phillips Outlines UN Problems At Banquet Friday

J. Paul Phillips, special assistant to the assistant secretary of state for international organization affairs, was guest speaker for the United Nations Day Dinner, in Ballroom B of the new University Union Friday night.

Phillips, who has recently returned from Geneva and conferences on peaceful uses of atomic energy, spoke on the United Nations.

He said the Soviets were on a collision course with the statute in the U.N. Charter which stipulates that they will lose their vote in the U.N. unless they pay their U.N. debts.

Phillips said that nine of ten Americans, according to polls, back the U.N. and that "the only things un-American in the U.N. are the delegates, and it would be pretty useless without them."

"The Russians have a lot stronger case that the U.N. is un-Russian, than we do that it's un-American."

He also brought out that "We participate in more international conferences today. In one year, than we did in the entire time from George Washington's administration until after WW II."

He pointed out present world problems in comparison to those of 20 years ago, relating that "Nations began a change of policy and the world of today was born. It is now a world of growing diversity."

"In this world it is in our best interest to have a world organization such as the United Nations," he continued.

In conclusion he stated that "In the long run, international action through the United Nations is one of the most realistic ways for Americans to have a hand in shaping this malleable world in the image we want for ourselves, and our children and our children's children. And that, after all, should be a true American Nationalist goal."

Seating Subject Of Men's Senate

The seating at the FSU-Florida game was discussed at Men's Senate last week and it was pointed out that the contract specified a certain number of grandstand seats and not end zone seats were to be given to Florida.

There will be a 10 yard difference in seating between the FSU-Florida students.

The matter of giving preference to married students for date tickets will be given further consideration.

The idea of eliminating block seating for the game was deemed unnecessary since after a certain time limit the blocks are open to all individuals.

'Kansas City Poetry Contests' Released By Newspaper Editor

Cash prizes of $1,500 and a book published have been announced in the second Kansas City Poetry Contests by Thorpe Menn, literary editor of the "Kansas City Star."

Hallmark Cards, Inc. of Kansas City will offer six honor awards totaling $100 to college students for single poems.

The Dr. Edward A. Devine Award offers a cash payment of $500 for a book-length manuscript that will be published and distributed by the University of Missouri Press. The $500 is for the guaranteed advance royalty payment, with the total value of the award determined by the sales.

All entries will be judged anonymously. The names of the judges, all nationally recognized poets, and criticisms will be withheld until the contest is decided. Entrants must submit their work with no clue as to authorship by enclosing their names in a sealed envelope attached to the entry.

Information on submitting entries may be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Contest Directors, P.O. Box 306, Kansas City, Missouri, 64141.

Closing date for submission of all entries is Feb. 1965. Winners will be announced April 29.

Prize Books In Library Exhibit

Nineteen prize-winning books of the Southern Books Competition are on exhibit at the FSU Library.

One is authored by Dr. Ruth Breen, FSU professor of biological sciences. Her book on mosses has won another award previously in addition to the Southern Books Competition which covers the geographical area from Virginia to Arizona.

The exhibit of prize-winning books will continue through Tuesday. Located on the first floor of the Stryzier Library to the right of the circulation desk, it is free and open to the public.

FSU Wrestling Team Meets Tomorrow

WRESTLING CLUB: A required meeting for the wrestling team is scheduled for tomorrow night, 7:30 p.m. in Room 206, Tully Gym. Members, both old and new, will elect officers at this time and Dr. Miller will be the guest speaker.

Organized practices begin Nov. 2 and the first meet of the season takes place against Tampa at Tampa, Dec. 5. The team is anxious to bring a "first in the state" record back to the wrestling team for its new coach, Jack Chevrette. Everyone is welcome to watch the games and practices.

CHESS CLUB: Robert Ludlow, the number one man on the FSU Chess Club takes on all comers tonight in a simultaneous chess match to be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Lafayette Community Center.

Anyone defeating Ludlow or drawing him will win a chess book. The contest is open to all interested people.

GOLF TOURNAMENT: Phi Epsilon Kappa, the men's professional physical education fraternity will sponsor its annual "Hole in One" tournament, Saturday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the student par-3 course text to Campbell Stadium.

The money will be used for a scholarship fund. Three balls for a quarter will be given out for different categories such as pitching wedges and golf balls for fraternity-security winners.

All students are invited to join in the fun, try for a prize and contribute to a great fund.

SOCCER CLUB: FSU Soccer Team lost their second match of the season to the Spiders of Jacksonville, Sunday afternoon in Jacksonville.

At half time, the Spiders led 2-0. FSU scored early in the second half on a head in hit by John Akin. But the Spiders came back to score twice on fine defensive efforts.

Scott Gordon, FSU center was voted the most outstanding player by his teammates. The Seminoles will meet the Spiders again November 22 in Tallahassee.

Frosh Take Varsity Cue

The FSU frosh could do no better than the varsity as they dropped a 13-0 decision to the Baby Gators Saturday night in Gainesville.

The Seminoles took their second loss in as many outings courtesy of a blocked kick, fumbles and an inability to cope with the Gator passing attack.

After a blocked punt in the first quarter the Gator air force struck with a lob from Harmon Wages to John Higbe. The play went twenty yards for the first Gator TD.

The second Florida score was set up by the reptiles air battalion when Wages hit halfback Bobby Downes on the six with a 25 yard strike.

David McIntosh, alternating with Wages, got the tally on a two yard plunge. This second quarter score ended the action across the goal line for both teams.

The Tribe had two chances to tie the game but blew them both. In the second quarter they had fourth and one on the Gator goal line and were unable to get across the stripe.

Late in the fourth quarter the Tribe missed another TD chance when halfback Chuck Elliott fumbled on the one and the Gators took over to run out the clock.

Cannon Blasts Plan For FSU-UF Seating

Men's Vice-President Jack Cannon issued a statement today expressing concern over the planned seating arrangements for the Florida-FSU game.

"The present plans call for seating part of the U of F students and fans on our students' side and the rest in the south end zone. A recent study produced the following facts.

"Only 11,000 seats have been allocated for the student body and our dates because of this only approximately 750 date tickets can be sold. These tickets will be sold on a date prior to the game.

"U of F students will sit on the FSU side from the 40 yard line back toward the new contract, along with 5,000 end zone seats. However, the contract did not specify where the seats would be, except that they would be side seats."

"All tickets, including date tickets, Florida State student tickets, and reserved seats, will cost $5 FSU students will be permitted to use their ID's for admission, I would 'because of the above, I would like to make my position clear on this matter. Since this year is our home game, I feel that more consideration should have been given our student body.

"If the need for money is the prime factor at the bottom of the present plan, I can understand some selection reason for selling the majority of the tickets. But surely the officials must realize the fact that there probably won't be enough seats for all of our students and dates. This should be one of their primary concerns."

"I feel that a grave injustice has been done our student body, and for this reason, I stand in direct opposition to the present plans."

"Someone, or some group, seems to have forgotten about a portion of our student body."

"I don't issue this statement as an official or complete announcement of the planned seating arrangement, although a complete report will be presented to Student Senate this afternoon at 4:15 p.m. in Longmire."

BOC Endorses Science Requests

by NANCY ZLATIN
Flambeau Assistant News Editor

The Board of Control fully endorsed FSU and U of F's requests to the National Science Foundation to obtain grants awarded to universities which have made an impressive start in scientific research and instruction.

James L. Knig, BOC member, stated that the Board would "offer wholehearted support of future legislation" which would aid universities "to establish centers of excellence."

Dr. Broward Culpepper, executive director of the Board, emphasized that the grants would be of "great benefit to the state" and presented an "opportunity to leap ahead in the program of mathematics, science and related fields."

These comments of full support came in response to President Gordon Blackwell's request of the Board to support future legislation on the science program and to provide a written statement of good faith. According to Blackwell, "It is anticipated that these grants will enable the universities to 'develop peaks of excellence comparable to the very best science program anywhere in the nation.'"

FSU proposes to request a grant of $4,607,000 from the NSF to support the development of areas of research and education. The money will be used in the areas of chemical physics, molecular biology and biochemistry, nuclear structure, psychology, topology, oceanography, and particle physics. These programs will be used to expand the number of faculty members, to provide equipment and operating expenses for the new faculty positions, to provide funds for visiting professors and to augment (Continued on page 3)

Demos Feature Panel Session

The Young Democrats meeting tonight at 7:30 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall will feature a panel discussion on the different facets of the State and national governments.

The members of the panel will include Richard Hellstrom, administrative assistant for Tom Adams, who is now working on the Barge Canal.

Another member is William Roberts, administrative assistant for Adams, who formulates state junctions for Adams and handles all legal matters pertaining to the Sec. of State office.

Dr. Juanita Gibson, working on government research at the present time, and a government professor at FSU, will also be a panel member. The Moderator will be Dr. Robert C. Bone, government professor and advisor to the Young Democrats. The panel will discuss the state under democratic leadership and the national leadership under the Kennedy-Johnson administration.

MRS. FSU CONTESTANTS 1964

Mrs. FSU Chosen In Friday Contest

Mrs. FSU will be chosen Friday at 7 p.m. in the Longmire Auditorium. Each contestant must show her qualifications as a homemaker by preparing one food product of her own choice. Contestants will also be judged on poise and personality.

presentation of a hobby or talent, and beauty in evening wear, street wear and sportswear.

The ten contestants who have entered are Mrs. Charles Arnold, Mrs. John D. Blanchard, Mrs. Frank Falero, Mrs. Clifton Gunter, Jr.,

Mrs. David Macaulay, Mrs. James McDermott, Mrs. Frank D. Rhoads, Mrs. Myles R. Sahlgren, Mrs. Dennis Stamberger, and Mrs. Jerry Williams.

These wives of FSU students are all members of the Dames Club. Their husbands cannot be on probation and must give approval for their wives to enter the contest.

Mrs. FSU will represent the Dames Club and FSU whenever called upon. Judges of the contest will be Mrs. Ruth Ferguson, dept. of food and nutrition, Dr. R. R. Oglesby, former dean of students and present history professor, Mr. Ray Starr, Capital newsmen, and Mr. George Taff, city commissioner and mayor pro tem of Tallahassee.

Block Drawing Set

Drawing for block seats for the Mississippi Southern - FSU game will take place in the Student Body Student Offices, 210 Longmire, at 7 p.m. today, according to Attorney General Ed Scott.

Applications Needed

Seniors graduating in December must file an application for a degree this week in the University Union bookstore.

Because many seniors were unable to apply earlier this trimester, the registration has been reopened for one week only.

There will be a $5 fee and all applicants must submit this application in order to graduate.

SG Address Today

The annual State of the University address will be given by John Merting, student government president, to the Student Senate today at 4:15 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Last Picture Day

All Greeks and seniors who have not had their "Tally Ho" picture taken must sign up for an appointment by Friday. This is positively the last day to make appointments.

Imperialism Motivates US In Congo

"Today America is no longer the Inspirer and leader of the World Revolution... By contrast, America is today the leader of a world wide anti-revolutionary movement in defense of vested interests. She no longer stands for what Rome stood for."

Arnold Toynbee

United States planes, tanks, helicopters, and other military equipment are being sent to the Congo. Also paratroopers, advisers, and other servicemen. These are all symptoms of the beginning of American intervention.

Why are United States' troops being sent to the Congo? What does the United States want in that country so remote from our shores? For the Congo is not American territory, is not an American state, it is a sovereign state, a member of the U.N. The explanation the State Department has upheld is the time-worn charge of a "Communist menace," meaning the mounting national liberation movement of the Congolese people opposing the military dictatorship of Mobutu Sese Seko K Ngbendu Ngbendu. This phrase seems to be the only reason the United States decides to send our troops to foreign boundaries. We truth that that is being obscured from the American people is that for more than four years the United States has been trying to establish its control over the Congo because it is strategically situated in the heart of Africa and possesses immense natural wealth. (Union Men, American, coalition of United States' and Belgian Interests.

The New York Times commented a few years ago, "The U.S. is sending itself militarily involved in still another conflict—and it is doing so unilaterally... a better explanation of the African and the Congo Department have given is in order, while there is still time to assess the wisdom of our commitment."

One of the basic aims in supporting Mobutu's dictatorship will be to safeguard foreign (and above all American and Belgian) monopoly investments. One of the basic aims of the forces opposing Mobutu is the nationalization of all the resources of the country. Meaning that all foreign companies must leave the wealth of the Congo to the people, so that they may develop and industrialize their own nation.

When Mobutu was president of the Congo, the Secretary of the United Nations, U Thant, described him as "a clown." That description seems to still hold true. Only a few weeks ago Mobutu was told by the Conference of Unaligned Nations that his presence at the 47th annual summit conference was not welcomed because he was not the true representative of the Congolese people. He insisted upon going and was held hostage for 48 hours until he decided to return to the Congo.

American newspapers that take a more realistic view of the situation are alarmed by the State Department's recent actions. They point to the dangerous similarity between the actions of the United States in U.S. intervention in South Vietnam.

The parallel is valid: In South Vietnam there was Diem; in the Congo there is Mobutu. In South Vietnam the people were opposed to Diem, in the Congo they are opposed to Mobutu.

In both cases the United States is seeking to impose on the people regimes that are dictatorships, which in no way represent the actual interests of the people of these former colonial nations.

It would seem that Former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles (of all people) had it right when he said that the United States does not have friends; it has "interests."

Anonymity Best Course

To the Editor:

It is time a certain point was clarified. That night of Infamy, that seething pool of sin from which all ran shrieking with their ears stopped, and their hands over the eyes of their teenage children—in other words since the beginning of (student's) Flow Wow it has been popular opinion that the skits performed were greatly altered after being approved by a reviewing committee.

This is understandable due to the fact that this view was fostered by severe, supposedly responsible people in high positions; unfortunately (for whom?) it is not true.

Through discussions with persons of the faculty who actually sat on the reviewing board it has come out that there were no unannounced last minute changes in the skits.

Further, all decisions suggested by the committee (and there were only a few) were made. The only part that was performed at the Flow Wow that was not approved by this committee was a minor ad lib about the similarity between two skits.

In order to keep my faith in the committee that run this institution I must believe the committee's statements made by them concerning these supposed additions were made only because they are ill-informed, and that the entire act was isolated from what goes on around them.

I must not give way to the instincts which keeps trying to push its way into the mind that these were fabrications used by a back-pedaling administration as a ploy, and push the blame onto other shoulders. This I must not believe.

You probably noticed that the names of the people on the committee who brought this new view to light are not included in this letter. This was intentional. These people have families to support.

Their jobs are important to them regardless of the atmosphere they are forced to work in. The arbitrary and arbitrary way that the administrative ax falls at this institution sickeningly parallels certain actions taken in History 483-484. Walk softly under the low shadow.

Anonymity is best.

Nobel Prize Misgiven?

Recently, the Nobel Peace Prize was awarded to the Reverend Martin Luther King, Jr. by a five-person committee elected by the Swedish Parliament.

As stipulated in the will of Alfred Nobel, the prizes are given to "those who have, during the preceding year, conferred the greatest benefit on mankind." Now the question arises—what great benefit has Reverend King conferred on mankind lately?

According to the February issue of the Christian Century, the "Swedish parliamentarians nominated Dr. King because of his success in advocating 'the principle of nonviolence.'"

It has been my observation, however, that although Dr. King does speak of nonviolence and peaceful action through the courts, he has the very peculiar knack of leaving a wake of outbreaks and fury wherever he goes.

The good Dr. King shouts peace and nonviolence from his podium, but not until he has successfully brought to a halt "bombs and passions already simmering in the hearts of his hearers." Mumbling of peace and court action will not allay the feelings of a frenzied mob. Let us remember that the popular consideration is not the good for which Rev. King is so widely known, but simply what he has done. He deserves the Nobel Peace Prize. Did the riots in St. Augustine this summer reflect peace? There seem to be nothing peaceful about the actions of policemen protecting whites on beach, or a motel manager pouring acid in his swimming pool.

What's peaceable about police dogs or rocks being hurled through restaurant windows? Since when do yelling, jeers, and riots mean peace? Is it a peaceable man who finds himself in a Florida jail on leading demonstrations?

Woodrow Wilson, Albert Schweitzer, Dag Hammarskjöld, and Theodore Roosevelt have been recipients of the Nobel Prize for Peace. Did the name Martin Luther King Jr. deserve to stand beside them?

Peace Award Mockery

To the Editor:

It has been announced that Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been chosen as the most recent winner of the Nobel Peace Prize. Since Peace Prizes are periodically awarded, this action is not particularly noteworthy until the character of the recipient is considered.

Dr. King has long been a leading figure in what is sometimes wrongly called the "Civil Rights" struggle. This "Crusade" has resulted in several deaths and thousands of dollars of property damage.

Civil and often criminal disobedience has occurred as a recognized and accepted method of protest against social and legal systems. The rebuttal is, of course, that Dr. King has never advocated anything but loving and non-violent civil disobedience.

This is a rather shallow and unconvincing explanation. What is non-violent in disobedience has proved to be violent in actuality, and the non-violent actions of some have incited actions of violence.

None can deny that Dr. King is a crusader. Whether his crusade is right or wrong, it is a matter of degree in which much violence, damage, suspicion, and even hate have been among its results. He is a crusader in action, whether or not of demonic is his intention, but he is certainly not a man of peace, and the Nobel Committee has by its choice made a mockery of the Peace Prize.

Asks For New Definitions

To the Editor:

In the days and weeks following the famous Flow-Wow, I have noticed, both in these columns and in conversations around the campus, a growing tendency for fellow-students to couch their views in terms of defenses of student rights and freedom of academic inquiry, the necessity of breaking away from the accepted norms and mores of the community in order to achieve character, and, most fundamentally, the preservation of the right to disagree.

Each of these arguments, of course, bears a certain "germ of truth," and each in its own way is reflective of the difficulties experienced by the average person in the larger society, and larger society of which this University is a part.

None of these arguments, however, should be taken in an uncritical manner, for each has, in addition to its "germ of truth," certain weaknesses with which we must come to grips when delimiting the area of acceptable student conduct.

Viewed on another level, this shift of emphasis seems to reflect at least tacit agreement on the part of a substantial number of students that some of the Flow Wow acts were in poor taste, and more substantially, a growing concern with the nature of the moral code which the University administration seeks to enforce.

This moral code, of course, is substantially the same code which has guided conduct in this nation since the first explorers and settlers made adaptations and shifts of emphasis here, from time to time, been accomplished so as to make the code both a living and a viable form of reference.

Perhaps numerous student groups feel that the "adaptations and shifts of emphasis" which have followed Two World Wars, the Depression, and a more positive view, the New Deal, are no longer adequate in light of such developments as the cold war, group orientation, and the new moral morality.

If a considerable number of students do, in fact, feel this to be the case, I would suggest that the same idea be taken toward defining and making known new boundaries within which conduct may be approved.

The appropriate instrumentality for such reworking of this nature is, of course, the Student Government, for no small part of its function is concerned with voicing the aggregate view of the student body and formulating rules and standards to reflect this outlook.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Calls Flambeau Biased

To the Editor:

Your edition of Friday, October 23, was the straw that broke the camel's back. It was an outstanding example of a biased press, identical to the ideology of an ideologically oriented minority, and an insult to those who give economic support.

I as an individual resent the idea that I must contribute funds to a press with such an obviously slanted political tenet.

From the front page with its tribute to "one-worldism" and the advertisement for Max Courtney's benediction through Max Courtney's benediction of the "father image" and the pseudo-intellectual drivel of Professor G. Schwarz, the Flambeau was without a doubt at its worst.

Although the first two articles may be classed as "news" and the second a case of hero worship, there is no excuse for giving any press space to Schwarz.

Let us hope the classroom where one MUST listen to him doubt if he will survive a "Barnes" administration.

One last word: if you forget to mention that Bill Miller will be in Tallahassee on Monday, October 26, this was an over-sight, or another example of a biased press?

One last word: if you forget to mention that Bill Miller will be in Tallahassee on Monday, October 26, this was an over-sight, or another example of a biased press?

These skits were brilliant in the atmosphere the administrative created. And is not this the "Great Society"?

Sam Seibel

Dark Cloud Hovers Over Future FSU Pro Wows

To the Editor:

One of the most controversial issues to be discussed on this campus the past few years has been the Flow Wow skits presented during Homecoming.

Those students for, as well as those against the "proposers of vulgarity" have stated their views over and over again and this promises to become a topic of interest for many campus people. There are thousands to be considered and should be clearly seen.

If our campus were anywhere else besides Tallahassee, the administration, would the administration's attitude be the same? I'm quite sure Governor Bryant has been representative than was revealed by the Student Body during Flow Wow.

However, the political issue is perhaps the most important one to be brought here. The administration's action against the skits and fraternities leaves a great deal the Greeks as well as other campus groups are not allowed to resemble any form slang, expressive symbols, or any off-color content in their skits.

One last word: if you forget to mention that Bill Miller will be in Tallahassee on Monday, October 26, this was an over-sight, or another example of a biased press?

We see and hear words who govern the actions of the "flick" or at the theater. Just think of the thousands of people who are men and women on campus (who no doubt are in the mind of wonder whether they will be after the next few weeks, maybe Gainesville).

So now, as a dark cloud hangs over the future Flow Wows, we poor folks who live in Gainesville, Florida, are in Gainesville, Florida.

Mike Karpis, Jr. Senior Class president

Perhaps our Student Government will recognize the present controversy as an exceptional opportunity to provide a service which will serve to protect the University from undue criticism and to protect the individual student from castigation arising from his inability to uphold a code of conduct with which he does not agree.

I entertain no doubt that many may pass this suggestion as simply another effort to "legislate morality," however, such is not my intent. I suggest only that some effort be put forth to ascertain what conduct the student body approves, and from what conduct it withholds approval. Since this is known, perhaps our viewpoint can again be meshed with the morality of the larger society, and the student may be freed from uncertainty and from the fear that he may be the next "victim" of the state.

Seminoles Must Go With Best Saturday

The Seminoles showed one thing Saturday in Blacksburg that will be significant for the rest of the season. When they have to score, the only way to do it is go with the best. That best is Fred Bilenkoff. In spite of a gang of defenders on him all day, he scored FSU's lone touch down, took a record 11 passes for another record 182 yards. He also caught the two point conversion from Ed Fritchett even though the chances are 20-1 that the Gobblers knew it was coming.

In the second half of both the VPI and Georgia games the opposing defenses were able to stop the running of Phil Spooner and Lee Narmore in key situations. They had more trouble with the expected passing.

The Tribe, to win the rest of the games this season (yes, even over the Gators with their great passing defense), will have to overpower the opposition with their strong suit -- the passing attack.

The key to this attack will be the Steve Tensi - Bilenkoff combination. All season these two have been spending extra time after practices to perfect their playing. They'll be ready this week.

The big question, ironically, is the defense. In the early part of the season this squad seemed invincible. But in the last two games they have given up 34 points while in the first four they only allowed six.

These scores came from double threat quarterbacks who could run and pass. The Magnificent Seven and Formidable Four were all right when they blitzed the quarterback and got the play before it developed. However when the quarterback had time to roll to the ends the tribe had trouble containing him and passing against the pass.

After two weeks of watching the backs rolling over their ends, the Seven and Four should be set for Mississippi's attack. Besides, the have a three year score to settle

Leon Residents In Voter Survey

More than 400 Leon County residents are being interviewed this week in a political survey of voter attitudes.

The survey is being conducted by FSU students under the direction of Dr. Douglas St. Angelo, assistant professor of government. It is financed by a grant from the Florida Center for Education in Politics, one of many each year to political scientists throughout Florida.

Dr. Elston Roady, executive secretary of the FCEP. The students have spent seven weeks preparing for the survey and will spend several more weeks analyzing their findings. St. Angelo says, "Students to be interviewed have been randomly selected, and each interview takes about 20 minutes. The survey is designed to provide the students with an understanding of modern survey techniques as well as letting them discover at first hand the relationship between the social background and political attitudes of Leon County residents." St. Angelo added.

'Treat' Tomorrow

The International Center will have a Halloween "Trick or Treat" party tomorrow to which the children of all international students, faculty, research associates and staff have been invited. The party will be from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m.

SAP Meets Today

The FSU Students Act for Peace will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Student Lounge, Longmire. The group will discuss a proposed demonstration protesting the state department travel ban to Cuba. There will also be a discussion on the possibility of students who visited Cuba this summer to speak on campus.

Senate Tables Discussion On Stearns' Principles Resolution

A resolution written by Sen. Gene Stearns was presented and voted by the Student Senate yesterday that the following statement of principles be adopted:

The events of the past few weeks have shown this Student Government that there are inherent problems in the relationships between students, faculty, and administration which require clarification and correction. A university exists for the students and, in another sense, the students exist for the university. What is in the best interests of one can only be in the best interests of the other. It should be clear, therefore, that there is no real conflict of interest between students and the administration; rather there has been a difference of opinion on how to best achieve the same end.

Student Government, as the representative of the Student Body, has a responsibility to bring to the attention of the University any suggestions which we feel will create an improved academic and social climate on this campus.

Controversy has recently revolved around the marked vagueness of the rights of students and student groups. This clear lack of defined rights and law has been the crux of many misunderstandings.

The rights of an individual are his as an individual. They exist before and during his term as a student; the privilege of exercising those rights are grants from the University. Rights and privileges are not the same, for the rights still exist when the privilege of exercising them is withheld.

So the question at hand is the degree to which the University will allow the students to exercise their rights. Those rights are the same as any citizen in a community.

First, the rights of Free Expression—which are the rights of free speech, peaceful assembly, petition, and free press.

Second, the right to Self-Government—which in a university includes the right to participate actively in the formulation and enforcement of the regulations that govern the student as an individual.

Third, the right of Recourse to Public, Defined and Equitable Law—which guarantees adequate public statement of all laws; the communication of their necessity, intent, and the consequences of their enforcement of these laws.

Fourth, the right of Due Process of Law—which is the right to trial by equals, and the power of the accused to waive that right to trial only after a complete investigation; the right to be presumed innocent and the expressed hope of all students taken until a final verdict is reached; the right to refuse to offer testimony against one's self; and the right to appeal a decision to a higher authority.

We recognize that the University has an established sphere of operations in which it retains sole right to make recommendations and take action. We accept the necessary University jurisdiction over student privileges.

In fairness to the Student Body, however, we suggest that there be a written enumeration of this sphere and the expressed hope of all students to appeal any disciplinary action to a higher authority. For the rights of due process and recourse to defined law are not any less valuable to us as students as they are to us as citizens.

In conclusion, we should state that it can only be developed in a atmosphere of mature citizenship, where natural rights can be freely exercised. Responsible growth should be one of the primary goals of an educational institution.

"The primary responsibility of Student Government on this campus is the representation of FSU students. We intend to fulfill this responsibility." Senate leader Pro tem Gene Stearns said at his resolution.

Continued Women's Education Subject Of UCCEW Conference

The need for continuing education for women and the mature woman's employment problems will be the focus of a conference to be attended by more than 100 Florida women at FSU Nov. 13, sponsored by the University's Committee on the Continuing Education of Women.

The weekend of the conference will coincide with Legislative Day at FSU. Conference guests have been invited to participate in the activities of Legislative Day and to remain on campus for the FSU-North Carolina State football game Saturday night. Guest speakers will include Dr. Mary Dublin Keyserling, director of the U.S. Bureau of the U.S.

Labor Department, and Dr. Esther Raushenbush, director of the continuing education program at Sarah Lawrence College in Bronxville, N.Y.

The women invited to the conference were selected by the director of the Chamber of Commerce, the presidents of the League of Women Voters and the American Association of University Women in each of the five metropolitan areas of the state: Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, Orlando, and Pensacola.

Dean of Women Katherine Warren, chairman of the sponsoring university committee, points to the changing objectives of young women as a national problem.

Although more women, particularly more married women, today are working outside the home, too few young women are preparing themselves for a creative job in addition to marriage, Warren says.

"At a time in our history when women are working outside the home in increasing numbers, young women are less interested in preparing for an interesting career in which they might be creative," Warren explained.

"Too many college women do not continue their education after college and often become mentally sterile," she added.

GWB Featured In 'Alumni Bulletin'

An interview with President Gordon W. Blackwell, who resigns from FSU in February, is featured in the November issue of the Florida State "Alumni Bulletin."

Dr. Blackwell, who leaves FSU to assume the presidency of Furman University in Greenville, S.C., discusses the strength and weaknesses of Florida State and comments on its future.

The magazine, which goes into the mail next week to nearly 6,000 FSU alumni, quotes Blackwell as saying that "I'm just as convinced as I can be...the Florida State progress will not be interrupted, that the forward momentum is too great for there to be any slowdown."

"I am sure that this University will take its place soon as one of the truly distinguished universities of the country," Blackwell commented. Other articles include a unique photo essay by University Photographer Dick Parks depicting some of the approximately $26 million worth of construction now in the planning stage or underway on campus.

Last Picture Day

Today is the last day for appointments to be made for Senior or Greek pictures. Tomorrow is the last day pictures will be made for the Tally Ho Senior and Greek shots. Contracts for space in the 1965 Tally Ho are due tomorrow. Presidents of any organizations desiring space in the Tally Ho must have their contracts in by tomorrow.

Women's Senate Passes Poll Bill

A resolution introduced by Joy Dickenson in Women's Senate yesterday was passed providing for the formation of a special committee of Women's Senate for the purpose of formulating a poll concerning the environment and to examine and choose a channel through which this poll will be distributed to a section of the women students.

This poll shall make available to women's Senate information concerning the degree to which the present rule is heeded and enforced, and also desired changes in this ruling.

The committee was established with Senator Richardson in charge, and Senator Dickinson as an ex-officio member. Senator Crews, Weeks, and Alexander were also appointed to serve on the committee. During discussion, it was brought out that all replies to the proposed poll will be strictly anonymous.

Stamped ID's Must

Academic Ambitions Overshadowed

A few days ago, I learned that a good friend of mine decided not to enter grade school; he felt that he just couldn't handle the school routine anymore.

It's funny, because I really can't blame him; there are times when I feel like packing the goods myself, and like making it to anywhere, and I'm not the only one: everyone I talk to seems to be ready to cut out to greener pastures, even though they don't know where the devil they lie.

Now there are many who are willing to blame the trimester system for the phenomenon of students wanting to "break out." They claim that all of the unsmiling faces, nervous laughs and sullen eyes are due to the fact that students are working more and enjoying it less.

Personally, I just can't blame the trimester system for the big depression. I think it is caused by the fact that most college students have failed to reconcile the inconsistencies between the purpose of college and the present world condition. Well, it's either this, or not enough drinking.

Most students enter college to either get away from home, dodge the draft, or get an education—the last item being the preferred reason. Anyway, most students believe that by obtaining a college education they will be better prepared to face the future.

Thus they are willing to spend years hunched over a desk in a dingy room, order papers for exams, write term papers and theses and read thousands of pages of boring material. All of their diligent efforts are predicated upon the belief that the future belongs to those who are prepared: to the educated.

Students do not live in the present—they live in the future—and this is exactly why they are depressed. They fluctuate between degrees of unhappiness because they know that the present state of world and national affairs being what they are, the future, for what they may never arrive.

For instance, as you read this column right now, Strontium 90 is collecting in the atmosphere, just waiting to contaminate the cows of the world. This means that if we drink only black coffee, world leaders are arguing that their bombs are capable of killing ten billion people in only two hours. And we college boys have taken almost four hours to do the same job three years ago.

And who says that tax money isn't being put to good use?

American soldiers are being slaughtered by funny, sounding little men in the mucky, dirty, diseased little swamps of Southeast Asia. As soon as we college men lose our 2-S, we too will be able to make our graves in the same part of the globe.

Thus, I don't think that college depression is attributable to either the trimester or a lack of alcohol. Rather, it is due to the fact that the very purpose for attending college is overshadowed, if not obliterated, by the cheery world outside of our academic gates.

Oh, well, who cares? Besides, I've got an exam to study for.

Pow Wow Penalties Not Democratic

To the Editor:

The local charter of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity was lifted last Monday through an administrative decision. Was this the act of a small but powerful group who simply couldn't stomach students criticizing their domain?

The SAE's lost their charter because their homecoming skit wasn't "quite it," finally said. The skit, a satirical view of the FSU code, was presented entirely for the purpose of entertaining the student body. If the people of Tallahassee didn't like our skits, they easily could have left no body forced them to come in the first place.

The SAE skit was certainly no worse than any of the fraternities used in Gainesville last weekend, yet none of the University of Florida fraternities or sororities had their charters lifted. The skit was witnessed by Florida's top government officials.

Isn't the democratic system based partially on the freedom of speech? What better place than the Pow Wow to express the objections of the student body? The SAE's didn't in fact express their view of campus activity.

To emphasize their opinion of campus conditions many of our social groups use the skits to comment on the alumni, families of students, and the administrations policies.

However, the omnipotent administration put an end to this dissent by simply removing the privilege to take this type of action again.

When a problem arises as serious as whether or not a fraternity, especially one as nationally famous as SAE, should lose its charter the decision should be left up to either the student government or the student body to decide whether such rash action is really necessary.

To the Editor:

To the Fair Weather Sports Editor: Bob Connor.

It seems that no matter what sport it is, this school newspaper is against their own team when they lose.

What kind of school spirit do you call this? Are you for the football team all the way or only half way? The picture today's "Flambeau" of some of our team sure looks to me like you are not with them all the way. This is a fine thing to read and see about our fine team from our own paper.

It gets pretty bad when your own

Y. C. J. Refused To Debate

To the Editor:

In answer to Max Golder's letter, I must point out that the Young Citizens for Johnson, not the Young Americans for Freedom, declined to debate.

A meeting was held on Oct. 3 at Kellum Hall, with both YAF and YCJ representatives present. The purpose of this meeting was to lay out the ground rules for a proposed debate on Oct. 21. YCJ said that they had professional and well-experienced debaters who were willing to debate YAF. Although YAF had no experienced debaters, we accepted the challenge.

Prior to this meeting, YAF had made arrangements to bring Mr. Scott Stanley Jr., one of the six original founders of YAF, to the campus on the 21st. Mr. Stanley, experienced debater, had previously issued a challenge to debate any one of the debate.

Spineless Policy Ruinous

To the Editor:

Today we are pursuing a course of spineless submission and appeasement in dealing with the Communist regime which will bring us total defeat. We have allowed our federal government to become permeated with ultra-liberals that it is fast becoming "soft" on Communism.

If a man such as Senator Barry Goldwater sees the danger and denounces it, he is immediately labeled as an extremist by our liberal leaders.

Our government has repeatedly given aid to Communist countries; aid which has been used to further the cause of Communist world domination. Since the end of World War II, the United States has given the Communists six billion dollars in direct aid.

The United States is currently paying forty per cent of the cost of its financial aid programs to Cuba through the United Nations. We sell wheat to the Russians when they ask for it; while they make plans for "bury" us.

At this very moment, young American men are fighting a war in Viet Nam which is, under the present United States policy, leading to a staggering defeat for the free world. The word "victory" is rapidly slipping from our national vocabulary, and each year we concede more and more to the Communists. The youth of our nation are the primary target of Communist propaganda. We young people are constantly being indoctrinated with the theory that Communism isn't so bad, and that we must learn to live in harmony with it.

This is all part of the Communist plan to bring America to its knees. Khrushchev said, "The Communist flag will soon fly in the United States. The American people will raise it themselves." The thing the Communist's fear most is that the American public will see the danger and do something about it.

Americans are faced with a choice in the next presidential elections. We will have to choose between a Democratic Party which has consistently adopted a "soft" on Communism, and a Republican Party which advocates a policy of "peace through strength."

I say that if Americans take a good look at both party platforms they will vote Republican in November the third. For the sake of our country, I hope so.

FSU Transportation Lacking

To the Editor:

Before I write anything about the campus transportation system, I should first say that it (like ROTC) is not compulsory, but personally I think it is necessary to use it. I also realize that something is supposedly being done to alleviate this problem. Be that as it may, the main fault with this carmargehouse is that it isn't quite large enough to accommodate all of the people who ride it.

To ride the bus it is practically mandatory that one have student insurance to protect his trampled toes, wrecked ribs, and aching arms, which all might result from an accident with one of the multitude surrounding him. I shouldn't complain, however, for several times I have been fortunate enough to secure a "safety zone" (a seat).

Some comments heard from people riding the bus might provide further insight into this problem. Riders have quipped:

"Nothing like riding the Sandline Express." "Can you move back any further?" "It's so crowded in here you have to take turns breathing." "You need a shoe spoon to get in this thing and a can opener to get out." "Tall somebody to come around here and open the back door." (That is, the emergency door, that I also learned from the outside).

If a student should have consecutive classes on opposite ends of the campus, if it is raining, and since there is a grand total of fifteen minutes to make this ride, riding the bus practically becomes a necessity, not a luxury.

Occasionally a student is delighted to find that he missed the bus as he watches this gorgeous, garnet and gold, gear-shifting gondola sail (rattling, sputter and backfire) into the sunset.

Maybe if Gold Metals were given for a "Fifteen-minute Cross-campus Dash" students would no longer be interested in riding the bus.

As for myself, I am thankful for the Student Government's awareness and concern for this problem. However, one bus is not quite sufficient for 12,000 students. The persistence of this crowded condition might cause someone to comment, if a small Russian was forced to ride on the front of the bus, "Look! There's Little Red Riding Hood!"

Pacifists Live In Fantasy

To the Editor:

Apparently there are students on this campus who are completely out of touch with reality. I am referring to those who call themselves pacifists, especially Mr. Fred Glavin (R); Flambeau Forum, Oct. 22nd.

Certainly it would be wonderful if war were completely eliminated and with it compulsory military service. However, unless Mr. Glavin is aware of something of which I am not, war has not been eliminated.

In fact, the world has been on the brink of total war since 1945. I hope that Mr. Glavin would be shocked to see Mr. Glavin.

Pacifists in the free world live in a world of fantasy. It is time these pacifists come out of their shells and take a look at the world situation.

The Communists have begun us and it would seem that pacifists are ready to show us. After reading Mr. Glavin's column, I am sure that the reader who side the

Announcements

Juan Mercader, classical guitarist, will perform in Moore Auditorium at the University Union at 7:30 p.m. on Nov. 15.

Mercader, now a Cuban exile, performs annually with the Brazil Synchronic Orchestra. He studied under the famous Severino Lopez of Spain. Although Mercader teaches and plays only classical guitar, he enjoys good popular music also, he says.

Mercader reached the U.S. from Cuba in October, 1960, with his wife, two small sons, his guitar and $10. His guitar, however, made by Domingo Esteo, was valued at $1,200. He got it past Castro officials by insisting that a 40-year-old instrument could not be worth anything.

Mercader now teaches at the University of Miami.

Phi Kappa Phi will have its annual faculty auction Thursday, Nov. 5 at 4:45 p.m. on Westcott steps.

Faculty members are put up for auction before the various student organizations who bid for the service of these faculty members for a weekend. Proceeds will go to Campus Chest.

Dr. Richard C. Wilson, associate professor of elementary education and reading specialist, is a contributor to a book entitled "Readings in Elementary Social Studies." It is scheduled for publication next year.

Circle K, the Kiwanis sponsored service club on campus, has selected new members and elected a new board of directors.

Accepted for membership were Harry Brown, Jr., Reid Montgomery, Steve Prentice, Bill Sisley, Jr., William J. Trucane, Jr., Steve Wirt, and William E. Woods.

Members elected to the Board of Directors were Carl Domino, Bruce Miller, Gene Stearns, and William E. Woods.

Faculty Member, 14 Students Attend Hotel Exposition In N.Y.

A faculty member and 14 student majors in the department of hotel and restaurant management will attend the National Hotel Exposition at the New York Coliseum, Nov. 1-12.

Professor Ashby G. Stiff, Jr. will accompany the student group which will staff an FSU booth in the educational division of the exposition, attend a series of management seminars, view trade exhibits, and tour representative hotel, restaurant and club operations in New York.

Travel funds for the student representatives have been made available through a grant from the Prophet Company of Chicago.

As personal guests of the Baron George de Kornfeld, general manager, Stiff and the students will reside at the Plaza Hotel. The group will be honored at a reception given by FSU alumni David R. Chambers and Richard Stein, both of the executive staff of the Hotel St. Moritz, and at functions hosted by Richard Kirsin, general manager of the Playboy Club of New York.

PHIL SPOONER

... puts Coach Peterson's chalk talk into practice against the Kentucky Wildcats. Spooner broke through the Wildcat line for long gains in FSU's hip upset of the Kentuckians.

Spooner also broke through the Georgia line to set up the Seminole's first score against the Bulldogs. He leads the state's backfield in ground yardage and is considered a major factor in FSU's surprising overland attack.

Spooner and his chief runningmate Lee Narramore will have to be in top form for the Mississippi Southern game Saturday night. The Tribe will try to get back in the win column after dropping a 20-11 contest to outmanned VPI.

COACH BILL PETERSON

... outlines a running play on the chalk board for the Seminoles. Coach "Pete" has tried to balance the FSU wanted passing game with a good running attack. This attack has been spearheaded by Phil Spooner and Lee Narramore.

Spooner and Narramore are two of the top ground gainers in Florida and have been instrumental in FSU's 5-1 record. Saturday they will test themselves against the defenses of the Mississippi Southern Seminoles.

The Tribe has been unsuccessful in three meetings with the Mississippi team. Last year's game resulted in a 0-0 tie.

Too Many Mistakes Says Coach 'Pete'

by RICH HALTEN

Flambeau Sports Writer

"Too many mistakes," was Coach Bill Peterson's comment on last Saturday's VPI struggle.

The Seminoles were anything but potent steamrolling to 423 yards on land and in the air, probably more acreage gained than any other college team that saw afternoon.

From a psychological angle Peterson stated that the Tribe got better and better as the game wore on. They made no real mistakes and were able to capitalize on ours. Herein lies one of the major premises of winning football.

Two third quarter offensive thrusts were terminated on penalties. One has been questioned by the FSU Coaching Staff. It was during a crucial play in which Dale McKenzie supposedly threw an illegal block on VPI linebacker.

But the Tech skirmish is in the record books and the lesson Georgia learned nearly two weeks ago caught up with the Seminoles Saturday in Virginia. It was what's on the scoreboard that counts.

Across the street from Doak Campbell, behind locked doors, practice has been long and rugged this week.

The offense has primarily concentrated on scoring from within the 20 yard line. The return of this news, bogging down inside the 20, made the final score what it was, with the Tribe on the losing end.

The second effort receiving of Fred Biletnikoff again paid off in a gang of yards gained and another broken record. Time after time, covered by two, even three Tech defenders, "Fleet Fred" hauled in a Tensi bomb and then faked and sped for an even bigger gain.

According to Peterson, fans and opponents will be seeing even more of the Tensi to Biletnikoff tosses during the rest of the season. The FSU staff has been diagramming and devising more ways to utilize the talents of this All-American combination.

Defensive plans call for the "Magnificent Seven" to be more aggressive in going after people in the Southern Mississippi clash. Peterson declares they will be going after the big defensive play as they did in the first five games.

The still proud defensive team will be facing a Mississippi attack much like Georgia and Virginia Polytechnic displayed. They also will feature a good passing and running quarterback plus a power driving fullback.

They have dropped their last two games on the road, losing to home state rival Mississippi State by 42-7 and last weekend scaring the daylight out of Jimmy Sidle and Auburn. The Tigers had to come from behind to edge the Mississippians 14-7.

Peterson has been letting the team know they certainly have their work cut out for them. Time and time from the Magnolia State seem to play their best against FSU.

Chess Whizz Defeats 18 Simultaneously

CHESS CLUB: Robert Ludlow, FSU's number one chess player, held true to his title as he defeated 18 of 20 challengers in a simultaneous chess match held at the Lafayette Park Recreation Center, Tuesday.

David Moore, a graduate student, played to a draw with Ludlow. R.L. Pirkmeier and James Henry combined forces and played a tandem game with Ludlow and defeated him. In a tandem game the two partners make alternate moves without consultation with one another.

The chess club sent six representatives to the matches held in Gainesville last weekend. FSU scored third behind a player from LSU and a student from Gainesville High.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: Today is the final day of league playoffs with the finals beginning next Monday. Final elimination games in tennis begin at 4:15 p.m. Kit Link, Sue Milikan, Beverly Sanders, Nancy Ferrall, Carol La Roche, and Lois Stoker play off to decide who will continue into the final archery rounds.

With the close of the first sports season near, the Women's Recreation Association is busily planning the second season. Basketball, deck tennis, bowling, and table tennis are the sports. The season will run over two trimesters beginning in November and ending in February.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta pitted their undefeated records against each other yesterday. (Results were not available at press time.)

The winner of the game will go on to play the winner of the losers' bracket on Monday in the final championship game. IC and PKA along with SJ, um, 11) played yesterday for final eliminations. The winners of those games clash today for third place honors. The playoff game in the second bracket will take place tomorrow afternoon.

Swimming preliminaries begin Nov. 3 at 7:30 p.m. in Montgomery Gym.

'The Yearling' First Film In New Series

The University Union Film Committee presents "The Yearling" as the first of the Little Seminole Mammee Film Series tomorrow at 3:30 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. Admission price is $3.35.

The series is designed for the children of the University administration, faculty, and staff. Karl Mohr, committee chairman, said that traffic would be controlled in front of Westcott and users will be on hand to escort children to the box office.

The movie will be out at approximately 4 p.m.

"The Yearling" is based on the Pulitzer Prize winning novel by Marjorie Kinan Rawlings.

It is a vivid depiction of a backwoods Florida family's struggle shortly after the Civil War. Starring in the movie will be Gregory Peck, Jane Wyman, and Claude Jarman Jr.

Two cartoons have been added as an extra feature of the presentation.

48 Bands Here

Forty-eight high school bands from Florida, Georgia, and Alabama will parade in the Band Day Parade through the Tallahassee business district tomorrow at 4 p.m.

All 48 bands will perform during the parade which will start at 4:30 p.m. today at the activities at the FSU-Seminole campus in Tallahassee, Mississippi game. Majors from all of the bands will perform before the game at 7:30 p.m.

'Flambeauers' Report

"Flambeau" reporters and line editors will meet at 4:30 p.m. today in the Longmire. Students wishing to work on the "Florida Flambeau" should attend.

Trick, Treat Tomorrow

The International Center's "Trick or Treat" party to which the children of international students, faculty, staff, and students, and staff have been invited will be from 6 until 10 p.m. tomorrow night instead of 7 p.m. as previously announced.

CHAOTICS BRING LATE PERMISSION

... to all FSU students with a dance at the Union Saturday night after the game. The victory dance will feature Halloween decorations and will be sponsored by the Union dance committee. Cost is $5.50 single or couple.

Mrs. FSU Contest Scheduled Tonight

By CATHY KNUSTON
Flambeau Feature Writer

Ten Dames Club members are contestants for the 1964-65 Mrs. FSU title. The contest will be tonight at 8 p.m. in Longmire Auditorium.

Mrs. Robert "Betty" Powell, president of the Dames Club, stated that the entrants will be judged by a panel of four on poise, presentation of a speech about themselves, ability to prepare food, and the modeling of casual dresses, sports clothes, and evening wear.

Ten candidates were interviewed Monday night. Mrs. Charles "Cheryl" Arnold from Midland, Texas, her husband is a senior math major. When asked why she entered the contest, she said, "My husband wanted me to." Mrs. John "Laurel" Blanchard from Pensacola is the wife of a senior in accounting. They have been married six years and have a one child. She feels that being married while her husband goes to college has proved beneficial and has taught her to be very economical.

"I thought it would be interesting, and I wanted to get to meet new people," said Mrs. Sally Falero explaining why she entered the contest.

Falero's husband, Frank, is working on his doctorate in economics.

Mrs. Sally Gunter is the wife of football player Clifton Gunter from Dothan, Alabama. She is employed by the Florida Development Commission.

Mrs. Gunter thought that the contest would provide a means to meet some of the other wives on campus. Mrs. Maple Shade, New Jersey is Mrs. Fifi Macaulay. Her husband David is a graduate student in elementary education. They have been married 5 1/2 years and have 2 children.

Mrs. James "Shirley" McDermott from Louisville is the wife of a graduate student in chemistry. She entered the contest to "meet new people." They have been married

University Address Stresses Individual

By STEVE PRENTICE
Flambeau Staff Writer

Student Body President John Merting stressed the role of the individual as "the most important commodity at Florida State and any other university," in his State of the University Address released to the Press today and presented before the Senate Wednesday afternoon.

"I disagree with those who believe the student is not important, and think that belief is one of the greatest weaknesses of Florida State," Merting stated.

Merting related the state of the University in three areas, strengths, weaknesses and the unknown. He said that many studies showed FSU as one of the top ten state universities in the nation, academically, and that professors here are constantly receiving awards, grants and national recognition for their work in all academic fields.

"Much progress has been made in physical progress on campus too. For instance, $10 million has been spent on construction in the past five years, and an additional $20 million for construction is either on the drawing board or underway," he added.

Merting also elaborated on the growing strength of the university in the areas of athletics, culture and religion.

"Student strength is what I consider most important of all, and has kept pace with the other growth at FSU," he added.

In the area of weakness in the present state of FSU, Merting said the loss of University President Gordon W. Blackwell headed the list.

"Dr. Blackwell's leadership and contributions to FSU and education in general will be greatly missed," he said.

Another weakness Merting brought out was the trimester system. He said the system had been a detriment to the university system and had failed to meet expectations of those who instituted it.

In conclusion, Merting challenged the students, "Is FSU to continue to progress, maintaining the same national recognition and strength it has enjoyed in the past? The answer lies in your hands."

Stamp Story False

Students will need both their yellow certificate of registration and either their temporary ID or their Photo ID in order to get into tomorrow's game.

The yellow card should bear the "Paid, 13 Weeks" stamp from the Bursar's office, and a number showing that the 25 cents sales tax has been paid.

The photo ID and the temporary ID do not have to be stamped, as was stated in yesterday's "Flambeau."

Book's Popularity Alarmed Texan

To the Editor:

As a historian and a Texan I am alarmed at the campus popularity of "A Texan Looks at Lyndon," by J. Everett Haley.

Haley, a rancher and historian, is best known as the leader of a kind of West Texas Viet Cong devoted to censoring high school textbooks. He is especially active in promoting the deletion of all praise for Mexican-Americans and the efforts of the United Nations to preserve peace. He is also known in Texas for his opposition to the "Impeach Earl Warren" movement; Haley wants to hang him.

In "A Texan Looks at Lyndon" the footnotes are rare and then often just used in asides. He starts on the firm ground of some fairly serious charges against the President, e.g., some of his old business dealings, but he wanders off into the marshland of rumor, old grudges, and unrelated Texas gossip.

The author even manages to deliver an unconvincing account of Lyndon's activities in the 1948 senatorial campaign. I have always been comforted by the belief that Lyndon stole that primary from Coke Stevenson (it gives one the same kind of perverse pleasure as identifying with Flem Snopes).

But Haley states that the whole case rests upon the word of Stevenson, his two lawyers, and a Texas

Ranger, which just isn't enough to sell me. I still believe that Lyndon stole it, but only through faith. Generally this is a book about what has been said about the President. Haley bases his stories on three levels of documentation—some are legitimate, reliable sources, but even here one must cautiously suspect the interpretation he gives them.

The well-documented stories, good and bad, about the President and if the book relied on them for its basis it would be just another book.

A second level of sources to support the vaguer and darker stories resort to such "documentation" as the Dan Smoot Report and "Human Events" magazine, which few unbiased persons would regard as disinterested.

But the most lucrative "authorities" Haley depends on are rumor, presumption, and the evil make-believe of suspicion. Time and again he presents a lurid piece of information with "it was rumored" or "many persons believe," then goes on to base further assumptions on this scrap, usually delivering a shocking inference—but never revealing the reader that the whole foundation of the shock was questionable.

causes the reader to link the President with a murder in Austin, one encounters, "There is a persistent but COMPLETELY UNCONFIRMED STORY that Mrs. Johnson owned one-fourth interest in the plant war-time Sid Richardson Carbon Black Plant."

Then referring to an albino scandal, "there was NOT MUCH DOUBT in anybody's mind that the responsibility could largely be laid on Lyndon B. Johnson." And, "Certain strange if NOT SIGNIFICANT stories keep popping up. . . ." (p. 114). And, "Certain. . . incidents were a matter of RUMOR if not of public knowledge. . ." (p. 114). And, in fact, the capitalization is mine.

Usually Haley establishes a tangential relationship between the President and some Texas folk hero, e.g., Billie Sol Estes. Then he relates in gruesome detail the already documented shortcomings of said hero with the heavy-handed implication that LBJ bores in the background, with his enormous ear to the ground (or telephone).

And, to cite another example, if we are to believe Haley, Lyndon has spent a good portion of his life speaking before B'nai B'rith luncheons. Although Haley is fairly certain that the President himself is not a Jew, it seems that most of his friends are, and every one of them is listed.

Haley's passion for accuracy also leads him to clear up any doubts we might have about the national origins of "Jack (Rubinstein) Ruby." It would be very interesting if the facts were not unargued, but they are not.

The digressions seem strangely out of place in a book about the greatest Texas folk hero of all time, Lyndon. In fact, it is a rather peripheral character in the book.

In so doing, perhaps the author was compelled to publish his book with the Palo Duro Press, Canyon, Texas, which he owns lock, stock, and barrel. No decent company would print it.

Nor would any respectable political party distribute it, but copies are available at the local Gateway headquarters. To this writer the Hayleys constitute a menace to the nation. They conjure up a vision of Neanderthals roaming the plains with their knuckles dragging in the buffalo grass.

The subtitle of the book is "A Study in Illegitimate Power" but might be more candidly subtitled "A Study in Unhospitalized Paranoia."

Rejects Miller's 'Innuendo'

To the Editor:

For those who missed the local speech on Monday of this week by the Republican Vice-Presidential candidate, I wish to repeat an innuendo made by the Republican Miller concerning the President of the United States of America.

Mr. Miller quoted from a 1960 campaign speech made by the then Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate Johnson in which he said, "Bobby Baker is a friend of mine. . . I don't know if he is still in the White House and the first time I saw him I was up in the morning."

Mr. Miller followed this quote with a remark and then there's this Walter Jenkins guy. The crowd chuckled and cheered. A lady near me yelled, "[LBJ] for the YMCAs." I am ashamed of the Republican Party and its merchant of banalities and miller of dirt.

FLAMBEAU FORUM Suggests PW Rerun

To the Editor:

The intense controversy engendered by the Homecoming Pow Wagon skits and the resulting disciplinary action demands but one possible solution.

These skits must be replayed in their entirety, without any revisions, just as they appeared that Friday night. The replay should naturally be held in Westcott Auditorium and furthermore, must be broadcast live over WFUS-TV.

In so doing, those who witnessed the first performance will obtain an opportunity to re-examine their original reactions, and those who missed it, will then be able to judge for themselves the quality of the material.

The doubts of the campus community and the local citizenry will thereby be finally resolved. In addition, it would be helpful to procure an impartial observer, familiar with the field of comedy, and vested with the power of making a binding decision.

I suggest that there is one man who is acknowledged to possess outstanding qualifications for such a task: None other than Lenny Brant, Chuck Funk

FSU Union Needs Barber Pole

To the Editor:

Do we, the students of FSU, appreciate our student union? Of course we do! Are we proud of the many services it contains for our benefit? Of course we are!

This being the case, it seems we should want to advertise just how great it really is by erecting symbols to depict what is contained inside those grey walls.

I am speaking specifically of one of our newest additions, the barber shop. It has purchased a beautiful barber pole, it stands approximately one and a half feet tall and is electrically run to rotate a striking column of blue and red stripes.

This is, of course, the symbol of every barber shop, and since we are lucky enough to have one, it seems we should want to advertise the fact that we do.

This is where a problem arises. It seems that the men of the barber shop are forbidden to erect this sign in front of the shop or in the window for fear of ruining the appearance of our student union.

Can anyone really believe that a barber who has the reputation of being many are proud, would actually ruin the appearance? Why, a little color would do wonders!

If the barbers wanted to erect written signs I could see the problem for this type of advertising design. But the appearance of a building, but, on the other hand, shouldn't a beautiful symbol be something to be proud of and admired?

Students arise! Come to the aid of our hair-cutters and let them know you are behind them.

Any stated opinions will be deeply appreciated.

Reds Like LBJ

To the Editor:

Recently in a South Florida newspaper, I noticed an article reporting that the Communist party in Illinois is beginning a concerted effort to keep Senator Goldwater from being elected to the United States. This effort is to be accomplished by Goldwater propaganda. It seems to me that the Communist party would rather have Lyndon Johnson in the White House than a Republican. I am ashamed of the Communist Party and its merchant of banalities and miller of dirt.

West Pointer Aroused

To the Editor:

I received in the mail today, a clipping from your newspaper dated October 15, 1964. The clipping I received was the letter written to the "Flambeau" by Mr. William Lee Harnage.

As a resident of Tallahassee, and a former student at FSU, my first reaction to Harnage's letter was one of anger. As I continued to read, my feelings changed to pity and fear. I felt pity for Mr. Harnage and his narrow-minded misconceptions of American morality and freedom of speech, and I felt fear as I wondered if others in the Student Body of this Great University shared his views.

It seems that some do, but due to the fact that I was not at the Pow Wagon, I will not comment on that which I did not hear myself. I have seen Mr. Harnage's letter, however.

I realize that I will be accused of leading the "morality parade" Mr. Harnage speaks of. If so, I hope many will fall in behind me.

Before leaving FSU in 1962 at the beginning of my junior year, I was the United States Military Academy at West Point, I was a Kappa Alpha at Florida State.

I am sure that Mr. Harnage will be shocked to learn that the men of Kappa Alpha hold the morality and integrity of Robert E. Lee to be an example worthy of following. I am sure he (Mr. Harnage) will agree that very few KAs have ever been accused of being Victorian.

I remind Mr. Harnage that the eyes of the nation are on FSU. No man ever now that we are a major football power. My fellow cadets, after reading his letter, were forced to realize that his noble attempts to rationalize his own personal prejudice. As for his condemnation of the people of Tallahassee, Mr. Harnage would like to remember that they are among millions of Florida taxpayers paying for his education who are not amused by public vulgarity. He condemns the administration for not "standing up" for its students. I would like to praise the administration for "putting up" with Mr. Harnage and his followers for as long as they have lived.

Grow up, William Lee Harnage, you may have to face real people someday.

Administration 'Stamped'?

To the Editor:

It seems to be the opinion on campus that the student body government is a puppet for the Administration. This may be true and, if it is, it only compounds our troubles for when we see the recent antics of the Administration, we realize that it is a puppet for the puppet. In a recent undated Tallahassee citizens that don't have anything better to do than correct other peoples' morals—11,000 other people and, collectively as Florida State University. How can an Administration, which knows so little about its students that it was shocked by a recent parody of some of its activities (granted they weren't the best), pretend to apologize for the said students?

How can an Administration that is supposed to stand behind its institution be stamped into denouncing its students and apologizing twice, so . . .

Colleges have always been the harbingers of new movements, technically, they must prevail. Most colleges in the U.S. obtain this type of atmosphere and have administrations that realize the need for it. The administrations guard this atmosphere and the students in it carefully. They stand behind their institutions and students.

They run their institutions for the students, their studies, and their new ideas—not for the self-righteous ideals of a few who think that they hold the right of judgment on a generation they know nothing about. . . .

Comments On Dancers

To the Editor:

We can thank Mr. Stan Stearns for several valuable insights into the recent performance of the Raduga Dancers here. It appears to me, however, that he missed one or two points with mentioning.

First, what appeared to me to be a dancer from the beginning of the performance in the ballet section, entitled "Autumn," was the choreography seemed far superior to any of the other duets. The development was smooth and consistent from beginning to end, and the dancers Vitslin and Rittenberg were superb in their sympathetic depiction of the theme.

Second, me, and to others with whom I have talked, this was one of the high points of the ballet section, the other one being the already-mentioned "Cygne" of Saint-Saens. A second point upon which I must agree with Mr. Stearns is in his criticism of the characterization of the dances in the Walpurgis Night excerpt.

Third, I noted that Gounod, in conforming to the French taste for a ballet scene, the second act of any and every opera, has contrived a rather jumbled mixture of mythology and black magic in his injection of this Walpurgisnacht scene into Faust, nevertheless we must expect the performance to classical tradition.

Fourth, Dionysus, as an Olympian god, was idealized as an athlete in Greek representation (see the so-called Theus in the east pediment of the Parthenon), the god was inclined to adopt mortal guises during his earthly wanderings, and his choice of a human form was not noted for any great masculinity.

Quite to the contrary, a look at Euripides' "The Bacchae" will show Dionysus to be "that girl-faced stranger" of whom Pentheus says, "No wrestler thou, as show thy flowing locks down thy cheeks floating. . . And white, from heaving tenderness, is thy skin." (A.S. Way translation). Winington-Ingram says of Euripides' Dionysus, "He is beautiful, but in an effeminate style."

Effeminate though his appearance, Bacchus was still regarded as a threat to the chastity of the women who engaged in the Bacchic rites, and this seems confirmed symbolically by the pair of bullhorns sprouting from his forehead.

Our Soviet dancers did not overlook this point either, and displayed the expected prurience in unmistakable gestures, which did not, however, transcend the bounds of good taste. Mr. Stearns is most correct in pointing out the lack of good choreography in many of the ballet excerpts, but he does not mention the problem of trying to reconcile the program with the dances presented. Certainly there was ample room for confusion, since most of the excerpts were not familiar, and the program changes were not clarified in advance.

Seminole Loss Student's Fault

To the Editor:

The loss FSU suffered at the hands of VPI is not solely the fault of the team who represented us, but of the entire student body.

This student body is dead on its feet, it lacks the school spirit and enthusiasm that a school of its size should have. The pep rally held last Thursday is typical example of this lack of support.

For years people have complained about not having a major football team, and now that we've got one—we don't even support it.

So let's change all that. Forget how you or may not have been wronged at the Pow Wow and let's ALL TOGETHER give the team the support they rightfully deserve.

At the next home game yell until you can yell no more, and when the game has ended and we've reached all victory in our pockets, from all those who walk away and still have voice enough to yell and cheer.

We've been knocked from our high flying chariot, but not let's climb back up there, ONE AND ALL—and be damned he who tries to stop us now.

Which Is Greater Problem?

To the Editor:

In reference to Steve Chenault's letter of Oct. 27, I feel certain a poll of journalists and educators throughout our country would reveal some diversity of opinion as to what exactly constitutes the most pressing world problem at this moment.

And the general result of the same question put to politicians and college students nationwide would probably yield the same or even wider diversity.

The viewpoint of the latter sampling would, however, be considerably more limited in scope of knowledge of the subject. The same tele-

To the Editor:

I was not surprised to read Ron Seibel's letter in the Wednesday "Flambeau."

In the many years that I have been at FSU I don't think that a single trimester has gone by without someone complaining that the "Flambeau" is biased in one way or another. I am amazed at the lack of intelligence, taste, and honesty evidenced in Mr. Seibel's letter.

His second sentence makes clear just what it takes for a newspaper to be slanted and biased: It needs only an "ideologically oriented" minority clearly states a value judgment, weren't you just complaining that the "Flambeau" gives value judgments based on facts, Mr. Seibel?

It takes a truly remarkable resistance to intelligent thinking to confuse Dr. Schwartz's professional competence with his private social opinions.

Dr. Schwartz is known nationwide as one of the finest representatives of the teaching profession. You do not have to sit in his class and listen to him "babble"—you do have the privilege of hearing a very fine educator if you are lucky enough to beat the crowd at registration.

Schwartz's personal convictions, whatever they may be, are irrelevant to a physics course. Your crude, vicious, unwarranted attack on Dr. Schwartz as an educator was disgusting. If you disagree with his personal feelings on social matters (and there is room to do that) then why don't you grow up and say so. Stop acting like a spoiled, frustrated child, and wildly heaving stones in every direction in the hopes of damaging something.

If we do lose Dr. Schwartz in the proposed "Burns Blitz" (which is unlikely) then it will be only another example of FSU giving some other school a push up the ladder toward "greatness" at its own expense.

Lost More Than Game

To the Editor:

Well, sports fans, we did it, after many years of having an unknown football team we made the limelight. For two straight weeks our "Magnificent" team was rated tenth in the nation. Our boys deserved a lot of credit, they did a good job, and every student on campus boasted of their fine, outstanding football team.

The Seminoles soon found out that national limelight was far greater than the Florida sunshine which they were used to playing under, and it got in their eyes.

The Seminoles riding the number ten spot on the national polls were thought to be on the warpath as they entered the stadium at Georgia two weeks ago. They soon found out that the "Baldgods" weren't impressed with their rating, because those Georgia boys tore into the Seminoles like a hungry animal tearing into a freshly killed pig.

We won the game as you remember, but the casualties were heavy. Some of our "goats" were left in the limelight, just as bright as ever. Someone forgot to tell the Gobs at VPI just what a good team we were. Someone who they came out on the field last Saturday afternoon, they were convinced that they were playing FSU, and not number ten, and our national rating, but in the closing minutes of that unbelievable game we lost our self respect, W. "Duke" Mader

Blasts Preferential Seating

To the Editor:

Because of the preference of the seating arrangement at the performances of the Raduga Dancers and the Spoon River Anthology it looks like the political "down-down," ball-slap-ping, you-grease-my-palm I'll grease-you, good-time favoritism, and general contempt for the masses that has made the ranking range so famous, has CREPT into the FSU ticket office.

How is it that on a first-come-first-served basis that not three students could get one of the 500 or so prime seats in the middle section. No qualms about the faculty having first choice, God knows they deserve all the compensation possible, but where did all the other people come from?

The down-town gentry? Why should they be considered before the general student body? If those untalented persons who are tampering with the soul of our ticket office have mitigation for displaying favoritism, then let them come forward and place it in the open.

Let the students know why they are ever being relegated to the poorer seats.

When some nine thousand student tickets have been sold to U of F on the FSU side of the field, why should 3000 students who come under the pretence of organizational favor over 9000 fellow students to inferior seating.

I don't know how this block seating ruling came about, but I can't visualize somebody voting for privilege seating unless they were being paraded of that privilege.

Somebody sold us out, because the general body of students have never voted to sit in poorer seats and let us sit-happy, screaming, coke-thriving, disoriented, and conglomeration of infants sit on the fifty yard line merely to boost the spirit of the team and of the school.

There should be a referendum called to abolish privilege seating at football games. If you see a petition, SIGN IT, it is for your benefit. Harold Fisher

Team Wins, Students Lose

To the Editor:

Florida State University is in the top ten, who cares? Apparently the FSU student body doesn't. Thursday night an infinitesimal number of Seminoles supporters showed up to cheer on their mighty school's football team; pardon me, their school's mighty football team.

What a heartwarming sight to see the entire 1.5% of the student body at the rally. The student body was probably more greatly represented in the beds of the infirmary than at the pep rally.

It was even a more heartwarming sight to see Coach Peterson address this huge gathering of people and see the disappointment in his facial expression, the sadness in his eyes and hear the deep, quiet, almost moribund tone of his crackling voice.

Last year at this time he was languid in effigy. This year he was crucified by the indifferent student body. Where were you, the other 98.5%? Could you have spared 45 minutes of your "well-spent" time to support your school and your football team?

After Thursday's shameful rout, don't deserve to call it "your" football team.

The Florida State football team is incredibly good. Florida State school spirit is incredibly bad.

As Coach Peterson stated, the team needs the enthusiastic backing of its student body. How can it be so inadequate at its best if the only reinforcement it gets from its student body is overt laziness?

How can FSU be a big winner if its student body is a big loser? On this campus when Ulysses needs support, Penelope is not to be found. Louis A. Lombana

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE STUDENTS, FACULTY, AND ADMINISTRATION OF FLORIDA STATE UNIVERSITY AND THE CITIZENS OF THE STATE OF FLORIDA-

It is with a heavy heart and against the advice of a number of close friends and associates that I today offer my resignation as a student of Florida State University.

As a graduate student, returning to FSU I have done my utmost to comprehend the complete chaos and uselessness of the trimester system and have waited patiently to see this University grow both academically and socially.

The events of the past week, coupled with several previous experiences, have shown me that such desired growth is highly unlikely while certain officials of this university are allowed to continue their present administrative policies.

Unless these policies were to be significantly changed and certain errors publicly admitted, I would find it impossible to maintain any sort of intellectual compatibility or personal respect for individuals concerned.

In the aftermath of the FSU Homecoming P.W. war parodies and the resultant disciplines handed down from the Ivory Tower at Westcott, I have asked myself a number of questions:

1. What was the intention of these skits?
2. What was the true story behind the screening of the skits?
3. What was the immediate reaction of the administration in the personal statements of Dean of Students, Harry Day?
4. What was the true story behind the so-called investigation of the skits?

5. What has been the final outcome of the action of the administration? In answering the first question, I will say that despite the alleged vulgarity, these skits were an urgent protest of a large part of the student body against the absurd and archaic social regulations of this University. Pressured by the wearing pace of the trimester system, a number of quite prominent people finally got sick and tired of being treated as kindergarten children and playing the administration's game of "let's pretend this is FSU."

While capable of realizing that certain social rules and regulations are necessary, I personally consider a number of the present statutes an insult to my intelligence and integrity as well as to that of any college student.

In answering questions two, three, and four, I assume (perhaps optimistically) that the true facts, contained in the joint IFC-Fanhellenic protest, presented with some difficulty to President Blackwell, will be published and ask that the reader find these out for himself.

I will, however, mention (1) the error of Dean Day in making his initial hasty apologies to the state press without finding out what the actual facts were, (2), the very questionable procedure of the Dean's of Men, Women, and Students in ignoring the IFC Constitution and conducting their own so-called investigation of the skits.

In this "investigation" the parties concerned were considered guilty before the proceedings began and a number of persons were subjected to personal insults and affronts to their character, and (3) the unwarranted and unjust disciplinary measures taken against certain groups to cover up for an obvious administrative blunder.

Now what has been the outcome of the disciplinary action of the administration? The outcome is a feeling that an administration, which was haphazard and backbiting about freedom for certain unpopular left-wing groups just six months ago, has now shown everyone what academic freedom is at FSU.

Academic freedom is just what the administration defines to be. When it suits them, speak out; when it doesn't, watch out! Gleeful suppression of ideas and thoughts are certainly not characteristic of this University. I wish to be a part of these questions bring another perhaps more important question to mind—Just what is the administration's policy toward Greek organizations on this campus. Doesn't it seem to be a blustering "Greeks, we will bury you!"

It is indeed a wonder that groups who managed to pass out leftist literature as if it were a part of registration last April are still functioning as integral parts of the University, while a number of Greek organizations, who dared to criticize the administration, may well have been published anywhere. (See the FSU's letter to the S.A.L.'s, "Florida Flambeau," Oct. 7, 1964.)

I view this general pre-announced series of unjust and pre-ordained attacks on myself and my close friends and associates. Perhaps some day, FSU will grow up and mature. Its growing pains are obvious to all who take time to see, but if simply ignored by the powers that be, they will worsen and die-and with them the dream of a great university. As for myself, I will always keep a fond place in my mind and heart for those good friends, good times, and small rashes of an intellectual experience that FSU has given to me.

I only hope that those who read this statement will now take the necessary steps to make the Florida State University the outstanding academic and social institution it should be.

For I'll be watching from next far-to use a perhaps throwaway still appropriate paraphrase—old grads never die; they just slide away.

And what of this attitude toward the Greeks that the administration would seem to be nurturing on campus? It has helped lead to one of the most flagrantly libelous and slanderous letters I have ever seen published anywhere. (See the FSU's letter to the S.A.L.'s, "Florida Flambeau," Oct. 7, 1964.)

Flambeau SPORTS

Tribe After Win; Stop USM Scores

by BOB CORNET

Old maxim passed down to the valiant youth by ancient sage of an Early Times named Old Crow: One game doth not a season make (even for a fair weather sports editor).

Ergo (Latin for watch out for what's coming next it's a gasser) last Saturday's loss to VPI does not necessarily mean the ruin of the Tribe's record. It may be dented a little, but not beyond repair.

Even in the Gobbler losing effort the Seminoles racked up over 400 yards in total offense and almost 300 in passing. Also Fred Biletnikoff grabbed off 11 passes for a new school record and put himself at the top of the nation's pass catchers.

While all these preliminaries were impressive the Garnet and Gold showed a shyness about crossing the goal line that's usually associated with a high school boy on his first date with a college coed.

This week Coach Pete tried to work this bashfulness out of the team. He spent a good deal of time on goal line smashes through the line and scoring plays from within the 20.

Biletnikoff as usual showed little modesty in crossing the hallowed ground. He and quarterback Steve Tensi continued to work on new plays to bedazzle, befuddle and beat the Southerners.

The Magnificent Seven and Formidable Four conversely worked on ways to protect the sanctity of the FSU end zone.

Against Georgia and VPI the chastity of the Tribe's goal line was severely tested.

Saturday the Southerners should remember that they are gentlemen of the South and "a good night kiss on the cheek is ok, but les' not run out of gas 'cept under a street light."

14 Cadets Named Outstanding

James Milton J. Tankersley, commander of military science at FSU, has designated 14 outstanding members of Army ROTC as Distinguished Military Students for this 1964-65 school year.

The cadets, all seniors in the United States Army ROTC, received the award at a Cadet Review on the campus around Thursday.

The cadets designated as DMS are: Robert D. Bryson, Fred H. Essig, John Glass, Bruce A. Grant, Kenneth H. Hart, Charles E. Holmes, William H. Huxel, Donald C. Jones, and James Johnson, Danny H. Keith, Milton M. Moll, Fred C. Sheldon, Robert D. Susik, and Kenneth M. West.

The award of Distinguished Military Students is made to those senior Army ROTC cadets who have excelled in the fields of leadership and military knowledge and are academically proficient.

A cadet must stand in at least the upper half of his class in the University and at least the upper third of his military classes.

The cadet so designated may accept a commission in the Regular Army subject to his graduation.

Pearl S. Buck, Nobel and Pulitzer prize winning authoress, will speak tomorrow at 4:10 p.m. in Westminster House for the English Coffee Hour on "My Work."

Mrs. Buck will be in Tallahassee through Wednesday for several fund raising appearances for the Pearl S. Buck Foundation. The Fund was founded early this year to find and care for half-American, half-Asian orphans fathered by U. S. servicemen.

The Arthur Murray Studios are bringing her to Tallahassee on behalf of the Pearl S. Buck Foundation. The Coffee Hour, sponsored by Student Government and the "Florida Flambeau," has been moved up from the usual day, Friday, for Mrs. Buck's talk.

A prolific writer, she has published more than 30 books which include "The Young Revolutionist," "A House Divided," "The Exile," "The Patriot," "Of Men and Women," "What America Means to Me," "Water-Butter Children," "Portrait of a Marriage," "Talk About Russia," "Pavilion of Women," "The Big Wave," "Peony," "One Bright Day," "My Several Worlds," "Imperial Woman," "Letters from Peking" and "Christmas Ghost."

Norman Dello Joio Gives Recital Wednesday Night

Pulitzer Prize winning composer, pianist and organist Norman Dello Joio will be on campus tomorrow and Wednesday.

The famous musician will perform at a concert featuring his compositions at 8:15 p.m. Wednesday in Westcott Auditorium. The program, which will be presented by the Symphonic Band and the University Singers, is free and open to the public.

A Faculty Recital featuring Dello Joio's works will be presented in Opperman Music Hall 8:15 p.m. tomorrow. The world-famous composer will be present for this performance, which is also open to the public.

The virtuoso organist, a student of the famous Paul Hindemith, will also speak to music students tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Artists performing at the Faculty Recital tomorrow include singers, composers, instrumentalists and other outstanding members of the FSU music faculty.

Dello Joio will perform during two numbers on the Wednesday night concert. He will conduct the University Singers in presenting his "Variations on a Medieval Tune" and will accompany them on the piano in his "A Jubilant Song."

Dello Joio is particularly well-known for the lyricism and melodic line of his compositions. Music critic Edward Downes lauds his compositions for their "outgoing directness of expression and simplicity of manner."

One of Dello Joio's convictions, Downes states, is that "this music should communicate with a broad, contemporary public—not with an alert 'avant-garde', not with a few fellow composers, not with some hypothetical future public."

Presenting Dello Joio's works at the Faculty Recital tomorrow will be seven artists from the FSU School of Music. Ruth Posselt, violinist, accompanied by John Boda will present "Variations and Capriccio for Violin."

Norma and Leonard Mastrogioco, pianists, will perform "Aria and Toccata for Two Pianos," "Trio for Flute, Cello and Piano" will be offered by Ronald Wain, flutist, Owen Sellers, cellist; and Roy Johnson, pianist.

Other performances at the faculty recital include Elena Nikolaidi, soprano.

Compositions by Dello Joio to be presented by the Symphonic Band and the University Singers Wednesday night include "To Saint Cecilia," "Three Songs" by Chopin arranged by Dello Joio; "A Jubilant Song" and "Variations on a Medieval Tune."

A composition by Dello Joio's father, Cassimir Dello Joio, will also be presented. This composition is entitled "Improprium Expectativ."

Practice Begins For Cheerleaders

Practice, in preparation for cheerleader tryouts, begins today at 4 p.m. on Landis Green, announced head cheerleader, Key Lewis today.

The practice sessions will continue through Wednesday and actual tryouts will be at Opperman Amphitheater Thursday.

"We would especially like to see more men try out for the cheerleading squad," Miss Lewis said.

A few good strong voices in addition to the regular squad would help a great deal," she added.

"We would also like to see some students who are interested in gymnastics try out," she said.

She said all persons trying out should wear proper attire

FOCUS PERSONNEL

John Perkins and Wayne Cowart (right) discuss plans for tonight's "Focus," which will include a discussion of the FSU Public Forum.

Depository To Move

The Student Depository will be closed Wednesday and Thursday in order to move equipment into the former Trophy Room of the University Union.

Student Visitors To Cuba Tell Of Experiences Tonight At FSU

By BOB CORNET
"We wanted to see first hand what was going on in Cuba and not have to depend on the mass media, which were usually contradictory, for our information," said members of the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba today.

Mary Maher, Steve Newman, and Alan Lowe, members of the New York committee are at FSU as guests of the Students Act for Peace-Liberal Forum. They are trying to get speaking permission from PFC. The students who went to Cuba will speak at 7:30 tonight in the Unitarian Chapel. Slides of Cuba will be shown, also. The speech is being sponsored by the Students Act for Peace.

The three traveled to Cuba at the expense of the Cuban government last June and August. They went to the island in defiance of the United States Department ban on travel to Cuba. Miss Maher said that they also went to demonstrate their belief in the right of free travel and of their support of the Castro regime.

When in Cuba, the 84 students in the group traveled from one of the islands to the other.

"The group," said Lowe, "was allowed to walk and talk wherever they please."

For experience sake though, they were transported from area to area by the government.

Once in a city, he said, there were organized tours or the touring students could wander around at will.

Newman said that the Cubans had made a lot of improvement under Castro's rule. He cited new housing, racial equality, high employment, equal distribution of food, and medical care.

Miss Maher said that she was impressed by the advancements in education and fine arts. "One third of the Cuban population is in school and 70,000 students are on full scholarship."

She further pointed out that the old, rich sections of Havana have been turned into a school for fine arts. When commenting on recent news articles calling Havana a "grey city," Newman said that what the reporters probably missed were the old bars, nightclubs, restaurants, and whore houses.

Most people they talked to, said the three, were satisfied with the Castro government. However they did find some complainers.

"These were mainly among the old privileged class and those people who used to depend on the tourist trade," said Lowe, "On a people to people basis."

... U.S. Face Reality?

of national courage. As James Burnham has reminded us in his brilliant book, "Suitcase of the West," just possible we shall not have to die in large numbers to stop them (the Communists); but we shall certainly have to be willing to die."

Reality is indeed unpleasant. Americans will face a choice in a few days between a philosophy of government designed to cope with reality, and an opposing view designed to please the voters. Are we ready to face reality?

You will know on November the fourth.

Alan Barr

said Lowe, "The Cubans were very friendly toward the United States. They resent US embargo policies but are friendly toward the people of the US."

Lowe felt that this was a reflection of Castro's conciliatory attitude toward the United States. He said that Castro had agreed to discuss negotiations with the US in July but had not gotten much response from this government.

These three members of the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba are on tour in Florida to "tell the truth about Cuba."

"In this way," said Newman, "we may be able to influence some people to get the government to change its attitude on Cuba."

"We are also trying to get students to go on next year's trip," said Miss Maher.

Wigelius Endorses Passage Of State Amendment Number Two

Mike Wigelius, secretary of state, announced today that student government's executive branch was in favor of the passage of Amendment number two on the November ballot. The Constitutional amendment is a measure to allow the state legislature to establish nine-year terms of office for the members of the board of regents which oversees state colleges and universities.

The present constitutional provision for the creation of any new amendment requires more than four years of discussion. "We feel that passage of Amendment will help to remove the pressures from members of the board of regents and will help facilitate the appointment of university administrators by the regents," members to the board of regents said.

FSU Poet Wins

Donald Watkins, an FSU English major, received top place for best single poem in the 5th Annual Florida Division of the National Poetry Day competition.

His poem "Song of Daphne," is a haunting poem of a young immigrant Jewish student. Judge for the poem was Dr. Albert H. Carter, director of humanities at Florida Presbyterian College.

Prizes were awarded Sunday by Edna Johnson Larsen.

A senate bill passed at the 10th session of the Florida Legislature replaced the Board of Regents with the Board of Regents. The bill created membership of the board and established terms of office for the members subject to passage of Amendment number two.

Student Body President James Merring said, "I urge all students and non-students to carefully read Amendment two on the Nov. 5 ballot and vote in favor of it."

'Dear Old Dad' Ignored By Kid, Old Man Still Around

By MELDIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Writer

While thousands cheer the football team to victory, its founding father team of soccer goes by unnoticed. Soccer, the universal sport of many countries is a fast moving game consisting of 45 minute halves testing the players' endurance and agility on the field.

A team is composed of 11 men who move a soccer ball by means of body and foot control. There is no direct contact with the sphere during the game except by the goalie who guards the goal. It is not a game of brute strength but rather of speed, ball control, teamwork, and endurance. As a fore-runner game to football, the sport is played on a 75 by 120 yard field. FSU has a small but growing team consisting of eighteen members. The club began to form in 1963 with an earnest effort toward promoting it, finally getting underway in 1962 when the club developed into a competing team.

In 1963 upon buying uniforms, the team managed to set a record with a 2-1-1 season score. This year, under the financial support of the student government, the club has high hopes of growing, and setting the foundation for a future varsity sport.

Doug Padgett, secretary and player, believes "A school the size of FSU should have more varsity sports as well as student support in the so called minor sports as wrestling, soccer, and gymnastics." Padgett hopes that eventually, soccer will grow in the South to become a great spectator sport as it is in other countries.

Working with Ed Cubbons, Intramural Director, the team plays scheduled games with Florida schools and soccer clubs twice a month. It is a sport that can be played year round.

The team has thus far met with the University of Florida and Brumms Spiders, a club in Jacksonville.

Future games include matches with University of Jacksonville, St. Leo Abbey of Dade City, Miami Air Force Base, and St. Petersburg as well as return matches with the before mentioned.

Under the guidance of co-captain Marlene Matthews and Robert Pace, the team practices weekly on Monday and Thursday at 4 p.m. and Saturday at 10 a.m. Unfortunately there is no faculty coach for the team. The team is composed of 18 students.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Phi Delta Theta meets head on with Delta Tau Delta today in the semi-final game of the flag football season. The winners of today's game go on to play undefeated Phi Kappa Tau tomorrow for the championship, while the losers finish third for the competition.

Smith Hall massacred Hillel by over 300 pins to win first place in the bowling intramurals.

SOCCER CLUB: FSU Soccer team went down in defeat to the Dolphins of Jacksonville University by the slim margin of 4-3.

Containing the Dolphins the first half, FSU racked up three points behind the outstanding play of Manfred Ziegler who scored all FSU points and the fine defensive play by Dick Goddard and goalie Bill Maddox.

But the second half found a fired up Dolphin team who began to stop the FSU drives and held forwards John Aken and Ernst Schubert to minimum yardage while they scored 4 points to win the match. One score came on a penalty kick and another on a 30 yard shot from the left wing position that sailed into the corner of the goal.

"The unshakeable strength of the Democratic Party lies more in its kinship with what people want and aspire to than in anything else. It is this rapport with people, wherever they live, whatever their station in life, that furnishes our Party with the leadership to see what needs to be done, and the courage to do it. # Tribe Tricks (Miss) Treat USM

By RICH HALTIN

Southern Mississippi came hoping for a treat, but ended up befuddled and beaten by a slick bag of Seminole tricks Halloween night in Iloak Campbell Stadium.

Chief Frankster for the Tribe was All-American candidate Fred Bilenickoff who singlehandedly gained more than twice the yardage of the entire Southern Miss. team. He scored a third quarter touchdown with a fantastic burst of speed and an overhead catch.

Quarterbacks Steve Tensi and Ed Pritchett were on target to the tune of 18 completions on 23 tosses and not a single interception.

Phil Spooner, Larry Green, and Joe Teiko rammed through for good ground yardage. Fullback Lee Narmore cranked the line for a number of yards but had to retire early in the game with a slight injury.

The Magnificent Seven played a savage, aggressive game that held the Mississippians to 88 total yards on offense and a big goose egg on the score board.

FSU began with a bang on the first offensive play as Tensi handed off to Pritchett who had lined up as a halfback. Pritchett stopped and lobbed a long one to "Fleet Free!" for a 43 yard gain and first down on the Mississippi 19 yard line. The running of Spooner and Narmore brought the Seminole to the three, only to be set back 15 yards for defensive holding.

Tensi tossed to Bilenickoff in the end zone but the throw was a shade too long.

With third down and large yardage to go the Southerners expected the same thing. Sure enough, Bilenickoff sped deep into the end zone. But Tensi flipped a screen pass to halfback Spooner who, with the help of a wave of blockers, covered the entire 20 yards to score.

A rare conversion miss by Les Muddick left the score at 6-0 after less than four minutes of play. Mississippi Southern could not move the ball and punted.

This time the Seminole set up shop on their own 46. The slashing runs of Spooner and Narmore quickly moved FSU to the Southern Miss. 23 yard stripe.

But Tensi and Bilenickoff found the air route even quicker as they teamed for an 18 yard gain and first and goal on the enemy five. Two line backs by fullback Wayne Giacinto put the ball on the two. Here the Southerners watched in frozen awe as quarterback Tensi quickly rolled out and instead of throwing, leaped into the end zone for what was reported to be his first running score.

In the second period the Seminole offense got steaming twice but both thrusts were killed by penalties and Pritchett kicked to USM, both times.

On the second punt Southern's speedy tailback Herman Nall returned 26 yards to the FSU 48 yard line. However, hard hitting by the Seven Magnificents prevented a threat by the Mississippians.

Following a punt into the end zone FSU took over at their 20 and again wasted no time getting on the score board. Under Tensi's leadership and Bilenickoff's receiving the Tribe covered 80 yards in seven plays to rack up their third tally.

The clincher came on a beautiful 28 yard burst by sophomore Larry Green who ran through and past Southern defenders to score standing up.

The over 26,000 spectators were treated to a fabulous halftime show with bands from South Georgia at North Florida. And in the dressing room the gridders were treated to a review of the first half, some encouragement, and a few well chosen words from the coaches.

FSU took over from the Mississippians early in the third quarter and in good field position on the Southern 44.

The Tribe got a quick 26 yards on a Tensi to Floyd pass pattern. Driving to the four FSU suffered setbacks on a penalty and Steve Tensi getting dumped for a loss by Southern defenders.

But Big Steve got right up and threw two strikes in a row for the Seminole's fourth touchdown. The second pass coming on fourth down with a knee-cup catch by heavily defended Red Dawson.

Bilenickoff contributed the last FSU TD on a sensational overhead catch on the ten of USM and then scooting the remaining yardage unharmed.

STEVE TENSI

... fooled everybody Saturday night as the passing quarterback got the first running TD of his career against USM.

Open Letter To ALL Florida Voters

Florida voters of both parties who are not satisfied with the results of the Spring primaries still have a chance to vote the way they believe.

They can write in the name of their choice.

A WRITE-IN VOTE CAN WIN. Even if it does not, it's better than a non-choice vote, or a half-hearted one, or no vote at all. Strom Thurmond of S.C. won by a write in vote.

It is simple. It is entirely legal.

One simply raises the slot which will be above the name of Haydon Burns on the election machine. In Leon County this will be slot No. 3.

The space is small. It will easily hold the name: R.K. HIGH.

There are no professional politicians involved in this effort. It is a drive by private citizens in behalf of the man they consider best for Florida.

It's a drive in their own behalf, really. Robert King High, when this effort was brought to his attention, disavowed it, and said he had already pledged his allegiance to the "PARTY'S CHOICE."

But the people, of both parties, must have a choice too. This is not a "sour grapes" attempt to discredit either Mr. Burns or Mr. Holley.

There are, however, hundreds of thousands of our state's voters who have never voted for either of those nominees.

They look with disfavor, for example, on the educational views and "promises" of Mr. Burns as contrasted with his record and the educational and social performance of his city.

Robert King High - "R.K. High" stands as a better choice.

High gathered 300,000 votes OUTSIDE OF HIS OWN COUNTY on May 25. These Floridians must have wanted better than Mr. Burns could possibly offer, except in "promises."

These Floridians can have something better. They can write in "R.K. High."

Dello Joio Present For Concert Tonight

Pulitzer Prize winning composer- pianist Norman Dello Joio will be present tonight when 11 FSU musicians present a concert featuring his compositions in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Elena Nikolaidi, Carlisle Floyd, Harold Schiffman, Richard Collins, John Boda, Ruth Fosselt, Roy Johnson, Richard Wain, Owen Sellers, and Norma and Leonard Mastrogiacomo are to be the performing artists for the concert which is free and open to the public.

Transit Company Running in Red; Service Stopped

It has been announced through the Dean of Students office that the bus to Alumni Village will no longer run.

The manager of the Cities Transit Company said that they were going in the hole because not enough students were riding the bus.

When asked what those who were riding the bus might do for transportation, Day said, "The housing office is not planning to run the bus that they formerly used because it is too small to meet the needs of the students."

However, in a memorandum from the housing office, it was stated that the regular Cities Transit bus for Levy Street will continue to run. Students may catch the bus at the corner of Levy and Highland.

The first run is at 6:30 a.m. and will run every hour thereafter until about 6:30 p.m. A transfer may then be caught from downtown to the campus.

Day said, "I am disappointed. If this had worked out we may have persuaded the company to consider running buses for other parts of the campus."

Composer and virtuoso organist Dello Joio, a student of the famous Paul Hindemith, is particularly known for the lyricism and melodic line of his compositions. His music is designed for "a broad, contemporary public" rather than only for other musicians.

At the concert tonight, Norma and Leonard Mastrogiacomo, pianists, will present Dello Joio's "Aria and Toccata for Two Pianos."

Ruth Fosselt, violinist, will be accompanied by John Boda, concertmaster. "Variations and Capriccio for Violin."

Anchor Dello Joio composition, "Trio for Flute, Cello and Piano," will be presented by Ronald Wain, Owen Sellers, and Roy Johnson. Compositions by Floyd, Johnson, and Schiffman will also be presented tonight. Elena Nikolaidi, soprano, will be accompanied by Floyd in presenting two songs from "The Merry Widow" by Floy.

Pianist Johnson will render his own Sonata Number Two.

VP Announces Senators' Cuts

Joyce Killian, vice president of the student body, announced today the following Senate absences: Men's Vice President Cannon, two; Proctor, one; Thackston, two; O'Connell, one; McIlyea, one; Stearns, one; McDonald, one; and Siperley, one.

LRD Shows Needed

There will be a meeting in Longmire at 7:30 p.m., Wednesday night for those students interested in being hosts for Legislative Recognition Day, Nov. 14.

New Activities Offices

All student government offices, publications and student activities are now located in the University Union.

Most telephone s have been switched so that the offices may be contacted by dialing the same numbers.

Ensemble Gives Concert Friday

The Percussion Ensemble at FSU will present a concert Friday evening, at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

The Percussion Ensemble is conducted by Ramon E. Meyer of the music faculty.

Opening numbers of the program will be "Reminiscings" by James Lattimer; "Fugue for Light Percussion Instruments" by William Russell and "Xochipilli" a reconstruction of the music of ancient Mexicans by Carlos Chavez.

Other selections on the program include "Dance of the Black-Haired Mountain Storm" by Alan Hovhanness, an American-born composer of Armenian extraction; "Ritmo Jondo" by Carlos Surinach. The three Flamenco rhythms, "Ritmo Jondo," were first performed in a concert of percussion music at the Museum of Modern Art, New York, in 1952.

Members of the percussion include Kenneth Jordan, Samuel R. Harris, Mark Ellerbee, John F. Harrison, Diane Bishop, Thomas Kane, Jack H. Gibson, and George Mabry.

Assisting instrumentalists will be Paul Hanna (trombone); Richard Brock (piccolo); Rebecca Walker (clarinet); and Robert Danks (trumpet).

The concert will be taped by WFSU-FM and will be broadcast Sunday at 8:30 p.m., Nov. 22.

Corrects Erroneous Impression Given By Preceding Letter

To the Editor:

In reply to the letter from Dee Weber and John Sweet's (FS Cheerleaders) I would like to correct an erroneous impression which I was aware when I saw my letter printed in the Oct. 1 paper.

My letter, which was written two weeks before it appeared in the "Flambeau," and is the one to which you referred, was not intended to mean the return of the football team to the airport at 4:00 in the morning, but rather their return from the Miami game, at 9:30 in the morning the week before.

It was at this welcome, which is really using "welcome" in a broad term, that I experienced this disheartening feeling which I wrote about.

You speak of the "priority at registration, and to have food, books and/or education paid for." Did you stop to consider that a large percent of these boys would not be able to afford to even go to college—much less afford a formal education which is so necessary today—if I were not for these football scholarships. Don't misunderstand me, I DO NOT condone any ungentlemanly conduct, nor do that fact should anyone, but I for see why they should be granted the "Special privileges" of eating proper meals and having help with their studies, when help is needed. They more than pay for these services with two weeks given up, by them, that could have been enjoyed on the beach or resting at home. During these two weeks before every on-ense packs and heads for school these boys already starting to sweat and work for their education.

The University can't afford to spend time and money on someone who does not have the potential and ability to bring distinction to the school and they are going to make sure that every effort is made to see that these boys do their very best at all times. As for the "sacrifices" that I mentioned previously, I feel very deeply that these boys do make sacrifices. There are times when they would much prefer to be sitting in a comfortable chair reading a favorite book or lounging on a cushioned couch or perhaps even studying for an up-coming test, during the afternoon.

But instead of this type of relaxation they are being walked and fallen upon—as well as walking and when other boys. They come home bloody, bruised, cut, limp and sore—so sore that they find it impossible to pick up a simple little glass of milk or so weak with fatigue that it hurts to do ordinary things like scratching your own back or bending over to the shoes. These physical conditions are certainly not the picture of leisureness and comfort.

They run the risk of having shoulder separated from its joining member or a foot twisted till it seems to fall off or break. They hear their fellow players' bones crunch under their own weight and that of possibly five or six other 200 pounds.

They know the fear and sickening feeling of seeing their own hand being trodden by cleats and being unable to move it because it is pinned under someone. They shudder to think of the dentist bills for broken or, as more often happens, the complete removal of teeth by a size 13, which I have been told can be quite painful. This is surely not a picture of someone who is making no sacrifice.

I agree with you two that the ex-soldier body should FILL this exhilaration and spirit "and because it is an obligation, but because you want to" but there are times when you need to find a spark to kindle that will give meaning to these well meaning students that this is what they really want to do. I don't suggest forcing students at the point of an arrow, to all the pep-rallies and other spirit-raising, rather I wanted to let them know just what these players go through to provide them with an afternoon or evening of entertainment. To show the students a reason why they should WANT to show their support.

I feel as you do, for you see I too was a Cheerleader—10 seven years—and I KNOW how well what a consuming job it is to spend every extra minute to work out plans to make rallies and games more interesting and enjoyable and then to have little or no cooperation from the student body. I have also felt the deep warm glow and sense of satisfaction that is derived from a responsive group no matter the size—than the dread of every cheerleader's responsibility group, and I am sure you know what I am speaking of.

There are little things that are expected of you also, to have them sitting for hours just to have them washed down with a colder and torn down by weary, anxious crowds. That is one of a lot of things you are expected to do but these little things are the things that mean so much to the boys who are eating their heart out on the field.

That is why you are doing what you can and why I, in my way, am doing what I can do to restore the same ultimate hopefulness, RALLY SUPPORT of the team. Thus we Ex—Cheerleader and A football player's wife Mrs. B. L. Lemons

Defense Issue Crucial In Election

To the Editor:

One crucial issue, no less matter of life and death itself, has come to the forefront in this election year—and that issue is defense.

The Republican Presidential candidate has charged that the Kennedy-Johnson Administration has "failed to originate a single new major strategic weapons system" apparently overlooking the A-1.

Further the Republican candidate charged that the Administration has "failed to push development of defense against ballistic missiles"—a charge which was graphically answered by the announcement of the new radar system which "sees around curves" and hence adds precious minutes to our early warning system.

But what has been most terrifying about the Senator's statements on defense are not his charges against the Administration; which have been time and again shown to be without validity, but rather his suggestions as to how we should defend this land of ours.

The Senator has stated, "We should get back to the Eisenhower-Dulles doctrine of brinkmanship where everybody knows we have the power and will use it" (N. Y. Times, July 18, 1964).

Undenially the Senator is "ultra-utim-happy." He does not understand that other nations are brave, powerful, and proud and if driven to it would rather fight than surrender. Not content with making this suggestion, the Senator recommends further that battlefield commanders be allowed to employ—on their own initiative—tactical nuclear weapons.

Speaking before the Veterans of Foreign Wars on August 25, Goldwater said, "These small conventional nuclear weapons are no more powerful than the firecrackers we have faced on the battlefield."

As President Johnson replied in Detroit two weeks later, "There is no such thing as a conventional nuclear weapon." And these "conventional nuclear weapons" the Senator speaks of are by no means small.

The Davy Crockett or the 8-inch howitzer, for example, are ten times more powerful than the largest blockbuster dropped in WW II. The average size tactical weapon which the Senator wishes to turn into battlefield commanders is 98 kilotons or five times the yield of the first A-bomb dropped on Hiroshima. I doubt very seriously if any of the Veterans of Foreign Wars faced this kind of firepower on the battlefields of WW II. But the Republican presidential nominee has continued to recommend the use of these "conventional" tactical nuclear weapons.

He has said, "I would strongly advocate that we interdict supply routes wherever they may be, either by sea, or most importantly through North Viet-Nam, Laos, or Cambodia" (Issues and Answers—ABC, May 24); or "I'd drop a low-yield atomic bomb on Chinese supply lines in North Viet-Nam." (Newsweek, May 20, 1964).

Or speaking of fighting in South Viet-Nam "I don't think we would use any of them. But defoliation of the forest by low-yield atomic weapons could well be done. When you remove the foliage, you remove the cover."

Indeed, the Republican Party has passed from that of the "great emancipator" to that of the "great defoliant."

The Administration's policy, on the other hand, has been to meet conventional military attack with conventional forces for fear of escalating a nuclear war through the employment of tactical nuclear weapons. The responsibility for such destructive weapons should and must rest solely with the President.

As President Johnson said in Detroit, "For 19 per cent of the world's population has lost the atom against another. To do so now is a political decision of the highest order and it would lead us down an uncertain path of blows and counter-blows whose outcome none may know. No President of the United States of America can divest himself of the responsibility for such a decision." But Senator Goldwater would.

President Johnson's words, "I think it is said, if this is so, you see which of the Presidential candidates has really acted for defense."

Senator Goldwater's record speaks for itself; he voted against limiting the draft extension to two years (1959), yet today he says he is for abolition of the draft completely; against increase of Marine Corps funds by $40 million (1955); against Symington Amendment for funds to modernize the Army combat equipment (1959).

He voted against disarmament research (1961); against the appropriation for Civil Defense (1963); and against Joint Congressional Committee to help supervise CIA activities (1956).

President Johnson's Senatorial record reads like this: for Naval Expansion Bill (1938); against motion to slash $5 million in armed forces installations on Guam (1939); for Selective Service Act (1941); for increased Air Force funds for aircraft purchase by $400 million (1953); for increase defense appropriations by $350 million (1954); for increase Marine Corps funds by $40 million (1955); for increased Air Force procurement funds by $800 million (1956); and for the Symington Amendment for modernizing the Army Combat equipment (1959).

The Kennedy-Johnson Administration, since 1961, has increased the number of nuclear warheads by 150% and increased the tactical nuclear strength in Europe by 50%. It has increased the number of combat-ready Army divisions by 45%; increased airlift capability by 75%; increased ship construction by 100%; increased counter-insurgency force by 800%; while saving over $1 billion in fiscal 1963 and $2.5 billion in fiscal 1964 to the American taxpayer.

It should also be noted that the 11 years Senator Goldwater has been in the Senate and the 13 years Representative Bill (who did you say) Miller has been in the House—neither of them have their names attached to ONE piece of constructive legislation.

It should also be noted that Senator Goldwater holds the record (indeed not a proud one) in the Senate for the worst attendance of any Senator while Representative Miller holds the same "commendable" record in the House.

Perhaps this is an indication of why neither of them have any constructive legislation accredited to them; one has to be present in order to introduce a bill. One can easily see that the two Republican candidates

Advanced Proficiency Exams Added To Foreign Languages

The Modern Language Association's Proficiency Tests for advanced students and teachers in modern foreign languages have been added to the program in Foreign Language Education at FSU. The tests, which are prepared for exams in French, German, Italian, Russian and Spanish were developed by a committee of scholars from the Modern Language Association (MLA) under the chairmanship of Professor Wilmarth Starr, chairman of Languages and Slavic Languages at New York University.

The work was supported by a grant from the U.S. Office of Education sponsored by the MLA. The Educational Testing Service of Princeton (ETS) published the tests, which are used at Foreign Language Institutes, usually for placement at the beginning of the Institute, and for achievement evaluation at the end of the program.

The modern language departments in many universities including the University of Miami require a satisfactory score on them for graduation.

Several states have now adopted the tests as criterion for state teacher certification. The tests are used in Foreign Language Education 432 at FSU for information and advising and as a practical demonstration of the latest testing techniques in modern foreign languages.

Seven areas tested are: understanding of native speech in the foreign language; speaking, reading, writing, civilization, language analysis (applied linguistics) and Professional Preparation (methodology).

Eleven advanced FSU students in FLN took the tests on Aug. 1 and scored significantly above the National norms.

Two sets of norms are furnished by ETS. One based on achievement by over 10,000 teachers in the past four years upon entering a language institute.

Another is based on achievement by the same teacher at the end of the Institute program.

Compared with the higher set of norms, the FSU student percentile averages were: understanding, 56; speaking, 14; reading, 65; writing, 60; applied linguistics, 68; civilization and culture, 59; professional preparation, 77. Evaluation of percentile hands is on the following scale: 0-19 is unsatisfactory; 20-49 is minimum; 50-74 is good; above 75 is superior.

Since 1834, the fraternity's prime interest has been to reward scholarly achievement and good character. Today, membership in Phi Beta Kappa is the most coveted honor of candidates for degrees in liberal arts in 169 colleges and universities with chapters.

Graduate School Begins Course

"It is not only a response of the emotions, but it reaches the emotion through the intelligence, without stopping with intelligence," said Chalmers.

Chalmers concluded that "there can be communication with the non-humanist if we elect to do so through a different language." Homework was given to those attending the lecture. Chalmers assigned each individual to find out for himself why the use of only a part of one's responses is disastrous. There are two main programs—Area Studies and Functional Studies.

Chalmers Discusses Problems Of Humanities At Coffee Hour

...the Humanities moved to the center of education to the "periphery," questioned Dean Lawrence Chalmers at the English Coffee Hour, Friday in the Westminster.

The difficulty of even remaining in the margin is due to faulty communications, according to Chalmers. Chalmers set up the hypothesis of communication among humanists ineffective with non-humanists. An example of this was shown in the new being done to get a Humanities Foundation. The material written for this purpose was written by humanists for humanists.

"Legislators don't understand the arts, music, and literature that underlie the humanities," said Chalmers.

Dr. Chalmers also discussed the responses involved in the humanities as opposed to those in science. He felt that a response in humanities is a total response that includes the physical, the emotional, and the intellectual.

THE BIG DIFFERENCE

...In Saturday night's victory over the University of Southern Mississippi was the "stature" of the quarterbacks. The Southerners' Vic Purvie (above) spent most of the evening on the ground under the Magnificent Seven, as did the majority of the Mississippi backs. Ed Fritchett (right) and Steve Tensl, the two Tribe signal callers, had no laundry problems after the game. The massive offensive line kept them practically unscathed by enemy defenders.

Athletic Dept. Gives UF Seats From FSU Side

By SARA ANN SLOAT

"In order to have the Florida game played in Tallahassee this year, several major concessions have been necessary," Student Body President John Merting announced today.

A major concession was the granting of 5,400 seats for University of Florida students (as a minimum) on the sidelines. For revenue purposes, the athletic department decided that these Florida student seats would be allotted to the FSU student side.

Merting discussed the seating problem with Inter-Fraternity Council, Men's Senate and various other individuals regarding this problem.

According to Merting, they agreed that a compromise was necessary and could be made concerning seating arrangements for the game. "It is hoped that the special arrangements will be suitable," stated Merting.

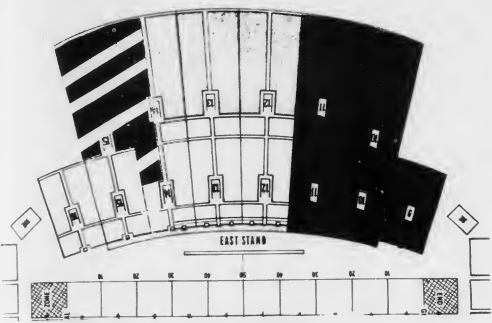

Florida students will be seated from the goal line to the 40 yard line, seats which normally are not reserved for block seating.

Block seating for FSU students will be located from the 20 yard line to the 37 yard line.

Jim Brandt, president of IFC, explained that "after investigation of the seating situation, and learning that the athletic department had given Florida students seats on our side without consulting us in the matter, there was only one solution: the seating concession will have to be made for this particular game."

Brandt added that he was sure the problem would not arise again.

Merting added that the matter would be brought before Student Senate at 4:15 p.m. today to settle seating plans.

NEW SEATING

...for the FSU student body will be as follows for the FSU-Florida game, Nov. 21. The diagonal striped sections will be block seating. The white area will be open seating for FSU students. The blacked-in areas will be for Florida Students.

Dello Joio Plays Tonight In Opperman

Pulitzer Prize winning composer Norman Dello Joio will be featured tonight when the FSU music department presents a concert featuring his compositions in Opperman Music Hall at 8:15 p.m.

Series to perform in the recital include Elena Nikolaidi, Carlisle Floyd, Harold Schiffman, Richard Collins, John Boda, Ruth Posselt, J. Johnson, Richard Wain, Owen Sellers, and Norma and Leonard Messiaen.

Composer and virtuoso organist Dello Joio, a student of the famous Paul Hindemith, is particularly known for the lyricism and melodic line of his compositions. His music is designed for "a broad, contemporary public" rather than only for other musicians.

At the concert tonight, Norma and Leonard Mastregianni, pianists, will present Dello Joio's "Aria and Sonata for Two Pianos."

Ruth Posselt, violinist, will be accompanied by Holm Boda in her piece "Variations and Capriccio for Violin."

Another Dello Joio composition, "The Fire, Cells and Piano," will be presented by Ronald Wain, Owen Sellers, and Roy Johnson.

Chickadee Tonight

The new C. Florida-Western, "My Little Chickadee," will be shown tonight at 7 and 9 p.m. in Moore Auditorium as part of the new Classic Film Series.

The presentation will be the first new Moore Auditorium which is part of the University Union complex and the permanent site for showing of Classic Film Series and the Little Seminoles Matinee Film Series.

NORMAN DELLO JOIO

Medical Group Offers Series

The Leon and Wakulla County Medical Society will present a new series on WFSU-TV (channel 11) on various health information.

The first series, featuring the emergency room at Tallahassee Memorial Hospital, begins at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The two doctors off-camera will answer telephone calls (ext. 3406, 3407) and relay questions to the doctors on camera, who will return answer the questions.

Herb Reinhard, Asst. Director of the University Union, has announced the Union is open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. beginning today.

Classes Meet Sat.

M. W. Kenna announced that Saturday, Nov. 7, is a day of classes and will meet on the Friday schedule. This is to make up for the Nov. 27, Thanksgiving holiday.

This date of Nov. 7 is listed in the FSU General Bulletin is correct, but the Graduate Bulletin listing is incorrect.

Visitors Debate Cubans At Forum; Two Charge Revolution Is Success

By TOM MIMMS
Flambeau News Reporter

A spirited debate between members of the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba and Cuban FSU students broke out at the Liberal Forum Monday night.

The two committee speakers, Alan Lowe of San Diego, Calif. and Steve Newman of New York City, who visited Cuba last summer in protest against the State Department's ban on travel to Cuba, charged that the Cuban socialist revolution is succeeding and the U.S. government does not want Americans to know.

PSB Foundation Helps Asians

By ISABELLE COUTANT

"I founded the Pearl S. Buck Foundation to show the people of Asia that I'm behind them," said Pearl S. Buck as she spoke at the English Coffee Hour yesterday.

The joining of the East and West is the most important work we can be doing. Amerasians, the name given to children of American fathers and Asian mothers, have no place in Asian society," White is the wrong color in Japan and China," Mrs. Buck explained.

There are no jobs of education for children without families and there is no adoption. These children grow up on the streets of Asia or are segregated in orphanages.

"These are a new, tragic people, a symbol of meeting East and West. They are not ready for them. This is why I have started the Foundation," stressed Mrs. Buck. "The Korean Government feels the same way and has offered full cooperation. We must integrate the half-Americans with the other children of Asia," she added.

Mrs. Buck likened writing to the creation of a star. "A child of dust as a star in the mind, draws other bits and particles, grows and grows and becomes an entity."

"Our country's big problems have been solved down there," Newman said.

There is no unemployment and no racial discrimination. There is new public housing, equal distribution of food, medical care for the masses and a greatly increased literacy rate through a tremendous expansion of the public school system," he explained.

Cuban students asked what basis the speakers had for making a comparison, since neither had visited Cuba prior to the revolution. Newman replied that he had talked freely with the peasants.

The Cubans pointed out that the 250,000 member Committee for the Defense of the Revolution maintains close watch over the people for signs of subversive activity. They also asked why so many Cuban peasants were fleeing Castro.

Newman replied that more than 50 Americans had chosen to live in Cuba.

When questioned why there had been no free elections in Cuba, Newman answered, "There was no need of any since the socialist economic revolution." The Cuban people have better things to do, such as building up their economy."

A Korean student questioned Cuba's exporting its revolution to other Latin American countries.

"Cuba refrains from exporting its revolution to countries with which it maintains normal diplomatic relations. However, it's all right to fight your avowed enemies with everything you have," Newman answered.

Regarding religion in Cuba, Newman stated that while it is not encouraged, it is not actively suppressed — with some exceptions.

Both speakers stated that they are socialists, who are touring the country to present Cuba's viewpoint. They are financed by collections taken up where they speak. After the meeting, the speakers sold literature of the Progressive Labor Party.

Florida-FSU Date Tickets Will Go Sale Soon

Only 750 tickets will go on sale and they will be distributed on a first come, first serve basis.

Tickets for married students only will go on sale 8 a.m. this Friday. Any tickets not sold by noon of the tenth will be added to the students date tickets. There are 250 tickets for married students.

Go Tribe

The offensive minded Seminole went over, under, around and through the Southerners Saturday night to rack up a 34-0 victory and get the team back on the win column.

Steve Tensi, 13, Larry Green, 20, Fred Bilenkoff, 25, and Wayne Giardino, 23, all played significant parts in the Tribe win. Tensi, Green, and Bilenkoff scored touchdowns and contributed long yardage on the ground and through the air.

Tensi pulled the biggest trick of Halloween night by talying his first collegiate touchdown on the ground. He also passed for two more. Bilenkoff upped his TD total to eight on the beautiful overhead catch of Ed Pritchett's third quarter 40 yard toss. Fleet Fred also caught nine other lobbs for a 170 yard total for the night.

Art Education Professor Guest Of Student Art Teachers Assoc.

Elizabeth Mooty, Professor of Art Education and Constructive Design, was guest speaker at the biweekly meeting of the Student Art Teachers Association.

Dr. Mooty reported on the annual conference of the Florida Art Education in Jacksonville recently which was attended by several of the University's instructors and students.

The program throughout the conference was directed toward assessing the position, potential, and shortcomings of Art Education as it exists in Florida, in relation to the full interaction of all the arts.

Field trips included tours to Summer Gallery of Art, Children's Museum, and an architectural tour of Jacksonville.

Exhibits included International School Arts Program, Gabor Pederdi Prints, Prize Prints From Festival of Art Competition, Petersburg Creek Summer Camp Exhibit, and Elementary Prints.

Zut - Foiled Again

In fulfillment of a promise made to his college fencing professor, Dr. Alan R. Dorius will instruct students in the art at regular lessons for $1.50 every Wednesday evening from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Ballroom C. of the University Union.

A proficient fencer since college days, Dorius is being sponsored by the University Union Games Committee to provide lessons for FSU students. The $1.50 fee per lesson will help to provide fencing equipment for the Union.

Children of faculty and staff may receive instruction once a month on Saturday mornings for 25 cents.

Announcements

The Student Depository will be closed Wednesday and Thursday in order to move equipment into the former Trophy Room of the University Union.

Dr. Karl Dittmer, newly appointed vice-president for academic affairs at FSU, and Dr. Oak S. Campbell, president emeritus, will be the guest speakers on FSU-TV's "Conversations" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

The interviews will be devoted in part to Campbell's recent book, "A University in Transition."

America's space objectives will be the subject of lectures by three officers from the Air University in Westcott Auditorium tomorrow, from 11:20 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.

Sponsored by ROTC and ROTC, the speakers will be Lt. Col. Francis J. Sweeney, Jr.; Maj. George T. James, Jr.; and Capt. Lester R. Hewitt.

The officers will explain space boosters, vehicles and both the manned and unmanned space programs. The lectures are planned to provide an orientation of past, present, and future manned and unmanned space developments.

All veterans F.L. 559 and War orphans F.L. 634 should sign for their monthly certification of training for the month of November before leaving for the Thanksgiving holidays.

The checks should be signed in the office of the Registrar on the following dates:

A-G Nov. 23

H-P Nov. 24

Q-Z Nov. 25

Alpha Phi Omega, National Service Fraternity, will meet today at 7 p.m. in Room 215, University Union. Pledges will meet at 8:30 p.m. in 211.

An article, "Comparisons of Incipient Music Responses Among Very Young Twins and Singletons," by Dr. Gene M. Simons of the school of music at FSU appears in the fall issue of "Journal of Research in Music Education."

Houston Coming

'Gremlins' Bog Seminoles

1964 could well be labeled the year of the Gremlins for the Seminoles. They have met and will meet opponents who take particularly yearly pride in unseating the Tribe.

The Gobblers continued their frustrating dominance of the Seminoles at the Blacksburg Homecoming. The Garnet and Gold then got even with the fates by dropping Southern Miss last week, 34-0.

Saturday they face another of the problem teams in the University of Houston. The Cougars have defeated the FSU contingent three times and have never lost a game to them. The last time the two teams met was the FSU 1962 Homecoming. The Cougars chewed up the Tribe 7-0. In two previous encounters the Texans won 7-6 and 22-5. These scores contributed to the belief that FSU couldn't beat a team from Texas.

This year the Tribe exploded that myth when they beat Texas Christian in the second game of the season. The Seminoles stand an even better chance of stopping the Cougars.

The Houston team will go into their homecoming contest with an unimpressive 2-4 record. They defeated Trinity and Texas A and M. They lost to Auburn, Mississippi, Tulsa, and Mississippi State.

This record however, has a marked similarity to the VPI tally sheet. The situation is also alike in that this is the Homecoming contest for the Cougars which should give them added incentive.

The Texas will also take into the game a halfback who runs a 9.6 100 and the nasty habit of beating the Tallahassee group.

The Garnet and Gold will have to counter with a rejuvenated defense and the high flying offense.

Senate Revamps Block Seating

THE REVISED SEATING PLAN

Passed by Student Senate yesterday changes the block seating to the top of the center section of the FSU student side. The shaded area represents UF seating, the unshaded is unrestricted seating, and the semi-shaded is block seating.

Block seating took the forefront in the Student Senate discussion at its eighth regular session yesterday afternoon.

A resolution introduced by Sen. Carl Domino to completely do away with block seating for the FSU-*****

SCOTT STATEMENT

Attorney General Ed Scott today reported that the concessions on the block seating for the Florida game were made without any recognition or authorization from the Attorney General's office.

Scott added that he had been carrying on discussions in search of a solution to the seating problem as part of the Attorney General's duties, and that the story which appeared in yesterday's "Flambeau" had been developed and arranged without his knowledge.

Scott had originally been working on a plan to seat the block section across the top of the students' allotted seats in the stadium, which he felt was the most sensible plan. "There definitely has to be a compromise somewhere, but it should go through the proper channels," stated Scott.

"The proper channels are through the Attorney General's office and through student senate," Scott added. Scott had also been meeting with representatives of the Athletic Dept. to work out a suitable compromise.

University of Florida game was defeated and a compromise agreed upon which allowed "an equitable arrangement for both Greeks and independents," as one senator put it. Senator Jack Sipperley introduced the seating plan that was finally agreed upon, after it had been amended twice.

The original amendment placed the Greeks in the extreme left hand corner of the student side of the stadium as pictured in yesterday's "Flambeau."

Amendments to Sipperley's proposal revised the arrangement to that shown above.

Discussion on block seating ranged from opinions that no block seats should be designated for the game in question, as stated by Sen. Domino, to opinions that block seating should remain as it had been in previous games this season.

The final amendment to Sen. Sipperley's resolution providing that "All of the organizations that have gone through proper channels to receive block seats for this season should receive block seats for the University of Florida game," was passed.

In other senate action, Sen. Dutch Powers introduced a bill to establish a Secretary of Junior College Affairs to be appointed by the Student Body President.

Sen. Powers said that these were almost as many junior college transfer students who attended orientation this year as there were freshmen and that some concession should be made for them in Student Government.

The position would entail work in communication and coordination of relations with junior college student bodies, campus guides for junior college students interested in attending FSU, and a program to place such students in areas of Student Government where they could best apply their past experience.

The Secretary of Junior College Affairs would also extend programs of the office to encompass problems of junior college students as they arise.

In the discussion it was brought out that Student Body President John Merting was in favor of the new position.

The bill was sent to committee for further discussion before being approved by the senate.

Gallery Displays Encaustic Painting

By SARA ANN SLOAT

Flambeau Staff Writer

The LeMoyné Art Foundation will present a one-man show of encaustic paintings by Nancy Reid Gunn. The members will have a preview at 7 p.m. on Sunday. It will then be open to the public at 3 p.m. The show will last through Nov. 30.

Gallery hours are Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. It is closed on Mondays. Mrs. Gunn will give a gallery talk Tuesday, Nov. 12, at 8 p.m. at the foundation. The gallery is located at 4 South Calhoun St.

Mrs. Gunn took private lessons in encaustic painting from 1945 to 1950 before entering high school.

From 1945 on, she has had no formal training except for two summer sessions spent at the Art Colony at Saugatuck, Michigan and three years when she studied as a special student in advanced painting under Prof. Karl Zerbe, Prof. of Arts at FSU. Since 1958, Mrs. Gunn has maintained a private studio at various locations in Tallahassee.

"Presently, from her studio attached to her home, comes a steady, un-hurried flow of paintings."

"Each is a fully developed pictorial statement with its roots in some natural form or human association, but all are so transformed in the artistic process that the layman usually sees only an abstraction," noted Karl.

When asked about her paintings,

Mrs. Gunn said that she had rather not interpret her work and then added, "my main concern in painting is the human being in his world. For my particular kind of work to be fully enjoyed, the viewer must ask himself, his experiences, and his feelings to the work."

"Each painting is a different and a new experience for me; when two or more share the same experience the experience will be different for the two people."

The influence of Zerbe on her work is evident to anyone who considers Mrs. Gunn's interests and methods; since 1958, she has painted almost exclusively in encaustic. Encaustic painting uses hot wax as a binder for pigment. It is an ancient painting technique which fell into disuse some two thousand years ago. The medium was revived and rendered practical in the late 1930's by Zerbe.

Pi Kappa Sponsor Auction Today

Pi Kappa Phi will have a faculty auction on the steps of Westcott at 4:45 p.m. today.

Among the faculty members to be auctioned off are James P. Jones, history; R.R. Oglesby, government; Miss Daisy Farker, government; Addison Gilbert, physical education; and Warren B. Nation, marketing. There will also be a mystery guest. Last year's auction brought in $500 for Campus Chest.

The group or individual with the highest bid will have the services of the faculty member for one day. Jon Kaney will be the auctioneer with entertainment provided by a local band.

All proceeds from the auction will go to Campus Chest.

Global Jokes To Enliven Evening

A joke from nearly every country will lighten the mood of the special International Evening at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the University Union's Ballroom A.

The president of the International Club, Ali Kaygi of Turkey, said today that a student from each of the more than 40 countries represented on campus will tell a joke—first in his native language and then in English.

Dean Mode L. Stone, School of Education, will give an American joke.

"YOU GOT HIM"

...is the cry at last year's Pi Kappa Phi Faculty Auction, this year scheduled for today at 4:45 p.m.

Tickets Sold Out For Artist Series

Tickets are sold out for tonight's Artist Series, featuring the blind pianist and composer Jean Langlais. The blind musician will perform six of his own works tonight at 8:30 p.m. in Opperman for the FSU Artist Series.

The series will be in Opperman due to the quality of the Opperman organ. The program will open with Couperin's "Offertoire" and Les Grands Jeux (Mass for the Convents), which is in the French style typical of the Louis XIV period.

"Dialogue" (Agnus Dei) by N. de Grigny and a communion dialogue by de Grigny will follow.

Mozart's "Paters Noster" and "Agnus Dei" will also be performed.

Langlais' own compositions will be as follows: "Theme and Variations," "Homage to a Frescobaldi," "Meditation of the Holy Trinity No. 1 (The Father)," "Trio from 'Trio,' " "Boystown, place of peace," and "Meditation for a Holy Day."

FSU Sets Giant Team Send-off

There will be a send-off pep rally for the football team at noon tomorrow, as they prepare to leave for Houston, Texas, and Saturday's game.

The rally will be held at Sallee Dorm. The cheerleaders will be on hand to boost spirit, according to Barbara Walker, rally bureau chairman.

"We're encouraging all students who can be there to bring signs and banners to wish the team good luck," she said. "We'd like to have as large a turnout as we did last week."

Last week a huge crowd of students mobbed the practice field for a surprise pep rally.

For those students who have 12-40 classes, the rally will end tomorrow in time for them to attend.

Students May Face Increase in Student Fees; Tom Adams

By TOM MIMMS

Students may face an increase in student fees ranging from 10% to 100%.

William Roberts, administrative assistant for Florida Secretary of State Tom Adams, said last night during a panel discussion at a Young Democrats meeting.

Roberts explained that the costs of the services which the State provides have increased without an increase in the fees charged for them. This is true in all areas—from chartering a corporation to maintaining a state university.

"The State is considering increasing all these fees proportionally," he said.

He said, however, that any initial increase in student fees would probably be small, but the fees could quite conceivably be increased from the current $113 to $200 for in-state students and from $175 to $250 or more for out-of-state students.

He added that any large increase in student fees would be accompanied by a state loan program so that no student would be denied an education for lack of money.

Another panel member, Mr. Juanita Gibson, an FSU government professor, said that students and faculty must inform the legislature "of our needs for more money, and then we all must educate the people."

Roberts stressed that "although the proposed Student Government lobby with the legislature can help, it should not replace students personally meeting with their legislator while he is at home and has the time to listen to them."

In addition to higher education, the panel discussed the possible effects of a new Democratic administration on the state of Florida if it should support that party in Tuesday's election.

"It's practical politics that if we work for this administration we should get benefits, as long as they're not harmful or illegal," said Miss Gibson.

"If the Democratic administration is re-elected, we can expect aid for Kennedy, higher education, and the cross-state barge canal," she stressed.

The barge canal is a controversial issue in the state government. Some type of short-cut waterway across north Florida or south Georgia has been considered for more than a century. The now authorized route from Palatka to Yanketown awaits appropriation of funds.

Richard Hellstrom, consultant to the secretary of state, pointed out that the cost is $155 million, $145 of which will benefit, and industry will be attracted to this great transportation area, he stated.

The panel pointed out that the Democratic party has also demonstrated its interest in higher education on the national level.

"On the state level ten years ago we spent more on higher education than we do now," according to Miss Gibson.

"This is because we in education haven't taken an active interest in government bodies dealing with higher education," she added.

"We have adopted the attitude that politics is dirty and have failed to speak to the people of Florida of our real needs. I'm not optimistic about the prospects of higher education in the next two to six years," she commented.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

According to Student Body President John Merting, the student is the most important commodity on the university campus. As he puts it, "The University is for the student."

In promoting this idea to students of Florida State University, Student Government has several special projects which will directly affect students during the 1964-65 school year.

Among these are a professor evaluation program, the personnel bureau and a political education committee.

Communications between FSU and other educational institutions as well as the state's news media is also being stressed.

In order to keep students at Florida State aware of these special programs and familiar with the more than 200 regular services and programs of Student Government, which effect them daily, the Flambeau will print a regular column outlining the programs and their progress.

It is hoped that by presenting this column, the students here will become more aware of the workings of Student Government and how it affects them in their life at Florida State University.

As John Merting said recently, in a campus speech, "Student Government is not here for them in it, or for Student Government, as such, itself. It is here as a service for all the students at FSU."

Flag Championship Playoff

Phi Kappa Tau Smashes Phi Delta Theta 19-14

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Behind the superb passing of Jim Gordon and speedy Steve Thomas, Phi Kappa Tau remained undefeated as they held on clutch plays to win the Fraternity Flag Football Championship 19-14 in a defensive battle with Phi Delta Theta.

Phi Tau's defensive line played like "Magnificent Seven" as they held Phi Delta on two goal line stands the 1 and 2 foot line.

Offensively, Gordon, Thomas, and Johnny Witherspoon controlled the game mixing running plays and dead accuracy on passing plays, including an 85 yard Gordon to Thomas touchdown pass.

Phi Delt received the kick off and quarterback Bill Bostain was stymied in moving his team past the Tau's 20 as the Tau's took over on downs. Three plays later Gordon found Thomas in the corner of the end zone to put Phi Tau on the score board early in the game.

Bostain hit Hutch Johnson for a first down and moved the ball to the Delt's 35 only to have Witherspoon intercept the TD pass meant for Harry Schaefer. But the Delt's struck pay dirt two plays later as Bill Hartman trussed Gordon in his own end zone for a safety making the score 7-2.

The second quarter was a defensive battle as neither team was able to move the ball.

Upon receiving the kick off for the second half, Phi Tau's Gordon unleashed the bomb to receiver Thomas for an 85 yard pass play as Thomas took the ball on his own 35 and scurried down field for the TD. The scoreboard now read 13-2.

Phi Delt then drove to the two foot line but Phi Tau held back Howie Hazel and pass receiver John Albert from crossing the chalk line.

Phi Tau was unable to move the ball so Ken Gustafson booted a 44 yard punt. Bostain maneuvered his team down to the one foot line but again the Tau's strong defensive team held.

Early in the fourth quarter Phi Delt got new hope as Dick Whiteside intercepted a Gordon pass on the Tau's 20. Hutch Johnson carried the ball over for the score as the Delt's tightened the score 13-8.

But Phi Tau's mighty Gordon wanted a little cushion on the scoreboard as he connected with Jim "Stuck" High for 60 yards. Two plays later Gordon hit Bill Lopetro for ten yards as he scooted across the goal and the score went up 19-8.

Bostain then brought his club out determined to hit pay dirt and on three consecutive completed passes to Mike Strayhorn, Rick Fritz, and the TD pass to Hazel, Phi Delt made the last score of the game as it ended 19-14.

SOCCER CLUB: The FSU Soccer team faces a busy weekend as they play on St. Leo Abbey Saturday at 2 p.m., and return Sunday to play the soccer club of St. Petersburg at 2 p.m.

Both games will be played on the home field in Gaines Woods and everyone is invited to attend. Admission is free. The team is going into the weekend with an 0-3 record and practices have been fast and hard all week to prepare for the weekend's games.

BOWLING CLUBS: The Thursday Mixers face the Foul Line tonight as the Holi-Rollers defend their league lead. Tied for second place are Fireball 4 and the Beasts, followed by Team X, Outter Dusters, Lucky Strikers, Naval Ghosts, and Judy's Boys.

Leading the league in high average is Bob Kehoe with a 168 with Larry Moore close behind with a 163. Scoring high last week were Moore with a 200-526, Dave McCambell 184-494, and Rick Hard shot a 509 set.

Frosh To Face USM Saturday

With the variety off to bat battle with the Houston Cougars, the Blue followers can get a look at the year's hopefuls as the freshmen of Southern Mississippi in Camp- bell Stadium Saturday night at 8 p.m.

who will be the last outing for both teams.

While the game is improving, the game is questionable record. Coach Bill Proctor said, "We will make this last game a real game."

continued, saying, "We are well pleased with the caliber of the team in the Florida game. The game (the frosh played), we are satisfied with the team's will to win."

"The attitude is good," he said, "and we expect the top effort of the team from the team Saturday night."

Games will have to overcome the problems they have faced in previous two games: stopping quarterback. They were unsuccessful against Miami and Florida.

The PE Majors monopolized the badminton tournament taking first place honors in the singles and doubles tournament.

Finishing second in the singles was Smith Hall with a tie for third place between Kellum and Georgio.

Victory-Gramps Support Team

By MELODIE BETTS

No school can produce a really great team until the student body is behind them, win or lose. Under the direction of Ward Segulin, the cheerleaders, and other FSU boosters, along with the co-operation of Western Union, students can send "victory-gramps" to the FSU Seminoles as the team plays opponents away.

those filed as a Saturday straight wire cost $1.65.

Wires should be sent to the team in care of the Shamrock Hilton Hotel.

FSU students rallied behind the Seminoles for the VPI game as telegrams poured into the stadium in Blacksburg encouraging the team. Sororities and women's dorms led the surge of well-wishing along with other individuals and some fraternities.

Members feature a passer from each of the other two backs (Mitra and Bob Wages). In Terry McMillan has 23 completions out of 46 attempts in three games.

In the game with Tulane he hit 13 out of 21 tries. This still was enough to beat the Greenies in the 13-12 contest.

The PE Majors monopolized the badminton tournament taking first place honors in the singles and doubles tournament.

Ed Scott Removed From Office, Delaverne Interim Appointee

ED SCOTT

Ed Scott was removed from office today as Attorney General by Student Body President John Merting. Scott's first reactions were of shock and disbelief. "It was purely party politics," said Scott when contacted late last night at his fraternity house. President Merting gave the following reasons for Scott's abrupt dismissal: "It was a case of mutual lack of confidence. He withheld information and materials vital to Student Government," said Merting. "Scott was the center of a lot of dissension in Student Government. Maybe this was not all his fault but it was nevertheless a deciding factor. "Scott did a good job in some areas but as the most important cabinet member he did not fulfill his position. He was more interested in his party, his fraternity, and his own personal political ambition." "I have had this action under consideration since I assumed my position in May. I think this is an unfortunate occurrence but it was something I had to do," concluded Merting. "I feel I was a victim of circumstances," said Scott. "He (Merting) was put into an unenviable position by inheriting me from a previous administration. However, he himself admitted that I was doing a good job." "The office of Attorney general is largely an advisory one. It's hard to advise someone when there is no communication between offices." "The block seating dispute for the Florida game was the straw that broke the camel back." "We just didn't have each other's confidence or respect."

Scott was appointed to the position of Attorney General by President John Jones last year. When Merting assumed office during the summer months, he kept Scott in his new cabinet. Scott had been the unsuccessful candidate for Men's Vice President in last year's elections. Merting announced the appointment of Ted Delaverne as acting Attorney General to replace Scott. Delaverne is the student head of the Air Force ROTC unit of campus. Scott indicated that he would like to work with the University Union in some capacity. He reported that he received some encouragement from high union officials. Meanwhile other cabinet officials were reportedly surprised by the sudden turn of events. None had any statement for publication, however.

Program Committee To Present Performance By Juan Mercadal

The Union program committee will present Juan Mercadal, concert guitarist, Wednesday, Nov. 18, in the Doyle E. Moore Jr. Auditorium at 8:30 and 9:30 p.m. There will be a reception between the performances. Mercadal was born in Havana, Cuba. He began his study of the guitar at the age of five under the guidance of his father, and later studied with his father's teacher, Severino Lopez. In the years that followed, the gifted guitarist built up a repertoire of over six hundred works, including five concerti for guitar and orchestra, and a rich array of early works for the lute and vihuela. He has performed extensively throughout Cuba and also performs every year with the Brazil Symphonic Orchestra. The first solo guitar performance of the Brazil Symphonic Orchestra was played by him. "I landed in the U. S. October, 1960 with wife, 2 small boys, guitar, and $10. Two friends in Miami helped me to get started," he continued. When he was leaving, the secret service (G2) said he couldn't take his guitar with him. The instrument is 40 years old. He got it out of the country by saying, "How could a 40 year old instrument be any good?" the guitar was made by Domingo Eseso and is valued at more than $1200. Mercadal teaches and plays only classical guitar, but enjoys the best of popular music. He appreciates anyone who can pick up the guitar without formal training.

Banquet Set For Methodist Union

The annual International Student Banquet sponsored by the Wesley Foundation will be given Sunday afternoon at 5:15 p.m. Dr. John Cummmer, foreign student sponsor and director of guidance and counseling will speak at the banquet. The banquet will be at Unit 1 of the Wesley Foundation, 705 West Jefferson. Tickets are available for $1.25 per person. Foreign students will be the guests of Wesley. Tickets may be obtained from the Wesley Foundation units or in each dorm from persons designated by posters in the dorms.

No High Endorsement

The Robert King High advertisement which appeared on page six of Monday's (Nov. 2) "Flambeau" was not a political endorsement by the "Florida Flambeau" for High, but was a paid political announcement. The lines bearing the paid advertisement notification were left off accidentally.

FSU, Alumni Host Legislature For Annual Recognition Fete

Florida State and its Alumni Association, the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, the city of Tallahassee, and Leon County will be hosts for Legislative Recognition Day to be Saturday, Nov. 14 on the FSU campus. Invitations were sent not only to legislators, including the newly elected ones, but to top state officials such as members of the Cabinet and two new additions to the Cabinet-Gov.-elect Haydon Burns and Attorney General-elect Earl Faircloth.

Philip Fleming, FSU director of development and chairman of a committee planning FSU's part of the Legislative Day, predicts there will be a record attendance. The program begins with registration at 9:30 a.m. at the new Olympic-type swimming pool with the students swimming coach Bim Stultz giving a diving exhibition. At 10:30 a.m., activities will move indoors to Moore Auditorium for a program at which President Gordon W. Blackwell will preside. Julius A. Sontag, Jr., will give the invocation and legislators will be welcomed by John Merting, president of the student body. "Profiles in Learning" will be the subject of a part of the program devoted to brief talks by five students: Rick Lawrence, a freshman honors student of chemistry; Mary Old, a junior transfer from Central Florida Junior College majoring in elementary education; Toger Nichols, a Ph.D. candidate studying government (now in the department of political science, Florida Atlantic University and also nationally recognized for his tennis playing). Jose Araluce of Madrid, a candidate for a Ph.D. degree in modern language.

Exhibit Sunday

The 1964 Faculty Art show will kick off the University Union exhibit program Sunday at 4 p.m. with a reception for faculty, students and guests. The exhibit will be the first to be presented in the new union facilities. The exhibition room facilities were made possible by both faculty and students, thus the first show will be one composed of FSU faculty in the art dept. The show is one of wide diversity, ranging from various styles of fine arts to ceramics and sculpture. The exhibition will include Dr. Karl Zerbe's "Harlequin," which is valued at $5,000 and "War Shield America 87" by Arthur Deshaies with a value of $1,000. Students and faculty members have been invited to attend the opening reception.

Tournament Set

There will be a golf tournament tomorrow on the golf course near the football field. All proceeds will go to the Southern Scholarship Research Foundation. The tournament will cost $5 per person. There will also be a hole-in-one contest. Two balls will be shot. Prizes will be tickets to the FSU-Florida game.

Gymkana Tours

Florida State's Gymkana troupe takes to the road this week-end for a performance of its highly successful fall show "Safari," at Americus, Ga., to night. The skilled troupe of gymnasts directed by Dr. Hartley Price, professor of physical education, will present its show at 7:30 p.m. It is sponsored by the Thelon Parent Teachers Association and the Optimist Club. John Van Nostrand and Carol Kay Smith serve as co-chairmen for the road show and Guy Atkinson will be assistant director.

Concert Tonight

The Percussion Ensemble of FSU, conducted by Ramon E. Meyer, will be presented today at 8:15 p.m. in Spelman Music Hall. Opening numbers will include "Requiem" by James Latimer, "Elegy for Eight Percussion Instruments" by William Russell; and "Machibilli," a reconstruction of the music of ancient Mexicans by Carlos Chavez. Other selections will be "Dance of the Black-Haired Mountain Men" and three Flamenco rhythms - "Ritmo Jondo." Members of the Percussion include Keith Jordan, Samuel Harris, Mark Ellerbe, John Harrison, Gary Bishop, Thomas Kane, Jack Albion and George Mabry.

Rally At Noon Today

Don't forget the pep rally at noon today in the Sallee Dormitory. The cheerleaders will be on hand to help lead the team off to Houston for tomorrow afternoon's game.

Gives Explanation Of Johnson Win

FSU Seating

Ron Melton, director of the FSU Athletic Office, has come in for a lot of undeserved criticism.

A most essential detail that most critics seem to be overlooking is that every student from FSU will have a seat at the Florida game.

Mr. Melton and his staff have canvassed other big schools with one big game on their schedule and the results have shown that no more than 80 to 85 per cent of the student body has ever attended.

Despite this, the FSU ticket office has allocated tickets for over 90 per cent of our student body.

Another score point seems to be the number and location of the Florida seats.

Let's face facts. The only reason we have the Florida game at all is because our athletic department and administration did all that was necessary to obtain the game for FSU. This included the guarantee to Florida of a specific number of seats including sideline seats.

As we don't have the bowl-type stadium like the University of Florida it was necessary to give up some of the usual FSU student seating.

The only area where our Ticket Office could be justifiably criticized is in not allowing enough date tickets. Mr. Melton has assured us that this was an oversight and will not happen again.

Let's stop complaining and remember that the game is home this year due to the efforts of our athletic department.

Shop Lifting

Philip Hunt, director of auxiliaries, has informed us that in the past eight days, eight FSU students have been apprehended for shoplifting in the new University Union.

This is a deplorable situation. The Student Body must become aware of the consequences involved in such an act.

Stealing is an Honor Court offense. Students convicted by the court have a black mark placed on their university record that shows up most unfavorably in later life.

Also, any scholarships are taken away and the student is not allowed to represent the University in any capacity.

How foolish it is to jeopardize one's entire college career for one unthinking moment of indiscretion.

Scholarships Offered

Two national scholarships for college girls are being offered for 1965-1966 by the Katherine M. Gibbs School.

Each scholarship consists of full tuition $1,200 for the secretarial training course, plus an additional cash award of $500.

The winners may select any one of the four Gibbs schools for their training—Boston, New York, Montreal, or Providence.

Winners are chosen by the Scholarship Committee.

Goldwater was a liberal in the traditional sense of the word the Senator qualified. A liberal has usually been defined as one wanting reform, one wanting more individual freedom and personal autonomy. Classically, the liberal has been dissatisfied with the status quo and has desired sweeping social change. President Johnson, on the other hand, very well fits the description of a conservative. He wanted to preserve established traditions. He opposes changes in the established institutions and asked the people to "crush the threat to the American way of life."

Why this seeming turnaround? What did it mean to this last election? What does it portend for the future?

Almost all recent American politics have been dominated by two periods of the recent past: 1, the economic depression of the thirties, 2, the inability to stop Communist aggression in the late forties. These two factors explain why the classical political definitions have fallen by the wayside. They give us some important clues to this last election. They give an indication of the future.

1. Because of economic necessity, the Federal Government assumed many new responsibilities during the depression. With the responsibility, of course, came the power of enforcement. Those that favored this new responsibility and power became known as liberals, and those opposed known as conservatives. Many of these programs died a quick death. Others, like the RIA and the farm program, are still with us, though they have probably outlived their useful life. Still others, like social security, have been broadened and strengthened. With the exception of a few conspicuous examples, the poor programs of the thirties have been dropped and the good ones extended. A good many voters realize this. Today there is no great push for more of these programs. A recent survey of public opinion indicated that 86% of the population felt that there was little need for additional programs of public welfare. This is reflected in the general apathy toward broadened medical care for the aged and lack of interest in the President's war on poverty.

Neither, however, is there any great feeling for a general reduction of Federal Government responsibility in this area. This is the reason that Senator Goldwater was not very successful when he spoke of voluntary social security. By the same token, the President's war on poverty probably didn't bring him more votes than it lost him. In general the voters have accepted the idea of Federal responsibility and power in the area of social welfare. They are not particularly interested in either expansion or contraction in this area.

2. Because Communism represents the illogical extension of a paternalistic central government, the conservatives (those opposing the programs of the thirties) found the Communist expansion following World War II particularly vexsome.

In retrospect, the negotiations we carried on with the communists at that time gained little and lost much. Communism is no longer what it once was. Where it was once a monolithic block it has now splintered into factions and nationalism. Some factions like Red China, present a real threat to world peace. Other factions, like Yugoslavia have taken a place among the responsible nations of the world.

A good many voters recognize this change in Communism. This is the reason there can be popular support for both the war in Vietnam and the nuclear test ban treaty. This is the reason more people favor a "hard line toward Red China and a softer line toward Russia."

It should be no surprise, then, that the election went for Johnson, and by a small proportion. It should be no surprise, then, that the most popular type of political figure nowadays is the "liberal" or a conservative, rather than the "pragmatist," that person who does what is necessary. dent Norbert Martin.

All members are requested to attend the meeting.

The Association of Lutheran students will meet Sunday at 7 p.m. in room 240, University Union.

"The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," starring Glen Ford and Charles Boyer will be the campus movie this weekend in Westcott at 7:30 p.m.

The movie is an up-dated filming of the dramatic classic of an Argentine family torn apart by war. Sons of a German father fight for the Nazis and become a power in Paris when the Germans take over.

In response to requests from interested students, arrangements have been made for a special on-campus administration of the Peace Corps Placement Test.

... Explanation

plish the task, regardless of ideological doctrine. This is the reason why a very liberal candidate would not have generated more popular support than did the Senator from Arizona.

The American people have proven that they don't want their candidates to be a shadow or, a reaction to, the recent past. They don't want a general extension of the welfare policies of the thirties any more than they want Communism to be treated as if it were the late forties.

The voters have had a choice rather than a echo this time, and that choice has been to put an end to extensions of the near past. Hopefully our future leaders will see this. Perhaps we will finally put an end to the legacies of yesterday's problems and devote our energies to the problems of today.

"The development of management is essential to our goal of great growth"

At the 1964 stockholders' meeting, Arjay Miller, President of Ford Motor Company, emphasized the Company's far-sighted recruitment program and its accent on developing management talent:

"One aspect of our planning is crucial to the success of everything else we do. It engages the best thoughts and efforts of our whole management team, from top to bottom, throughout the world. I am speaking of the development of management. The immediate future of our Company depends heavily upon the abilities of the people who are now key members of our management team.

"In the longer run, our future depends on what we are doing at the present time to attract and develop the people who will be making the major decisions 10 to 20 years from now. We are developing management competence in depth in order to attack the problems that will confront a company of great growth—and great growth (both in profits and sales) is exactly the goal we have established for Ford Motor Company.

"We are continuing to emphasize recruiting. Last spring, 180 of our management people devoted part of their time to recruiting outstanding graduates from colleges and universities throughout the U.S. Last year, these efforts resulted in our hiring over 1,000 graduates, 220 more than the year before.

"We are seeking and we are finding young men—and young women, too—with brains and backbone—people who have the ability and the desire to make room for themselves at the top. We give our trainees challenging assignments with as much responsibility as they can carry. We promote them as fast as they are ready. Those who are interested in easy security soon drop out. Those who have what we want stay with us, and move up quickly to increased responsibility and the pay that goes with it. Thanks to the quality of the people we are recruiting and developing, I am firmly convinced that our outlook is most promising."

The Seminoles will be cast in the role of the big bad desperado as they travel to Houston tomorrow to play the University of Houston Cougars in another of those crazy Homecoming contests.

Out To Meet Homecoming

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

Georgia, a 17-14 squeaker, was a homecoming and VPI, a 20-11 minor disaster was also Dear Old Grad Day. The Tribe would like to use the Cougars to show that they have no fear of the festivities.

The Tribe also has to get even for three earlier losses to the Texans, one of these an FSU Homecoming. The chances look good for the Garnet and Gold since Houston has been showing a certain shyness about winning.

The Cougars have been behaving more like house cats in dropping four games and only winning two. Two of those losses, though, came while lacking the services of Joe Lopasky, one of the top LH backs.

He will be back in shape for the FSU game along with his sophomore replacement Dick Post. Since taking over as left-halfback Post has become the leading Cougar ground gainer with a 4.8 average.

With both of these backs in condition and with a growling homecoming crowd hungry for a victory, the Seminoles will have to be on the lookout for another upset.

To satisfy the screaming students and alumni in Houston the Texans will have to do something no other team FSU has played could do. That's stop Fred Biletnikoff.

Fleet Fred is now leading the nation in number of yards gained in pass receptions. He is second in number of receptions and the hottest thing on cleats in the south.

He has made 48 passes good for 809 yards and eight touchdowns. Almost half of this came in the last two games against VPI and Southern Mississippi. In these two he caught 22 for better than 300 yards.

As the season gets down to the last three games the pressure on all-American candidate Biletnikoff continually increases. So far fleet Fred has thrived on this pressure.

Vocal Groups Head Greek Week

By BEVERLY BONNER

The Brandywine Singers and Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will highlight the Greek Week Dance Friday night, climaxing the activities of Greek Week, 1964.

Greek Week, sponsored by IFC and Panhellenic, under the direction of Bill Slaughter and Susan Brooks-Bank, recognizes the unified Greek organizations on campus (the most important of these being the promotion of brotherhood, scholarship, social life, school spirit, and community service.)

Each day this week has been set aside to stress a particular aspect of Greek life.

Today has been designated for fraternal emphasis. This evening there will be chapter meetings at which alumni have been invited to attend.

On Tuesday, the day set aside for scholarship emphasis, faculty members will attend dinner and speak at each house. The Greek Goddess contest will also occur tomorrow evening, scheduled for 8 p.m. in Westcott auditorium. At this time six finalists will be selected, from which a winner will be chosen to reign over the Friday festivities. Wednesday night, the social aspect of Greek life underscored with Inter-Greek socials at various houses will be presented.

Thursday is the day for stressing school spirit. Greeks and independents are being requested to wear "Beat N.C. State" tags during the day and to come to the pep rally on Landis Green that night where several surprises will be in store.

Friday is Community Service Day, and Greeks will contribute their efforts to the TB Campaign during the day. Friday night from 9 p.m. till midnight is the time schedules for the Greek Week Dance in the Union Ballroom. Open to Greeks and their dates, the dance will feature the crowning of the Greek Goddess, presentation of the Greek Man and Woman of the Year, and the awarding of the IFC Scholarship Trophy.

Fraternity parties will complete the weekend festivities in the evening following the N.C. State game. Greek Week has been designed to bring to a focal point activities promoting the basic ideals of Greek organizations on campus individually and through their national organizations throughout the year.

Each Greek organization actively promotes scholarship through programs for its members enforced study halls and study hours, tutors, scholarships, and incentive awards for academic excellence.

Competition is strong among the Greeks for the covered scholarship trophies awarded every year for the chapters with the highest scholastic overall, most-improved scholarship standing, and highest pledge overall. Attained through living and working together, a feeling of brotherhood contributes to a well-rounded adjustment to campus life. Strong friendship ties extend past graduation, and fraternal alumni association maintain a continued identification with the university. Projects along this line include circulations of alumni newsletters and special Homecoming activities.

School spirit is emphasized by participation in campus activities and actively contributing to campus traditions. Greek organizations provide incentive for campus participation through required activity hours, encouraging members to support such campus activities as student government, publications, dormitory functions, pep rallies, Circus, Gymbkane, and Homecoming.

House decorations for Circus Weekend and Homecoming floats represent Greek contributions of finances and hard work and this year IFC and Panhellenic will again contribute $100 as incentive awards to promote interest in the Legend. Social activities are an important aspect of campus life and fraternal organizations contribute many occasions in which their members may

School of Music called the tragic opera, "I Pagliacci," "the finest operatic performance ever to be presented in Tallahassee." He added that not only does it feature outstanding student voices, but the musical director is Richard Burgin, FSU professor of music and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony.

Kuersteiner explained that "I Pagliacci" was selected because of its tightly woven plot, its universal popularity with audiences and the "Magnificence of the Music."

Tonto, a hunch-backed clown, woos the beautiful Nedda, who scorns him in favor of Silvio. Tonto swears vengeance and tells Nedda's husband, Canio, about her illicit love affair.

Canio is desperate with jealous rage and laments his role as a clown with a group of traveling players because he must make the audience laugh while his own heart is breaking.

Their play's plot duplicates the real love situation and ends in Canio murdering Nedda and her lover, Silvio, who rushes from the audience onto the stage to defend her. Canio, dazed and overcome with grief, sings the final words of the drama, "The comedy is ended."

Coed Gets 'Lady Bird' Letter

By MARY LEE WOOD

According to a letter from Lady Bird Johnson to a FSU coed, "Lucy" was thrilled, flabbergasted, and delighted at becoming an honorary member of the Homecoming Court.

In a letter to Mrs. Johnson, Miss Pat Fendergast, FSU coed, apologized for the "poor taste" and "lack of manners" displayed by a small group of students at the rally given in her honor on campus last month.

Miss Fendergast said that she was "disturbed because of the actions of some of the people at the rally," and she "didn't want our school to be misrepresented."

are absolutely contrary to anything the majority wants or does."

Although she didn't expect a reply, Miss Fendergast was "astounded that the First Lady would send a personal reply," and she was "especially pleased that Mrs. Johnson would include a handwritten notation."

Along with thanking Miss Fendergast for her letter and the concern which prompted it, Mrs. Johnson also stated that she had "written Chairman Bailey of the Democratic Committee asking him to impress on your young workers the importance of good manners and fair play."

Miss Fendergast makes it a hobby of writing to famous and important people. Among those she has written and received replies from are President and Mrs. Kennedy, the Queen of England, Pope John, Pope Paul, and Walt Disney.

Week-end fraternity parties, sorority and fraternity mixers, sorority open-houses all provide opportunities for increased social contact. Greek organizations contribute to community service on both a national and local level. Support of Civil Defense, Muscular Dystrophy Campaign, Project Hope, a hospital for crippled children DePaul Memorial Library, summer camps for underprivileged children are representative of national Greek philanthropic work.

On campus the Greek organizations find efforts of individual organizations along this line in fund-raising projects for Campus Chest, holiday parties for underprivileged children the financing of a library for a foreign village, adopting children through the Foster Parent Plan, contributing to CARL, and the support of such projects as Fire Prevention Week, Get Out and Vote Campaign and United Nations Day. Greek Week 1984 offers the opportunity for a campus wide understanding of the Greek system. "The purpose of Greek Week will be accomplished if we achieve at this time a stronger unity within the Greek system and a better understanding of the reasons for the existence of the system throughout the campus," stated Susan Brockbank, Panhellenic Chairman of Greek Week.

Disagrees With Debate Letter

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to clarify certain accusations made by YAF member Alan F. Reamon concerning a proposed debate at Kellum Hall between YCJ and YAF.

Being a member of Kellum Hall Dorm-Government, I was present at the meeting held on October 7, Mr. Reamon's letter is a distortion of the facts.

The idea for a debate originated with a member of Dorm-Government. It was intended to be a part of the Kellum Hall Smoker Series, which is an informative discussion period for students. The debate was not planned as a political rally of Opperman Hall or University Union size.

Basic ground rules for the debate were already decided upon by Dorm-Government. The debaters would be students, not outside professional debaters. The audience was limited to students because of the size of the lounge at Kellum Hall.

The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the time limit for the debate, the role of the moderator, the format, and to see if YAF and YCJ were willing to participate.

At the meeting both organizations expressed willingness to participate, YAF suggesting Mr. Stanley. This proposal was ruled out by Dorm-Government. It was agreed to have another meeting on October 14. During this time YAF and YCJ would make arrangements for student debaters to represent them.

On October 14, the respective representatives of YAF and Youth for Goldwater did not show up at the meeting. Both were contacted by phone and each said the other was in charge of finding someone to debate. They agreed to call back October 16 and tell us whether or not they had found a debater. They did not call and on October 18 we called them. They said that they had not found a debater and would not be able to participate in the debate.

Therefore, the debate was called off because of the impossibility of having debaters from both organizations.

The elections commission is constantly striving to improve election procedures and provide faster elections of all students running for elective campus offices according to Elections Commissioner John Campbell.

The commission consists of 12 appointed members, including one representative from the Sophomore Council and one from APO. It makes sure all candidates are qualified to run for office, see that they abide by rules and regulations set forth in the Constitution and Statutes of the student body accounts ballots after each election. The work of the commission assures all students on campus that the persons chosen in elections properly represent them and are properly elected to their positions.

COMING EVENTS

There will be a meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium at the Union Bldg. for all students planning to intern in secondary education or speech therapy during the winter semester of 1966-1967.

Dr. Garth Blake, head of Internship Field Services, has requested that each therapy major attend this meeting so that they may receive detailed information concerning the internship program and have an opportunity to register with the internship office.

Students who cannot attend this meeting should register with the Internship Office prior to the meeting.

All elementary and exceptional child majors planning to intern during one of the above trimesters who didn't attend last week's meeting should report to Dr. Blake's office before November 16. There were 262 students attending the internship meeting last week.

Domestic Corps Needs Members

ISTA, a part of the Economic Community Act of 1964, has met with somewhat less success than its predecessor the Peace Corps.

ISTA is a domestic version of the Peace Corps and is now in its second month of operation. It has received 745 preliminary applications compared to some 20,000 received by the Peace Corps after the same period of time.

Of the 745 applications, only 470 are considered eligible and only 75 are applicants are eligible.

Many applicants were temporarily disqualified because of failure to marry with their spouses and others because they had dependents under 18. More than one third of the applicants were over 46 years of age. The lack of success comparable to that of the Peace Corps has been related to the facts that VISTA is a minor part of President Johnson's War on Poverty program, and the ISTA plans to place its first volunteers in training by the end of the year. Further information about the program and preliminary applications are available from EFA, Office of Economic Opportunity, Washington, D. C.

Thirty-one works of art by FSU faculty members went on exhibit at 4 p.m. Sunday in the University Union Art Gallery. The exhibition will remain up until Nov. 24.

Art faculty members have 19 works in the exhibition. These include lithographs, oils, water colors and portraits.

Twelve of the works are by art education faculty. Included are items in silver, fabric, wood, stone, and ceramics.

The gallery is located on the second floor, halfway between the Davis Bldg. and the Activity Bldg. in the University Union complex.

Mel Smith is student chairman of the exhibition committee. Jean Knarr is co-chairman.

Exhibitors from the art education dept. include Fred W. Mezke, William Watson, Leon D. Mead, and Ralph Hurst.

Five students have been nominated for Danforth Graduate Fellowships carrying annual stipends of $1,800 or more.

The five FSU nominees, who will now enter competition at the national level, are Erik L. Collins, Lawrence E. Jerome, Gregory S. McNeilly, Charles R. Middleton, and Mrs. Nan M. Sumner.

Edward Kilenyi Leaves On Tour

Edward Kilenyi, professor of music, leaves for a concert tour today to Ft. Lauderdale, Louisville and Indianapolis.

He will appear in Ft. Lauderdale Tuesday for a concert with the Ft. Lauderdale Symphony conducted by Emerson Buckley. The concert will feature Beethoven's Fifth Concerto.

While in Ft. Lauderdale, he will also appear in a concert with Miss Bonnie Bromberg, a former student and recipient of the Dohany Citation.

Adams' Aid Not Adams

The statement was given by an aide and came from the office of the Secretary of State not from Adams himself.

Dr. Abdull-Haqq Here Thursday Classified

Dr. Akbar Abdull-Haqq, internationally known lecturer on oriental religions and Christian apologetics, will be on campus Thursday as part of his current American lecture tour.

The highlight of this visit will be a lecture-discussion in the new Moore Auditorium on the topic "Intellectualism and Faith."

Haqq is a cum laude graduate of the University of the Punjab. After graduate work in oriental languages and philosophy, he traveled to America and eventually received his Ph.D. at Northwestern U. in the History of Religion and Systematic Theology.

Haqq attributes his turning toward a life in the ministry to the catastrophic events accompanying the partitioning of India.

He has said that "during the aftermath of the partition of India in 1947, I witnessed bloodshed and suffering of thousands of refugees; at one stage my own life hung in the balance as I, my newly married wife and my parents were threatened with extinction by the killers of thousands of helpless refugees."

"This eye-to-eye confrontation with suffering, death and the vanity of life was the final cause of my entry into the ministry."

Composition Given

A composition by Dr. Harold A. Schiffman, assistant professor of music theory at FSU, will be performed at the 30th annual convention of the Florida State Music Teachers Association in St. Petersburg through tomorrow.

Schiffman will perform his "Pentagone for Violin and Piano" at the 8:30 a.m. session today, and George Cullington, an FSU graduate student, will accompany him on the violin.

Triebe, Sans Biletznikoff, Held To Tie

By DON CORNET

Flambeau Sports Editor There is a "secret" feeling in the American Baseball League that as Mickey Mantle goes so do the Yankees. FSU has come up with a variation of that, as Fred Biletznikoff goes so do the Seminoles.

Biletznikoff didn't go at all Saturday in Houston against the Cougars because of a leg injury. The Tribe, an eight-point favorite, had to settle for a 13-13 tie, and were almost beaten 14-13.

Without Fleet Fred, the Seminole offense showed little of its usual explosiveness, except for one 73-yard drive in the fourth quarter that ended in a missed field goal.

The Tribe especially had limited punch in trying to score touchdowns. Six of FSU's 13 points came on field goals by Les Murdock.

Murdock hit from the seven and 17, but missed the game winning goal from the seven with 39 left in the game.

The unsure offense kept the vaunted FSU defense in the hole most of the afternoon. While they gave ground in the middle of the field, the Magnificent Seven and Formidable Four stopped three potential scores in the first half.

The defense stopped a Bo Burris field goal attempt from the 24 on the first series of the game. Frank Pennie then squelched another drive by recovering Dennis Collins' fumble on the FSU seven.

Bill McDowell stopped the third drive by hitting down a Burris pass from the FSU 16.

The Seven and Four did not fare quite so well in the second half. The Cougars scored twice in the fourth quarter on drives of 80 and 30 yards.

These scores came after the Tribe appeared to have the game packed away in the third quarter, 13-0. A pass interference call against the Garnet and Gold, and an intercepted Steve Tensi pass changed this.

Only a magnificent effort by Dick Hermann kept the Tribe from dropping its fourth straight game to the Cougars. Hermann partially deflected the extra point try after the second Houston TD to hold them to a tie.

FSU's lone touchdown came in the third quarter after a Houston punt had set them up on their own 47. Two shots through the line by Phil Spooner yielded two yards. With third and eight Tensi zeroed in on Don Flo for the first down on the Houston 35.

Wayne Giardino, subbing for the regular fullback, Les Narramore, got five to the 40. On the second down play, Red Dawson latched onto a Tensi bullet at the 18 for another first down. Spooner's six yard carry was nullified by an illegal procedure call that put the Tribe back to the 23.

Tensi got even with the officials by lobbing a 20 yarder to Floyd on the three. Giardino went into the line three times, the third time good for six yards. Murdock's kick was good.

The 13 points looked enough for the seventh Seminole win of the year but Burris had other ideas. Doing more sweeping than the Hoover Co., he took the Cougars 80 yards in 18 plays for the first Houston tally. Burris showed himself another of the roll out quarterbacks who have plagued the Tribe all season.

Using the option to perfection, he either ran, pitched to halfback Dick Post, or passed to Bill Dennis to get the Cougars down to the 25. With a second and ten situation, it looked as though the Garnet and Gold would hold again. However, a pass interference call in the end zone gave the ball to Houston on the one, first and goal.

For three downs the Magnificent Seven held the Cougars from scoring on line plunges. On fourth down Burris changed his tactics, swept end again and picked up six points. The PAT was also good.

The Tribe went to its bag of tricks to try to put the game out of reach. On the first play after the kick-off, second string quarterback Ed Pritchett went in as a halfback.

Tensi took the snap from center, pitched back to Pritchett and then instead of standing around in the usual quarterback manner he bolted down field. He easily had his surprised defensive man beat, but Pritchett overthrew him.

More orthodox play caused even more trouble. After moving to the FSU 48 Tensi threw for Giardino at the Houston 40. Instead of Giardino, Cougar Tim Wright grabbed the ball and ran it back to the FSU 30 where Tensi tackled him.

A fullback smash, two quarterback options, and a pitch out to Post yielded one touchdown and a tie ball game.

Hermann made sure it was no more than a tie by blocking the extra point attempt.

After an abortive touchdown drive from the 27 by Houston, the Seminoles came roaring back. In spite of the pressure of an upward drive with only 4:22 left, and a four try up Cougar team, Tensi really let his team down field.

Using basically the same plays as the next seven passes, Tensi determined execution. Burris and Giardino picked up two quick first downs. Then Tensi hit one on the next seven passes to Florida. Giardino, Larry Green, and Steve Revell set the Tribe up on the Houston seven.

With second and seven and 1:11 left in the game, Coach Bill Fetzner called time out to do some timing. His decision was to play it safe and go for the field goal rather than risk possible setbacks by trying to tie the game.

This time the safe way came off. Loser as Murdock missed from the seven and the tie game tied 13-13.

"AVERY, FAKE A HAND-OFF TO WETTSTEIN, TENSI AND PRITCHETT, RUN INTERFERENCE FOR HIM, AND WE'LL SNEAK COACH PETE IN FOR THE LONG PASS."

Orr Strings Five Strikes, Shoots 221

By MELODIE BETTS

BOWLING: Rick Orr found the line Wednesday night when he hurried five strikes for a 221 game and a 518 set to set a new high scratch game and handicapped total of 273-674 for the league.

Orr led his team, the Bunnies, to their first four game sweep along with teammate Bob Bush's 198-200. The Bunnies held the distinction of holding up the league with a 7-17 record.

The team noised out the 4 Roses for second place honors in high team game and set, handicapped with a 832-2355. The Kings led with an 848 2367 and the 4 Roses have an 831-2341.

Not to be outshined in scoring, Bruce Russell came through with high set of the evening putting together games of 191-184-178 for a 553.

Lud Bacon shot a 145-190-199 for a 534 set.

The 4 Roses barely retained the league lead with a 17-7 record, 630 pins ahead of the Kings with a 17-7. Tied for third place are Amor and Blue Devils. Alone in fifteenth stand the Hi-Le's. Kapuns and Team Too share sixth place honors and the Bunnies rest in the cellar.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: A meeting for the second season sports managers is scheduled this afternoon at 4:15 p.m. The season includes bowling, basketball, table tennis, and deck tennis.

It will expand two trimesters, beginning this month and continuing through February. A Unit managers meeting will be Wednesday at 4:15 p.m. in the new volleyball courts of the Women's gym.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Volleyball gets underway tonight at 7 p.m. in Tully G. Kellum Hall plays Oak; AK Psi and FSU meets Wesley. Geology defeated BSU 14-6 to win the dorm-independent flag football championship.

Quarterback Jon Pollard to give Geology its two touchdowns and victory.

ALL STAR: A fraternity All-Star flag football play will travel to Gainesville this weekend to play the University of Florida All-Star team. Twenty men will compete the team, with at least one member representing each fraternity.

Fraternities submitted lists of five offensive and defensive choices for the team. The team selections will be announced Wednesday. After a two day practice the men will head for Ocala-Land.

SWIMMING RESULTS: Phi Delta Theta splashed its way to 56 points and the fraternity swimming championship. Theta Chi and Phi Kappa Psi tied for second with 37 points and Delta Tau Delta finished fourth with 22.

Bill Bostain, Phi Delta Tau, edged out Bill Davis, Phi Kappa Psi, to 122.1 to capture the diving title. Alfie Hager, Delta Tau Delta, was a close third with 119.6.

Winning the individual meets were: 100 yard medley, Phi Delta, 5:17 sec.; 500 yard, Schutz, Phi Delta, 25 sec.; 50 butterfly, Burns, Theta Chi, 26:1; 50 backstroke, Scheckel, Delta Tau Delta, 29:5; 100 free style, Walsh, Phi Kappa Psi, 57:3; 50 breast stroke, Joslyn, Phi Kappa Psi, 32:1; and 200 free style, Phi Delta

'Fine Frosh Prospects': Proctor

"To say that there is a future Biletznikoff-Tensi combination of the Freshman team would be pure speculation," freshman coach Bill Proctor stated today.

"There are too many factors involved to make a prediction like that," he added.

"We do have several fine prospects, but the number of players that will make the varsity is indeterminate at this time. It depends on their ability and the needs of the varsity," he stated.

Most players, after a year on the freshman team, will be "red shirted" for one year. During this year, in which they will not play on the varsity, they will be in regular practice, and many times are on a weight-building program.

Most of the freshman team are on scholarships. To keep these scholarships they must maintain a "C" average. First trimester freshmen and underclassmen with below C averages are automatically re-evaluated in an academic program which has enforced study hours.

Tutors are only used when deemed absolutely necessary by the academic advisor.

The freshman team only plays 3 or 4 games a year due to SEC regulations. The first game against Miami was lost 10-16. Proctor felt this was partly due to lack of speed in the backfield.

The second game with UF ended in another loss for the freshman.

The third and final game played at Campbell Stadium, Saturday night, against Miss. Southern found the squad edged out by the score of 10-13. In the next few weeks, the freshmen will be learning the offensive and defensive plays of UF to use against the varsity in the spring to the FSU-Florida game.

"I definitely feel," concluded Proctor, "that some of these freshmen will make a good contribution when they reach the varsity squad."

Ed Scott Issues Final Statement

W. Young Named Foreign Counselor

Whitney Young, a foreign service officer for 25 years, has been appointed foreign student advisor at FSU.

Young will have his office at 250 University Bldg., University Union, and a staff member of the office of counseling will be responsible for the other duties he has been serving as foreign student advisor. There are 10 foreign students at FSU.

Young, originally from Ohio, completed his high school work at Millersville, Wisconsin, and received his bachelor's degree from Harvard. In 1924, he joined the foreign service and was assigned to Kobe, Japan. He has served as American Consul General in Colombo, Ceylon, and in the consular section of the embassy at Seoul, Korea. He was consul at Iloilo, Philippines, including a temporary assignment at Seoul, Korea. He was assigned to Swatow, China and Hongkong, and then returned to Washington.

For four years his work for the state department was with prisoners of war. He was assigned to the consulates in Uruguay, Colombia, and the consulate at Auckland, N. Z., where he voluntarily resigned from the consular service in 1949.

He was also with the George Washington University as assistant security officer and thereafter was with Gulf Oil Company's credit and collection department at Toledo, Ohio, and Washington.

He and Mrs. Young come to FSU on Aug. 17.

Social Standards Released By University Union Policy Board

Policy of social standards has been approved by the University Union board in conjunction with the formal opening of the new Union center for recreational and social activities.

The board stated that the opening was an appropriate time to re-emphasize the social standards of excellence of all men and women students at FSU.

The policy in regard to the Union is as follows: Women students may not wear shorts, slacks, slim jims or any other recreational attire on campus (exclusive of their own rooms and recreational areas in their residence halls and on the athletic fields or courts) except on games before 7 p.m. The same standard will be in effect in the Union with the exception of the Freshman Building.

Men students may wear Bermuda shorts on campus with appropriate socks and shirts. Such attire must be appropriate in the athletic fields or courts except on games before 7 p.m. The same standard will be in effect in the Union with the exception of the Freshman Building.

Men dressed in recreational attire are requested to use only the cafeteria, the Union, with the exception of the Freshman Building.

Both men and women students are requested to conduct themselves in proper taste and with decorum while in the Union, as elsewhere on campus.

The student lounges are to be used and enjoyed, but they are not to be used for sleeping or for reclining on the divans. Neither are coffee tables to be used as footstools. Cigarette and cigar smokers are requested to use ash trays.

The University Pool is located in the center of the campus and will be constantly under public scrutiny. Students are requested to act with restraint while using these facilities.

Each house is available for dressing. Therefore, students may not cross the campus to and from their places of residence in bathing suits or bathing trunks or any other attire inappropriate for campus wear.

The same dress and conduct prescribed for the Union is also appropriate for the Soda Shop and other eating facilities on and near the campus, and campus movies.

The Artist Series, evening lectures and concerts are more or less formal affairs. Women will be appropriately dressed in short cocktail or dinner dresses, or dress suitable for church attendance, hose and heels.

Appropriate dress for the Artist Series for men consists of shirt, tie and business suit or short coat and trousers. Neither shirts nor skirts for women nor shorts, slacks or slim jims for men or women are to be worn at such affairs.

The Board suggested a shirt and tie for informal dances and jacket attire for formal dances.

Richard Burgin Directs Concert

The distinguished American musician Richard Burgin will make his first appearance in Tallahassee as a conductor when he directs the performance of a short contemporary opera "There and Back" by Paul Hindemith.

This work will be double billed with Pagliacci on the opening nights of the State Opera Association of Florida, tomorrow, Thursday and Friday in Opperman Music Hall. Burgin has just returned from conducting the Boston Symphony. His work was characterized by rave notices in the Christian Science Monitor and other Boston dailies. Burgin was the first to introduce "There and Back" to the American public. The composer Hindemith was at the keyboard of one of two pianos called for by the orchestration.

The work itself lasts only ten minutes; it is unusual in that the story of a domestic tragedy is performed "there and back" thus ending on a happy note.

The State Symphony of Florida will offer the second concert on the season ticket series. This program will consist of the first performance in Tallahassee of Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony." State Symphony Chorus of 200 members will carry the choral section of the work.

The entire performance will be under the direction of Richard Burgin and will be given Dec. 11 in Westcott Auditorium.

Reserved seat tickets for the three events of the 1964-65 season are now available at the School of Music Office, Monday through Friday, 9 to 5, at $5, $10 and $12.50 as benefactor.

APD Ranked Second in Nation

The local Iota Rho chapter of Alpha Phi Omega fraternity has been honored as the number two chapter in the nation for the '63-64 university year.

No Class Dismissal

Despite rumors circulating, classes will not be let out at 12 noon on the Friday before the Florida-FSU game or on the Wednesday before Thanksgiving.

According to the Registrar's office, classes will run as usual on Nov. 20 and Nov. 25.

Ed Scott, former Attorney General, today issued a final statement in regard to the story in Friday's "Flambeau" reporting his removal from office by Student Body President John Mering.

"Last Friday's 'Flambeau' carried the bold caption that I had been dismissed as Attorney General by Student Body President John Mering. Naturally this proved embarrassing to me, especially in view of the fact that I have performed my duties as Attorney General with perseverance and with loyalty to the best interests to the Student Body."

"It is true that I neither respect nor have any confidence in Student Body President John Mering. My reasons were that after careful observation of his conduct and the way he managed his office, I found him engaging in conduct and actions inappropriate for one in his position. 'I disapproved of his answering the roll at the SUSGA convention last summer with a loud and obnoxious 'Hell Yes' and of destroying student government property. I also found him to be insincere in dealing with people in his role as Student Body President."

"It is true that the office of Attorney General is largely an advisory position. Advice, however, becomes difficult to give when it is not sought. Mr. Mering and I are members of two different campus-political parties. This created an artificial friction and caused Mr. Mering to let me nothing about the activities of his administration since with holding the information would help his party and fraternity, as well as himself, in securing the spotlight of all campus news media. I learned through second-hand information about matters that should have come to me through general office routine as a member of the student government. Example—Block Seating for Fla. vs. FSU game. There was no real purpose in Mr. Mering and Mr. Canoy's writing the article concerning the seating four weeks prior to the game. Since the seating contract was completed last spring, the article did no real good, but did gain public attention for the authors."

"From these few statements, one might see why I might have been 'the center of dissension' in student government when I ventured to voice an opinion on the John Mering administration. I publicly offer these statements for one reason—to make known the truth about this whole embarrassing episode. To my friends and constituents, I offer a most sincere apology for ever maintaining a 'part of this administration'."

George T. Lewis Speaks Tonight

Dr. George T. Lewis, the director of admissions at the University of Miami school of medicine, will speak at 7:30 p.m. tonight in 228 Conradi under the sponsorship of Alpha Epsilon Delta, the national pre-medical honorary.

Lewis' discussion will involve the preparedness of the first year medical student and an evaluation of pre-medical curricula. Saturday, AED will sponsor a trip to the University of Florida school of medicine. The group will be given a guided tour of the complete facility, including the teaching hospital, and will have the opportunity of visiting classes.

Any person who would like to make this trip may sign the list posted on the pre-medical bulletin board in Conradi. The motorcade will leave Tallahassee at 7:30 a.m. Saturday morning and return that afternoon. The only cost to a student making the trip will be his share of the gas. Alpha Epsilon Delta will hold an initiation on the evening of Nov. 24. Qualified individuals will receive further information on this meeting by personal letter.

DOTTIE KOHLMAN

Goddess Tonight

Scholarship will be today's emphasis for Greek Week, with faculty members attending each house for dinner and discussion on scholarship. The Greek Goddess contest will be at 8 p.m. tonight in Westcott. At this time, six finalists will be selected, from which a winner will be chosen to reign over the Friday festivities.

The winner will be crowned last year's Greek Goddess, Dottie Kohlman.

Tally-Ho's Here Soon

The 1965 editor of the Tally Ho, Susan Fincher, announced today that the 1964 Tally Ho's should be available for distribution in about two weeks.

The delay in receiving the books is due to a delay in the binders. Watch for further details in the "Flambeau."

U.S. Should Get Out Of S. Vietnam

To the Editor:

South Vietnam's Premier Nguyen Khanh told newsmen Saturday (Oct. 17) that the Viet Cong "are masters of subversive warfare and we cannot beat them on this ground." He again called for the war to be taken to North Vietnam with U.S. weapons. The only purpose to be served by carrying the war to the north would be to bolster Khanh's failing regime (he still holds the power despite the latest change in government) by diverting the attention of the people of his country.

The war in South Vietnam is a civil war being fought, largely with captured arms, against an unpopular dictator. There are no Russian troops in South Vietnam. There are no Chinese troops there. There are no North Vietnamese troops there with the possible exception of a few guerrilla fighters. The only foreign troops there are ours.

David Halberstam of the New York Times reported this year: "The war is largely a conflict of southerners fought on southern land. No capture of North Vietnamese troops has come to light and it is generally believed that most Viet Cong weapons have been seized from the South Vietnamese forces."

There are no Chinese troops or guerrillas in South Vietnam, if ex-Ambassador Lodge is to be believed. Neither is there Chinese military aid. The Viet Cong are nearly completely self supporting. They collect taxes in 40 of 43 provinces in South Vietnam.

The area of greatest Viet Cong activity is the Mekong Delta where the Viet Cong are completely cut off, geographically, from any contact with Laos and North Vietnam. If North Vietnam and China were both destroyed the war in South Vietnam would not be materially altered. Therefore to speak of carrying the war to North Vietnam makes no sense whatsoever militarily.

What if we do carry the war to North Vietnam? Could we hope to do with twenty thousand "advisors" what the French couldn't do with nearly half a million troops? And there is no reason to assume that, if we could win, China would allow an American base on her border.

When it looked as if we would take North Korea the Chinese boards swept down and soundly defeated us, and pushed them back. Now the dragon has atomic teeth and might use them unwisely if we tried to take North Vietnam. The result could be nuclear holocaust.

Not only should we refuse to escalate the war, but we should seek to end it. The Oct. 11 issue of the St. Petersburg Times carried an article saying, "Authoritative U.S. military sources disclosed that Vietnamese Air Force fighter-bombers killed 30 innocent civilians and wounded 20 more by mistake. . ."

Villages are sometimes bombed if they are thought to contain elements of the Viet Cong. Mistakes are often made and innocent villagers killed. This is admitted even in the tightly controlled South Vietnamese press. Must this senseless killing continue in the name of "Freedom"? What blasphemy!

We seek to keep South Vietnam to try and "contain" China. But in fact we are having largely the opposite effect. Vietnam was divided purely arbitrarily in 1954 by the French a chance to regroup in the south and exit gracefully. The country was to have been united in 1956 by country-wide free elections. The U.S. and then Premier Diem refused to permit elections, in direct violation of the Geneva Accords, and the artificial partition still exists.

The two halves of Vietnam are natural complements. The North has what industry there is in Vietnam but has a food shortage. The South has no industry but a surplus of food. No trade is allowed between the two countries (whereas countries like East and West Germany have extensive mutual trade) so North Vietnam is forced to go elsewhere for the food it needs. China is only too happy to take food from the mouths of her starving people to give to North Vietnam in the hope of gaining control of the country.

The war in South Vietnam is taking a tremendous toll in destroyed land, destroyed crops, and the loss of innocent peoples' lives. Other Southeastern Asian countries are saying if this is the way the U.S. saves a country from Communism that they don't want to be saved! What ought the U.S. then do? First and immediately we ought to withdraw all troops and military aid from South Vietnam. We ought then to take the problem to the United Nations or reconvene the fourteen nation Geneva Conference to seek to neutralize and reunify Vietnam. Certainly to go to the U.N. or the Geneva Conference before we withdraw our troops and aid would be ridiculous. What nation would be so foolish as to make an agreement with us when our presence in Vietnam and our military aid is in direct violation of the previous accords?

Accords which, incidentally, we pledged to the world to support. It might even be too late to prevent Vietnam from coming under Chinese domination for the Vietnamese hate and fear the Chinese even more than we do (those of us who admit China exists) as they have lived under Chinese domination several times in their history.

Recently a Viet Cong terrorist who had tried to assassinate Defense Sec. McNamara was executed. He died defiant, shouting, "Long live Ho Chi Minh (the ruler of North Vietnam)" and "Americans get out of Vietnam." He and the whole country might well be showing a more familiar slogan, "Give me liberty or give me death." But the U.S. is not giving the people of Vietnam a choice. And we are not giving them liberty!

SPORTS ON CAMPUS

by MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Writer

At 8 p.m. Sigma Chi takes on Theta Chi; Phi Kappa Phi plays TEP and Lambda Chi Alpha meets Delta Chi. GOLF TOURNAMENT: Ranev led the FIE Majors to a golf victory shooting a 39 for nine holes. The four man team posted a 176 winning total. Brimer of Ak Psi had a 38 as his team placed second with 179. Finishing third was Geology posting a 196 total.

An informal fraternity golf tournament is scheduled for Friday at 8:30 p.m. at the University Golf course. No points will be awarded toward the overall totals.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: A meeting for all Unit managers will be tomorrow afternoon at 4:15 p.m. to discuss the plans for the forthcoming sports season. Two teams sports and two individual sports compose the second season.

Basketball, and bowling make up the team sports with ping pong, and deck tennis singles and doubles tournaments. Bowling will be held on Saturday. It will cost each player $1.03 for three games. There will be two divisions for scratch and handicap trophies.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Defending champions, Phi Delta Theta, lead the fraternities with 284 total points as the season goes into the second session of volleyball. In second place Delta Tau Delta has 250 points followed by Phi Kappa Tau 248 and Theta Chi with 244.

Phi Delta finished second in the flag football tournament and capped first place honors in swimming, rolling to the league lead.

VOLLEYBALL: Kappa Sigma defends their championship on the courts tonight when the fraternity volleyball games begin. Kappa Sigma plays Sigma Nu at 7:15 p.m., along with ATO against Phi Kappa Psi and SPE meets FKA.

Tennis Squad Tackles Takers

Students will have the opportunity to play against the varsity and freshman tennis teams in the first annual FSU Tennis Championship Tournament. Coach Lex Wood announced today.

The tournament is opened to all students and will run as a single elimination tourney in men's single and doubles competition. Individuals and teams must sign up in Wood's office located in Tully Gym by 5 p.m. tomorrow afternoon. There is no entry fee.

The tourney will climax the fall tennis practices. Paul Bennett, newly elected captain for 1968 will be a strong contender. Other varsity players with potential are Paul Deew, Stuart Brimer, Terry Foote, Steve Burt and Steve Guse.

It will begin Thursday and run through November 20 with the finals taking place the 20th. Games will be scheduled from 5 p.m. till 9 p.m. at Tully Gym.

HEADS UP!

FSU Kickers split up a double header this weekend against St. Leo Abby and St. Petersburg Soccer Clubs bringing their record to a 1-3-0 for the season.

Soccer Splits

Ziegler Leads Seminole Soccer Score

The FSU Kickers split a double-header weekend with St. Leo Abby and the soccer club of St. Petersburg. The Kickers were minus their star defensive players, Dick Goddard and Tom Mather as they defeated Abby 4-1 and dropped to a strong St. Petersburg team 1-4.

Manford Ziegler led the team against Abby, scoring the four goals, while the defense bottled up the St. Leo Abby threats. Goalie, Bill Madux, broke up several scoring plays in both matches.

The Kickers were unable to contain St. Petersburg Sunday when they went down to defeat, 1-4. Sonny Dawsey scored the solo point for FSU. St. Petersburg avenged for the 7-2 loss they suffered last year behind the scoring of Norbert Muller, Bill Overberg, and Dennis Babcock.

St. Petersburg brought the strongest team the Kickers have faced this season according to Coach Bob Pace.

The team was outmanned in every category but through a fine defensive effort led by Scotty Gordon and Jim Shubert, the team held St. Pete to only four points.

The Kickers have a free weekend to prepare for the upcoming University of Florida game, November 21 when they face another double-header playing the Bruins Sports of Jacksonville, also.

Fifty Five Students To Host Legislators At Annual Legislative Recognition Day

By BOB CORNET

When Florida's legislators take the off Saturday to be honored at the Legislative Recognition Day, they will be hosted by 55 students. Formally hosted by faculty members for the annual event, this year students of the University Promotion Bureau will also aid in showing the campus to legislators.

The students will be assigned to legislators from their home district, said John White chairman of the student government bureau.

The main function of these people, he said will be to make the lawmakers feel at home and create a friendly atmosphere.

The hosts will pick up their assigned party Saturday morning by bus or car and transport them to the new swimming pool in the University Union for a diving exhibition and reception.

White said that the hosts would always be available for help and questions from the legislators. Their specified function for the rest of the morning will be to take the guests on a short campus tour and to drive them to the barbecue and other stated events.

White said that the schedule for the hosts has been kept very general so that it is possible for the student to develop a more personal relationship with his assigned guest.

White said that his kind of relation is encouraged since the Host Bureau is part of the overall plan of the Political Education Committee. The Committee operates as a "student lobby" to inform the state legislators of University goals, needs and accomplishments.

White said the P.E.C. will try to use the same host students as liaisons between the University and state legislators in the future activities of the Education Committee.

The last project of the PEC was a state wide effort to support Constitutional Amendment Two. The amendment altered the structure of the Board of Control and made it a non-political Board of Regents.

Dean K.O. Kuersteiner Previews First State Opera Presentation

"Three murderers in one hour and ten minutes is doing pretty good," Dean K. O. Kuersteiner, of the School of Music said about Leoncavallo's tragic opera, "I Pagliacci," to be presented in English today, Thursday and Friday at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Beware 'Mob' Tonight

"The Lavender Hill Mob," starring Alec Guinness and Stanley Holloway will be shown at 7 and 9 p.m. tonight for the Classic Cinema in Moore Auditorium.

The movie concerns the great gold robbery masterminded by none other than the quiet, trusted supervisor of the bank's bullion.

In the style of the best English humor, this classic laugh riot was an Academy Award Winner.

Kuersteiner added that the plot and music in I Pagliacci made it a great opera. "The stage sets, lights and costumes are particularly good," he said. "In fact," he said, "the stage set in I Pagliacci could almost be a museum piece."

He noted that the opera contains three especially outstanding numbers: the prologue, "Let the play begin," sung by Sidney Buckley; "Change your tears into laughter," sung by Clinton Nichols; and "The comedy is ended," by Nichols.

The opera also features Ethel Donaldson, James Haygood and Joseph Napoli. There and Back, a short contemporary work by Paul Hindemith, will also be presented. Sarah Hanna and Larry Dermody have the lead roles, with Walter James, Wayne Prather, Sam Welch and Jo Stripling

'Idiot's Or Students' Waiting For Tickets

By NANCY ZLATIN
Asst. News Editor

"You have to be either a college student or an idiot to do this," said a bleary-eyed student after a sleepless night waiting in line at the stadium for a Florida game date ticket.

Mattresses, lawn chairs, cots and blankets were luxuries which helped to alleviate the effects of the cold damp night for over 50 students camping out at the stadium Monday night. A frequent comment was "I nearly froze to death" in spite of the bonfires and blankets.

Cherry Havens and Annie Leavins were the two coeds first in line at the ticket window. "We came at three o'clock yesterday afternoon and some boys relieved us at ten last night," said Miss Havens.

Georgia Garcia added that he relieved the coeds for the night. The girls brought us breakfast and will bring us lunch, I hope."

One group cooked eggs and sausages and most students were well-equipped with donuts, crackers, coffee, cokes and other drinks.

Many spent the night playing cards by candlelight. Larry Kling, who took his place in line at 10 p.m. the night before, complained that he "lost two days of canasta."

Studies were not completely forgotten (although some classes were). Several students brought books to catch up on reading while waiting. Tom Chancey reported that, ironically, one of his fraternity brothers, after spending 12 hours in line, discovered that he had forgotten his ID card, a necessity for obtaining a ticket.

One student organized a singing group around the campfire, while others watched a portable TV or played cards.

Further comments describing the camp-out were "ridiculous," "absurd," and "It sure was a lot of fun catching pneumonia," as these students continued to stand in line.

Professor Louis C. Bourgeois Lectures In University Union

LOUIS C. BOURGEOIS

Dr. Louis C. Bourgeois, asst. professor at FSU in the department of Modern Languages will speak tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 215 of the new Union, in a program organized by Sigma Delta Pi the Spanish honorary society.

Bourgeois is a specialist in Spanish American literature who joined the faculty of FSU in June. He has taught at John Carroll University, at Wayne State University and at the University of Pittsburgh.

His talk will deal with regional literature of Chile and the different social types reflected in it.

Florida Statutes Prohibit Scalping

Students are warned that the Florida Statutes forbid the "scalping" of tickets.

Section 817.36(1), of the Florida Statutes reads: "Whoever shall offer for sale or sell any ticket good for passage or accommodations on any common carrier in this state, or good for admission to any sporting exhibition, athletic contest, theatre or any exhibition where an admission price is charged, and request or receive a price in excess of one dollar above the price charged therefore by the original seller of said ticket, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred dollars and not more than six months, or by both fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court."

Block Drawing Set For Senate Room

All organizations who have signed up for block seats at the N. C. state football game Saturday should have a representative at Room 346, Senate Union, Union Activities Building, at 4 p.m. today.

Table Missing Since VPI Game

Officials at Kellum Hall are on the hunt for a missing coffee table which disappeared from the dorm lounge sometime during the week of the FSU-VPI football game.

According to Clive G. Cloyd, House Manager of Kellum, the table is five feet long and one and a half feet wide and 14 inches high. It has metal legs, a walnut island surface and is valued at more than $130.00. "Every once in a while we find something missing from the dorm, especially during a home football game weekend," Cloyd said.

"I guess that whoever takes the items takes them as souvenirs, but this was a rather expensive souvenir and I don't see how one person could carry it off by himself," he added.

Cloyd said things of this sort happened from time to time at different places on campus. For instance, he said a rather expensive Hi-Fi had been missing for some time just after it was opened and had never been returned.

"Sometimes the missing items are returned, however," he added. Several years ago an entire living room suite was taken from a fraternity house. It was returned at the end of the year in pretty good condition,"

FSU-UF Tickets Now Available

Name date tickets for the FSU-UF game will be sold tomorrow at 7:30 a.m. to 125 men and 125 women at Campbell Stadium.

The 250 extra tickets will be sold first come, first served basis. Lines will be formed, and the tickets will be equally divided between men and women.

Yesterday, tickets went on sale earlier than scheduled because the line was reached ahead of opening time.

According to Ronald Melton, athletic business manager, FSU made the distinguished between Saturday and Monday night by organizing the students in line so that the ticket selling was accomplished in a orderly manner yesterday.

The students recognized were Melton, Newman, Ron Lesley, Bob White and Bill DeGroot, among others whose names were memorable.

Last Contract Day

Organizations have not turned in their contracts for the 1965 school year.

Organizations who have not turned in their contracts by today will not have the "Filly He." It is positively the last day to turn in these contracts in. Please hurry them to the Business Manager, room 310 Union Activities

Potpourri

Many questions have been raised over the "real reasons" for the firing of Attorney General Ed Scott by President John Mering.

We hate to spoil good rumors but the story is simply a personality conflict, as was explained in Friday's "Flambeau."

Both Scott and Mering are able politicians, but unfortunately both belong to different political parties.

When problems arose over personal difficulties, Mering decided that it would benefit the University in the long run to find a person he could rely on for advice. Scott simply wasn't the man.

This episode should not bring discredit on either of the two individuals involved. Scott certainly is competent to fill the position but one shouldn't blame Mering for feeling the need for a trusted confidant in so high a position.

We would like to know what happened to the tickets for our last Artist Series.

The first report we received on the performance from Mrs. Katherine Vernon of the Special Events Office stated that tickets had already been sold out.

This certainly was a surprise. We didn't realize that so many students were so eager to attend that they found out for themselves and bought out the ticket office during the first five minutes of sales.

A rumor we haven't been able to verify has spread to the effect that a professor or professors of the School of Music got wind of the impending concert and informed their students, who in turn bought out all the tickets.

If anyone knows the real situation we would appreciate some clarification. All students should be able to attend Artist Series, not just a chosen few.

* * * * *

It seems to us that much better planning could have been used in setting up the activities for the Florida Weekend.

If it hadn't been for the University Union Program Council, who arranged for tours of the Union, the Si Zentner and Rick Powell Dances on Friday and Saturday Nights, and many other Union activities, we would have virtually no entertainment for the weekend.

Somewhere, somehow, Student Government and the University administration fumbled the ball. One doesn't set events calling for big name entertainers in three weeks, it takes months of careful planning.

The President has now set up a weekend planning committee.

It is a good idea, just five months too late.

* * * * *

Well, we now are all over here in the new University Union and as usual we have a few questions.

Why were the buildings designed with white tile on the floors and white paint for the walls. Both scratch if looked at sideways.

We also have a key system that would befuddle an electronic brain with cards for keys and keys exchanged for cards and so on ad infinitum.

Nice to be in a University Union designed for the directors and not the students. It's typical.

Blasts FSU - U of F Seating Plans

Nineteen-sixty-four, the year that the University of Florida plays football in our Doak Campbell stadium. Right now it promises to be a great game. Wouldn't you like to see it? Let's hope you get to. If you are a wife or husband of a student you may not get to.

If you are planning on taking a date perhaps you had better make other plans on November 21. If you do get to go to the game you will undoubtedly be allowed the privilege of sitting on the same side as the Gators. Somehow it seems to me that steps have been taken to provide for the University of Florida students before the Seminoles have been taken care of. The Florida state University Seminoles. Your school.

Mad? I imagine you are if you stood in line to get a date or married student's tickets for double the normal price. Another thing, from somewhere comes the statistic showing 40% of FSU's student body are married students.

Figuring on a basis of 12,000 students that leaves 4,800 married students. Say one half were non-attending spouses. That leaves 2,400 married students for 250 tickets. That gives us roughly 9.6 people per married student ticket.

The remaining 2,400 married students can divide 2,400 by 9.6 to get 250 tickets.

As for the figure stating the president of the student senate stated games, what about this has been said by married students. I never saw husbands and student seats.

Now the Gators sit in the end zone. The leading cheerleader of everyone's mind is "Gators become contestants, what about the options?" Also, the FSU of having the same the even now right? What about before? It stands some reason.

say. Has the case been argued with their big black eyes? Is it a type demarcation of seating?

Well, whether you agree or not by portable radio or portable television's certain. You'll get there if it is the case. There is the case to sit you in the end zone. Why in the end zone. Maybe Florida State eats next year.

The University of Florida is the only school with a football stadium in Florida. They should be a little holier than that attitude. They longer rule Olympus any more. They can realize the fact. Let's show them how right the fact. November 21.

Flambeau FORUM

Proposes Ticket Raffle

To the Editor:

Upon reading the Nov. 5 edition of the Flambeau, I discovered, much to my surprise, that the tickets for the latest Artist Series were sold out. Not that this is unusual in itself.

However, this time was unique in several ways. First, despite my daily reading of the "Flambeau," I found the first mention of this Artist Series (scheduled for Nov. 5) in the Nov. 5 paper announcing that it was sold out.

Apparently, the only students aware of the performance were students connected with the music department or who had obtained a list earlier.

I realize that with all the various and numerous activities on campus, such as Pearl Buck being interviewed at Westminster House (since I was an hour early, I managed to share a seat in the back row, so I am not usually as prompt as you know about everything happening on campus, even when they're publicized.

Of course, the reserved, minority of tickets for the latest Artist Series were held by the hasseans, but they paid for them. Our only investment is the cost of our 913 fees.

Perhaps with the rumored increase in tuition, the additional money will be used to allow students to purchase their own Florida State University Artist Series, or is it the latest hassean Artist Series?

Until then, I propose raffling the tickets which remain in circulation (assuming they haven't been distributed to zero) in order to insure an opportunity among students for the next performance.

Authors Second Law

There are those non-believers who think that the behavioral sciences will never produce "scientific" laws that the natural sciences have. I wish to present proof that they are 100% wrong. I offer Haynes's Second Law of Social Dynamics. This universal law states, in ordinary discourse, that "it is all one vast conspiracy at work."

This principle is able to provide a satisfactory explanation to so many events that I am convinced of its useful and valid nature.

The following questions illustrate the working of Haynes's Second Law in my own experiences.

Why were classes scheduled so that I received 8:00 a.m. classes five days a week?

Why are two of my mid-term examinations scheduled for the same day?

Why did I miss the Pow Wow?

Why did the tickets for the Raduga Dancers sell out while I was standing in line waiting?

Why did they start the trimester

Arrangements Poorly Planned

To the Editor:

This University has just added me to its list of victims. For clarity's sake, the victims would be all those involved in the Pow Wow scandal, all girls subject to stringent regulations and all girls living in off-campus houses (where the rules are generally higher and the conditions poorer). YFSL should certainly be included in the victim group.

(This is not to say that the victims are entirely blameless, rather they could be said to be licentious, promiscuous, overabundant, and contentiously controversial—all respectfully and in that order.) Yet they are persecuted with a vengeance. Inquisition-like zeal—the state is all.

The latest crop of victims came into being not for any violations or dogma but accidentally because of sheer ill planning. The result was that the majority of the people who wished to hear Pearl S. Buck's talk couldn't because it hadn't been scheduled in a building large enough.

Yet, this accident was embellished with a reprehensible theory. A day in which happened, for a moment it appeared that things were going to be adapted to the circumstances. Really! It was announced that the talk was to be moved to Opperman whereupon, a great number of us standing outside marched over there only to have it announced that the talk wasn't to be moved after all.

So you suppose this diversionary tactic was to lessen the danger of our storming the building, after all the disappointment might have been too much for children.

Seat Shortage Unavoidable

To the Editor:

I hope this article will dispell the rumors which have been flying lately. Contrary to popular belief there were 250 tickets sold Friday morning.

I personally checked this out with Mr. Melton and with Mr. Thigpen, Business Mgr. and Ticket Mgr. respectively, for the Athletic Dept. Sufficient proof is available to this effect.

There has been a shortage of seats for the Florida-FSU game, but this is due to concessions which had to be made in order to bring Florida to Tallahassee.

Seating for the future games looks to be in much better order than this year.

The married students, also contrary to popular belief, were well represented in the Student Government. They came out much better than any other segment of students for them and also a couple of the other 250 date tickets available.

All in all the married students got a very good deal.

Rebuts Letter

To the Editor:

Obviously Mr. Ron Drenth's "Flambeau Forum" (Oct. 21) is a very good example of a misunderstanding of public opinion. There are pacifists everywhere because there is war.

In the past, nations have tried to win wars by the use of force. But going to war does not mean the total destruction of the freedoms along with the lives of the people. Which side are you on? We are on the side of Mervyn Drenth who supports the war. Clearly aren't.

Wolfpack Wants Revenge

The North Carolina State Wolfpack invades Tallahassee this weekend hoping to avenge the Seminoles' loss for last year's 14-0 defeat.

Defending champions, the Wolfpack brings a 4-4 record to Seminole land, leading the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Wolfpack plays determined ball and operates as a solid team. Win or lose, Coach Earle Edwards' teams provide close, pulsating games. Nearly half the games played under Edwards have been decided by a touchdown or less.

The Wolfpack began their season with an experienced offense and a brand new defense, having graduated 11 lettermen. But the Wolfpack rose to the occasion defeating the Tar Heels 14-13 to kick off their season. They continued their winning streak by downing Clemson, Virginia, and South Carolina.

Maryland edged out a 15-14 victory while Alabama and Duke handled the Wolfpack. In last week's game against VPI, the Wolfpack fared much the same as FSU against the Gobblers, suffering a 28-19 defeat.

Last year's game with the Pack (FSU Homecoming) saw a defensive battle, with FSU scoring late in the half on a Carolina fumble recovered by Jim Rossi.

FSU managed to maintain control of the game the second half capitalizing on the Wolfpack's mistakes. On fourth down on the Wolfpack's nine, Fritchett called for a quarterback sneak which resulted in a 12 yard touchdown play.

This year, spectators can expect another hard fought defensive game, only this year both teams will favor the air for their attack on opposed to the ground.

FSU will have to contain quarterback Rod Skosnik, according to Coach Peterson. Skosnik has good control, a hard passing attack, and executes key sweeping plays with dexterity and speed.

The Wolfpack will face the unsolved problem of stopping the Tens-Bilenshoff air attack. After a week's rest, Fleet Fred should be in top shape for the game.

The Seminoles must contend with Skosnik's favorite targets, halfback Jimmy Guin and fullback, Pete Falarzo, who averaged a 4.0 rushing average for two seasons.

Lou De Angelis leads the Wolfpack defense. De Angelis, according to Edwards, is the best line-backer he has coached in his 11 years with N.C. State. He hits hard and loves contact plays.

Glenn Sasser, tackle and two-way guard Bennett Williams and back De Angelis in the defensive line. Sasser combines speed, agility, and strength with a solid tackle, while Williams' quick speed makes him an excellent blocker.

End Ray Barlow, the defensive ace for the Wolfpack, is a two-way threat as an excellent blocker and fine pass receiver. Barlow caught four TD passes last year including one in the Liberty Bowl.

They are a tough team on the field with a determined spirit but, Coach Pete believes the team will rise to the occasion to stop the Wolfpack.

FSU Readies Show-Off For Solons

By STEVE PRENTICE

Final preparations are underway for Legislative Recognition Day, according to Secretary of State Mike Wigelius.

Legislative Recognition Day is an annual affair at FSU, designed to acquaint new legislators with the university and its programs and to show veteran lawmakers the progress made during the past year.

The weekend is sponsored by the FSU faculty and administration and the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, Student Government, the FSU alumni assn., and other campus organizations help with the activities. Phil Fleming, director of development, is the chairman of the Recognition Day Committee, and is in charge of coordinating all groups and organizations concerned.

Approximately 100 legislators and their spouses are expected to attend the legislative day activities this year.

"A University is for Students" is the theme for the 1964 legislative weekend which will begin at 10:30 a.m. Saturday with a program introduction by University President

Gordon W. Blackwell and a welcome address by Student Body President John Merting.

Registration for visiting dignitaries and other guests will be from 9:30 a.m. until 10:30 a.m.

After Merting gives his welcoming speech, Blackwell will introduce the guests and specially selected students will address the group on "Profiles in Learning."

Students of the School of Music will present selections at various times throughout the morning speaking program.

Head Football Coach Bill Peterson will speak on "Students and Football" and the morning session of the weekend program will be concluded with a speech on "The Future" by President Blackwell.

During the afternoon, legislators will attend a barbeque in their honor which is hosted by 55 FSU students who have sent personal invitations to lawmakers in their home areas.

At 2 p.m., the new University Union will be dedicated, followed by a social hour and dinner at the Elks' Club.

Festivities of the day will be concluded with the "Fighting Seminoles" meeting the N.C. State "Wolf Pack" in Doak Campbell Stadium in the Seminoles' ninth scheduled football battle of the season.

Union To Host ACU Convention

The new $2.5 million University Union will be host to delegates from 25 Florida, Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama colleges attending the annual conference of the Association of College Unions, Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The conference gives students an opportunity to compare the student union programs of their colleges and learn ways to improve them. Gaines Pickett, undersecretary of the University Union, said today.

In panel meetings, he added, they will discuss various subjects concerning student unions, such as how to improve the union for incoming graduate and married students and how to increase student participation in union activities. He commented that these discussions will be "very valuable to FSU as we get our new union's program underway."

Bill Scott, President-Elect of the Association of College Unions-International, will give the keynote address for the conference Friday morning. At a banquet that evening, FSU Dean of Students Harry Day will speak to the delegates.

The delegates will also attend a mixer Thursday night featuring the BrandYWine Singers

LEGISLATIVE DAY PLANS

Will be discussed by Secretary of State Mike Wigelius (right), and John White, chairman of the Student Government bureau.

Student Rights Bill Still Waits For Action By Student Senate

By AL GALBRAITH

The "Student Bill of Rights" bill was left for another week by the Student Senate during its regular meeting yesterday afternoon in the Davis Building of the University Union.

The bill, originally introduced by Sen. Gene Stearns two weeks ago, is still under consideration by a special committee.

In other action, two bills and three resolutions were introduced. One resolution, introduced by Sen. Ruth Doyle, established a committee to investigate the Who's Who and Hall of Fame procedures.

The investigating committee consists of nine people, including representatives from the Hall of Fame Committee, Who's Who Committee, and several deans.

Another resolution will restrict the use of the block section at the FSU-Elks Club to these organizations which have received block seating this year prior to the North Carolina game this weekend.

Organizations which are obtaining blocks for the first time for the N.C. State game would be prohibited from gaining blocks at the Florida game next week.

The resolution was introduced by Sen. Grady Gelson.

One bill, if passed, will alter the election code by adding ballot boxes to be placed at Alumni Village and at the University Trailer Park.

The bill, introduced by Sen. Ken Cherry, is being studied by the Special Elections Committee.

The other bill would change two precincts by moving Gamma Phi Beta to Precinct 19, and by moving Alpha Delta Pi to Precinct 20.

Haqq To Lecture Today On Faith

Dr. Azzar Abdul-Haqq will be on campus today as part of his current lecture tour. He is an internationally known lecturer on oriental religions and Christian apologetics.

The highlight of his visit will be a lecture and discussion in the new Moore Auditorium on the topic, "The Secularism and Faith," at 7:30 p.m. tonight.

Haqq is a cum laude graduate of the University of Punjab. After graduate work in oriental languages and philosophy, he traveled to America and eventually received his Ph.D. at Northwestern U. In the history of religion and systematic theology.

Rally Scheduled

Seventeen Greek men dressed as Indians will lead the first cheer of tonight's pep rally in accordance with today's Greek Week theme "School Spirit."

Held in the open space between the Union Bldg. and the swimming pool, the rally begins at 7 p.m. in the hope that Greeks and independents will go there from dinner.

As the cheerleaders carry on the pep rally, "Beat N.C. State" tags will be passed out to be worn Friday.

Bartlett To Speak

Dr. Richard Bartlett will speak on the "Great Sweep of the American West" at 9 p.m. tonight in room 120 Geology Bldg. for the FSU Geological Society.

THE BRANDYWINE SINGERS

...and Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs will furnish music for the Greek Week dance tomorrow night at 8:30 in the University Union. The dance is open to all Greeks and their dates. Dress for the dance is school clothes.

FSU Cagers Feud Tonight In Tully Intra-Squad Game

Rebounding roundballers will hit the courts of Tully Gym for the first time this year tonight for an intra-squad double header starting at 8:15 p.m.

The first half of the game will pit the varsity B-squad against the freshman team. The freshmen are a small, quick, fast breaking team that should give the bigger boys trouble.

After intermission the first team will take the court split into two teams. This will be the first look of the season at such standouts as Gary Schull and Ron Malmen.

FSU will field a tall varsity with 6-7 Schull, 6-5 Malmen, and 6-8 Bill Phillips.

Sailors Breeze To Win In Gainesville

SAILING ASSOCIATION: FSU made a clean sweep at the sailing regatta held in Gainesville last weekend by dumping the University of Florida in every event.

FSU claimed all first and second place honors in each of the four races. The team competed in Penguin class boats. Bill Maines led the team with three firsts and second. Herb Elplick scored one first and a second, and Al Franklin added two more seconds for the final total.

The Association has grown to 65 paid members this trimester. Less than a third knew how to sail in September.

One of the functions of the association is teaching prospective members how to handle a boat. Ten lessons are held every trimester. Those who attend regularly usually know how to handle a boat after one trimester and how to race after two, said Elplick.

Each trimester consists of nine to ten regattas, half of which are away races. Any member may attend the regattas. Over half of the membership has been to at least one regatta this year.

Anyone with the knowledge of racing, said Elplick, can participate in the eliminations to choose the team for each regatta. There is a membership fee of $5 a trimester which includes the use of boats, lessons, and traveling to out of town meets. Beginners lessons are scheduled Saturday at the Reservation. Anyone interested should meet at the Lands Night Director's Office at 9:30 a.m. for transportation to the reservation. Intermediate lessons for qualified skippers interested in racing will be Sunday at 10:30 a.m.

TENNIS CLUB: The first annual FSU Tennis Tournament gets underway this evening at 5 p.m. on the Tully Gym tennis courts. Competition includes men's singles and doubles when student players take on the varsity in a single elimination contest.

The tournament will run through Nov. 20 with the finals taking place that evening.

INTRAMURALS WOMEN: A basketball officiating clinic begins tonight at 7 p.m. in room 208 of the Women's Gym. Dorn and sorority sports managers or representatives are encouraged to attend the clinic.

INTRAMURALS MEN: Fleming Field will be the scene of the FSU-U of F Flag Football All Star game, Saturday in Gainesville. Directing the FSU attack will be Jim Gordon and teammate Jim High of Phi Kappa Tau. The team is composed of one member from each fraternity.

Representing ATO, Sam Humphries; DTG, John Lambert and Ray Perez; Kappa Sig, Ron Ernst; Phi Delta Theta, Howdy Hazel and Jay Gilzinsht; Phi Kappa Psi, Justice Reed; Pi Kappa Alpha, Dave Orr; Sigma Chi, Richard Parsons; Sigma Nu, George Paugh; Theta Chi, Bob Votau and Bob Burke; SPE, Scott Spicer and Harold Beals, plus a member from Pi Kappa Phi, Lambda Chi, KA, and Delta Chi (they had not been selected by press time).

VOLEYBALL RESULTS: Keilum defeated Oak as the volleyball tournament got underway Monday. Other victories were; Hearshstone over Delta Sigma Pi, BSU upset Sigma Mifstrs squeaked by Geology, Hills trampled AK Psi, and FSO nudged Wesley.

Collins Co Dedicate C. Moore Auditorium

By CAROLYN CHRISTENSEN

Former Governor LeRoy Collins will be the main speaker at dedication ceremonies of the new University Union tomorrow at 2 p.m. in the Union's 400-seat Moore Auditorium.

Governor Farris Bryant will present the building, which will be accepted for the university by President Gordon Blackwell and for the Board of Control by Dr. Wayne C. McCall.

Dr. Dak S. Campbell, president emeritus of FSU, will also be on the program at the ceremonies dedicating the $2.7 million complex.

The Rev. C. A. Roberts, of the Tallahassee First Baptist Church, will give the invocation and benediction.

During the ceremonies, three of the five buildings of the complex will be officially named in honor of former FSU students Coyle E. Moore Jr., Robert E. Crenshaw, and Helen Morris Davis.

Among the honored guests will be representatives of the Coyle E.

Moore, Jr. and the Robert Crenshaw families. Moore Auditorium is named for the 1956 cum laude of FSU who served as vice-president and president of the student body, permanent president of the 1956 senior class, founder and first president of the Alpha Council.

'Distinguished' Prof. W. Rogers Guest Of 'Hour'

Dr. William Hudson Rogers, retired FSU English professor, will be the guest speaker at the English Coffee Hour at 4:30 p.m. today in the Westminster House.

Rogers FSU's first "Distinguished Professor of the Year" (in 1957), will receive favorite passages from George Meredith, Robert Browning, and Shakespeare.

Rogers taught at FSU for 42 years before retiring last June. During his years here, he was made an honorary member of Gold Key, student leadership organization, and of Omicron Delta Kappa, student service honorary. During 1947-48 he served as acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Rogers has authored numerous articles in magazines and journals and several books. His books include "History of the Book Review," "The Best of Browning," and "Shakespeare and English History."

AKP Looks For Top Instructor

Nominations for the outstanding classroom instructor in the School of Business will be accepted Monday, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the main lobby of the Business school.

Business students are encouraged to nominate the professor who has conducted the most interesting and informative class in a business subject. The professor who receives the largest number of nominations will be presented with the Instructor Efficiency Award by Alpha Kappa Psi at a banquet to be Nov. 22.

The award is designed to give recognition to the classroom instructors who are so often taken for granted and overshadowed in the eyes of students by the professors who devote themselves to research and the writing of textbooks.

'64 Greek Week Activities End

Final activities for this year's Greek Week will be today and tomorrow.

The official crowning of the Greek Goddess is at 8 p.m. tonight in the University ballroom. At this time the award for the Greek Man and Woman of the Year will be presented along with the Interfraternity Council Scholarship trophy.

Finalists for the Greek Women of the Year are Debbie Allen, Jan Brantley, Beverly Klepp, Judy Loucks, Sue Mauger, and Sally Sparks.

For the Greek man awards the finalists are Hines Boyd, Jim Brandt, Ted DeLaVergne, John Mering, and Julian Proctor.

Also at the dance will be crowned the Greek Goddess. Finalists for this event include Sue Count, Sue Walt, Mattie Terrell, Carol Sue Malt, Jeanne Pentecost and Connie Cowan.

At 8:30 p.m. will be the Greek Week dance and entertainment in the Union. The dance is open to all Greeks and their dates.

Entertainment will be furnished by Maurice Williams and the Zodiacs and the Brandynwe Slings. Dress for the dance is school clothes.

Dr. James Carr Named BOC Assistant Director

Dr. James F. Carr, director of financial aid, will take office as the assistant director of the Board of Control within the next few days. Carr who came to FSU in 1946, one week before the first male student, has served as assistant dean of men, and director of housing for men. He has taught guidance and counseling in the School of Education and social studies in the Geography Dept.

"After being at a university for 19 years, one does not make a change without a great deal of consideration," said Carr.

"I am making the move for the professional opportunities it offers," he explained.

According to Carr no one has been selected to take his position as financial aid advisor, although several people are under consideration.

Bus Service Set By Dean Arnold

A new bus schedule involving two city buses was announced today by Dean Jack Arnold, associate dean of students.

The new schedule will start Monday and run for 2 weeks with another 2 week option. This allows a trial period of 4 weeks.

Both buses will leave Alumni Village at 7:25 a.m. each morning. Bus 1 will arrive at Smith Hall and travel back and forth across campus during the day following the regular bus schedule.

It will leave Westcott at 4 p.m. Smith Hall at 4:30 p.m. going to Alumni Village, on Mon., Wed., Fri. On Tues., Thurs. the schedule will follow classes leaving at the 4:35 p.m. class.

Bus 2 will arrive at Westcott at 7:40 a.m. It will follow the usual bus route leaving from Westcott at 5:05 p.m. and Smith at 5:15 p.m. going to Alumni Village. This is to allow the wives working in University offices and living in Alumni Village to ride the bus home. There will be 10 cents a ride or $1 a week. This is to allow an even breakage on the cost of the transportation.

The University is guaranteeing $4 per hour per bus to the company, said L. Lewis, campus security.

"If the fare doesn't make-up the deficit this will have to be paid by the University," he added.

"Whether or not the system is continued will depend on the results which result," he stressed.

Three Speakers Head Conference

Raymond L. Thompson, E. Frederick Halstead, William J. Burke, and Robert Stonerock will be the guest speakers at a Conference on Management Advisory Services at FSU for Certified Public Accountants this weekend.

Some 50 CPA's from all over Florida and South Georgia are expected to attend the conference, which is co-sponsored by the school of business, the Florida Institute of CPA's and the FSU business fraternity.

This is the third annual conference held at FSU to help the CPA who is considering including management advisory services to his practice. Dr. Homer Black, head of the FSU Accounting Dept., is chairman of the conference.

At the conference Raymond Thompson will speak on the topic "Planning, Control, and Administration." Thompson is manager of the Management Services Division in the Atlanta office of Ernst and Ernst. Bob Stonerock, president of the Florida Institute of CPA's will be the speaker at the conference banquet on Nov. 14.

Near Riot Mars FSU Ticket Sale

By SARA ANN SLOAT

What started out to be a very interesting ticket sale ended up as a riot early yesterday.

Judy Loucks, chairman of Women's Advisory said "when I arrived at the ticket office at 5:30 a.m. there were about 25 girls already in line; however, there was a list with 260 names on it."

Most of the girls' that were out early had special permission from their dorm mothers," she explained. She said the other girls rushed the office at 6 a.m. they just could not understand why they had to be number 260 on the list. A near riot was the result.

Miss Loucks stated, "I was disappointed because I was there Monday night, and everything went off smoothly."

"I don't understand why they started the riot yesterday afternoon. I think they should have started it at 6:30 this morning," she added. "I would have announced that they were starting a list, or should have done the way it was done, on a first-come-first-served basis," Miss Loucks continued.

The Coyle E. Moore Jr. Award for Outstanding Excellence in Teaching and the Coyle E. Moore, Jr. Memorial Fund were established in his honor.

The Crenshaw Bldg. which will serve as the games and recreational center in the Union complex, was named for another 1956 FSU graduate, Robert E. Crenshaw, who served as president of his junior and senior classes, and who was elected permanent president of the Class of '56.

Crenshaw served four years on the varsity football team, and as co-captain.

After serving in Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, the FSU Hall of Fame, Crenshaw also was placed in Who's Who.

Crenshaw was serving in the U.S. Air Force as a first lieutenant when he was killed in a plane crash in 1958. The Bob Crenshaw Memorial Fund was set up in his honor.

Job Offers Galore Available For Hotel And Restaurant Students

By BARBARA BAKER
Flambeau Feature Writer

Every graduate from the Hotel Restaurant Management Program can expect approximately 20 job offers," says Peter Dukas, director of FSU's department.

"These positions will range in starting salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year, and will be merely a stepping stone for many graduates before they move beyond the management level," Dukas added.

Bankers Award 12 Scholarships

Twelve FSU students were awarded scholarships from the Florida Bankers Educational Foundation at a luncheon in the University Union, recently.

Jeddy Smith of the Capital City Trust National Bank of Tallahassee presented the scholarships to the 12 FSU students in the school of business.

The students receiving awards were John M. Hutchinson, Thomas W. Ray, Jack C. Harmon, Marilyn W. Michaels, Jeffrey K. Barron, Charles Abrington, Eugene F. Freire, John W. Howell, Robert W. Minnick, Dr. Joanne Kozel, John F. Pollard, Thomas M. Vaughan.

The awardees were selected on the basis of scholarship, ability, aptitude, leadership, future plans and character.

Gleeson Gets Grant

Dr. Thomas A. Gleeson, professor of meteorology, has received a grant of $31,500 from the National Science Foundation for support of his research in the field of predictability.

Established in 1947, FSU's program in Hotel and Restaurant Management ranks with Cornell's and Michigan State's programs as one of the top three in the nation. It is the only such program offered in a southern university.

At this time there are 230 majors enrolled in the program from a variety of states. In the past, students have come from as many as 39 different states and 17 foreign countries.

The formal course of study is divided into three areas of achievement: general education, business administration, and hotel and restaurant management.

"The hospitality field is a growing one," adds Dukas. "Monetary considerations should not be the only factor in selecting this line of work. It is one of the few remaining fields in which an individual may own and operate his own business."

Dukas, a graduate of the University of Chicago, has found that combining administrative and teaching duties has enabled him to take a personal interest in each of the students. According to Dukas, the curriculum is purposely designed so that students acquire not only the specialized knowledge needed for their hospitality industry careers, but understanding of the basic functions, objectives, and tools of management which are common to all types of management positions in any industry.

Opportunities are frequent for women in this field, although at the present time only nine coeds are enrolled in FSU's program. Dukas attributes this small number to the fact that people do not realize the potentials in this field.

Conference Here This Weekend

"New Challenges to the Educated Woman" will be the topic of Dr. Mary Keyserling, director of the women's bureau of the U.S. labor dept., when she speaks at the Conference on the Continuing Education of Women at FSU this weekend.

Another guest speaker, Dr. Esther Rausenbush, director of the continuing education program at Sarah Lawrence college, will speak on "Present Needs and Future Possibilities: A Progress Report on the Unfinished Business of Women's Education."

Four topics are planned for general discussion by the women attending the conference: "Political and Public Service," "The Education of Women Students," Counseling: What Is Needed and How Can It Be Provided," and "The Necessary Adaptation of Training for Professional Women."

College Student Forgotten Man According To Education Expert

(CPA) Logan Wilson, president of the American Council on Education has warned that today's college student is in danger of becoming "the forgotten man" of higher education as the nation's colleges and universities transform themselves into the "knowledge industry."

Wilson said that amid the demands made upon colleges by communities, industries, and government agencies, "there is a recurrent need to recall that colleges were created primarily for students."

He attributes this lack of student consideration to the "sellers market" in higher education which has young people clamoring for admission to colleges, making it all too easy for teachers and administrators to avoid confronting issues involving students.

"Because others are standing in line to take the places of the dropouts, there is a danger of our becoming indifferent, if not callous, to the sources of discontent and the causes of failure," Wilson added. He stated that rate of expansion of college enrollment may leave the student with less personal contact with the faculty and college staff members. Citing the "faceless anonymity" that programmed instruction, IBM cards, and identification numbers represent, he said that "the depersonalization of the student, if allowed to go unchecked or unchanged, represents a grave threat to the very purposes of higher education."

Among the issues deserving attention, Wilson said, are the intellectual climate of the campus, including the student body's view of extra-curricular life and the faculty's attitude toward teaching, the personal conduct and behavior of students, and the high rate of college "drop-outs." He called for a re-examination of the extra-curricular life of our colleges adding, "It may well be that certain of the adolescent preoccupations of nineteenth century life are no longer fitting."

Wilson also declared "the low value attributed by faculty and administration to the effective and committed teaching of students" with the resulting inference by the student body "that such activity is not considered terribly important."

To questions of student honesty, integrity, and morality, "colleges and universities cannot be indifferent," he said. However, he pointed out that the institutions sometimes caught themselves between parents who "do not support the restrictions which colleges have traditionally placed on their freshmen" and other parents who "expect colleges to police their sons and daughters in ways which they themselves did not, or could not."

Wilson said the continuing rate of student attrition in higher education, which find only four out of ten entering freshmen graduating from college four years later, presents a picture of "waste, inefficiency and probably considerable personal unhappiness."

Some of the students, he conceded, are outright academic failures, but others find "that they do not fit a preconceived mold or are repelled by the pressures and irrelevances upon them." He added that in the collegiate "race for excellence," too many students who would have been successes a decade ago are found in the tally of casualties.

Mrs. Deshaies Talks To SATA

The Student Art Teachers Association and its regular bi-weekly meeting Wednesday afternoon in the Education Bldg.

Guest speaker was Mrs. Arthur Deshaies, Art Supervisor of Leon County. She gave a review of her work since coming to the County Office and a brief history of her previous teaching experience.

In the 1963-64 school term Mrs. Deshaies visited the county elementary schools for art instruction on a scheduled basis but this year is approaching the instruction on an appointment basis.

County elementary teachers desiring instruction by Mrs. Deshaies plan with her in advance for the appointed lesson, or lessons, and she finds this work a more desirable learning situation.

Mrs. Deshaies explained her newly established program of monthly workshops for elementary teachers. Each school sends two teachers per month for this instruction, but the program is becoming so popular that sometimes as many as four from each school attend.

The booklets she prepares for each month's workshop promise to be a valuable aid.

An informal question and answer session followed the meeting.

APO Pledge Class Starts Drive

The Iota Rho chapter pledge class of Alpha Phi Omega has begun a drive to help the Leon County Juvenile Detention Home.

In a report given at the pledge class meeting Wednesday night, Simon Melensky stated that he had talked with Mr. Crooks, who is the sole counselor at the home.

Crooks stated that the home not only received insufficient funds, but is understaffed also.

Staff Meeting Set

There will be a meeting of all line editors and "Flambeau" reporters at 4 p.m. Sunday in room 326, University Union.

He pointed out that several church and civic groups have undertaken to help the home, but little progress has been made.

He further stated that boys and girls will use continually the same apparel which they wear upon entrance. Sometimes they are detained at the home as much as 30 days.

Since the home does not have sufficient funds to buy clothes for the children, APO has elected to launch a drive to obtain them.

Anyone have clothes to donate to the children ages 9 through 16 years, may bring them to the front of the University Bookstore at noon, Nov. 14, as all proceeds will be collected on that day.

FSU Undergraduates Helped By Big Nuclear Research Program

A by-product of FSU's big nuclear research program is the technical skill developed by undergraduates while earning their way through college as student assistants.

Principal users of the millions of dollars worth of equipment in the nuclear program are graduate students who are adding to scientific knowledge in the research programs they conduct while working toward a Ph. D. degree, usually in physics or chemistry.

To staff the Nuclear Research Bldg., and help operate a big tandem van de Graff accelerator and related equipment, however, the university employs not only skilled technicians but several undergraduates with skills in the field.

There are about a dozen such in the Nuclear Research Bldg.

Working as such an assistant frequently is not only profitable to the student involved but the student saves money for the university. An example is Charles Schmidt, who began work in FSU's nuclear laboratory in Jan., 1964, received a bachelor's degree in physics in April, continued his work as technician in the laboratory and now has a job at the Argonne Laboratory in Chicago which pays him about as much as an assistant professor makes.

FSU profited from Schmidt's service, since while working as a student assistant he designed and built a vacuum evaporator used in determining the microscopically thin layers placed at the business end of the tandem accelerator.

East-West Educational Center Now Giving New Scholarships

The East-West Center, a Congressional created educational institution in Hawaii, is sponsoring 71 American graduate students in a scholarship program that offers a year field study in Asia or the Pacific Islands.

The Center's primary goal is to promote mutual understanding among the peoples of Asia, the Pacific Basin, and the United States, by welcoming the students to Hawaii. Dr. T. H. Hamilton, Center acting chancellor, stated that the hope of the Center is that "there could emerge here not a compromise between, nor an eclecticism choice based upon, but a true synthesis of, the intellectual and cultural traditions of the East and the West."

Center scholarship studies are principally at the University of Hawaii and for a briefer period at a university or research institution in Asia or the Pacific area. Typically, the American student is a master's degree candidate in a field related to Asia and the Pacific, such as training for government service, teaching, or other posts in that region. He also studies one of the nine Asian languages offered by the University of Hawaii.

Presenting America's slowest fastback.

There are some new cars around with very streamlined roofs.

But they are not Volkswagens. They are called fastbacks, and some of them are named after fish.

You can tell them from Volkswagens because a VW won't go over 72 mph. Even though the speedometer shows a wildly optimistic top speed of 90!

So you can easily break almost any speed law in a VW.

And you can cruise right past gas stations, repair shops and tire stores.

The VW engine may not be the fastest, but it's among the most advanced. It's made of magnesium alloy (one step better than aluminum). And it's so well machined you may never add oil between changes.

The VW engine is cooled by air, so it can never freeze up or boil over.

It won't have anything to do with water.

So we saw no reason to name it after a fish.

Team Wins First

Florida State's Debate Team took first place over 38 colleges and universities at the Peachtree International Debate Tournament in Atlanta Nov. 6-7.

Colleges and universities from 12 states competed. The FSU affirmative team won first place in its division, while FSU's negative team, composed of freshman, took third place in its division.

Bill Leap and Mike Rippingill, FSU freshmen, opened their college debate careers with a third place victory in the negative division.

Florida State debaters who took first place for arguing the affirmative side were Preston McGee and Miss Elaine Napier. McGee and Miss Napier also won individual awards for superior speaking.

Haqq To Lecture Today On Faith

Dr. Akbar Abdul Haqq will speak on "God Speaks to Man" in the football training room of the Seminole Dining Hall at noon today.

Dr. Haqq earned his B.A. and M.A. degrees in philosophy and oriental languages at Punjab University in Chandigarh, India. He received his Ph.D. from Northwestern University in Systematic theology and history of religion.

Reservation for the luncheon, which is sponsored by Faculty Christian Fellowship, are $1.25 per plate. Reservations may be made with the University chaplain.

No Likelihood Of Improvement For China-America Relations: Ch'en

Although he sees no likelihood of improvement of China-American relations "in the foreseeable future," Dr. Peter Ch'en, assistant professor of government, said a continuing and deepening antagonism will be "disastrous."

In a lecture under auspices of the Forum Committee of the University Union, the Formosa-born specialist on China and Japan told his audiences in Moore Auditorium:

"The resurgence of China today constitutes one of the most unexpected and significant developments in the human affairs of the past hundred years."

"For good or evil, the century during which the Chinese had to learn to live in the Western world is past," and "now the Westerners and Chinese both have to learn to live on the same planet," he added.

Dr. Ch'en specified three long-range goals of the present Chinese regime:

- (1) China aims to recover all territories which they regard as having constituted, at some point in history, parts of the Chinese Empire;
- (2) China plans to transform itself into the most advanced nation from the standpoint of industry, technology, science, and military might;
- (3) China desires to regain what she considers to be her rightful position among nations.

To the Chinese, Ch'en said, this position means dominance "in Asia, if not in the world."

It means that the U.S. would be "driven out of Asia and would no longer be able to exert any substantial influence upon Asian nations."

This means also, he said, "China would be held in respect by the rest of the world" as the world's most powerful nation, as "the leading force of human history," and "for her cultural excellence."

As China imagines its rightful place Ch'en said, "China would be consulted on every major issue of the world" and "decisions would be the desired effects only if China consented to it."

Similarly, he continued, as China sees it, "Peking would be the center of the world to which all Communist parties would send their representatives to receive guidance" and "to which all nations would send their envoys conveying amity and respect."

The U.S. can not normalize relations with China, Ch'en stated, "as long as the problem of the future status of Formosa and the Pescadores remains unsolved."

AF Announces New Additions

Completion of four years of duty with the Air Force ROTC at FSU brought the departure of Majors Herman O. Thompson and William Owings.

Thompson has taken up new duties at Homestead Air Force Base while Owings is now retired from the Air Force and completing doctoral studies at FSU.

Three new officers have recently arrived and entered upon their new duties as Assistant Professors of Air Science.

Major Richard L. Coleman comes to FSU from recent assignment in France. Coleman is a graduate of Chattanooga University with a B.S. in Physical education.

Another recent arrival is Major Robert L. Chason who comes to FSU from assignment at Headquarters, US Air Force in Washington, D.C. He holds a Master's degree in business administration from Harvard University.

ROBERT CHASON

The newest addition to the detachment is Captain William Taliaferro who came here from Turner Air Force Base, Georgia. A product of the Air Force ROTC program at the University of Florida, Captain Taliaferro received his B.A. degree in education there.

The newly assigned officers all expressed pleasure in being selected for duty at FSU and enthusiasm for Tallahassee as a new home.

Leisure Times Give More Work

Increasing leisure time in America means increasing work opportunities for 60 FSU students majoring in recreation.

"There will be 10 jobs as director of a service club, director of a community center, church recreation director, industrial recreation director and jobs with agencies like the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts and UMCA, waiting for each recreation major—at the time he gets a bachelor's degree," says Dr. William Tait, director of the program.

Tait said that graduates are going into jobs where their skills in directing playtime activities can be used therapeutically. Several have gone into hospitals and others are recreation specialists in prison and detention homes.

"Our grandparents, and perhaps our parents, didn't have the problem of leisure time," Tait said.

"They not only didn't have a lot of time for recreation but they were educated to expect and value hard work and a lifetime of it and to look down on leisure," he explained.

"When they did let go, at a tussling bee or a quilting, however, they found more opportunity for recreation in the rural society in which they lived than we find today in an urban society," he added.

"It was in the big cities during the last part of the 19th century that the need became quite apparent for organized recreational activities, such as on city playgrounds," Tait said.

"In the past, recreation has been concerned with large scale organization but it has come to the stage now when I think we are able to seek out and involve individuals in the community who need these programs—to get to social misfits with a preventive before worse things befall them and the community," he stated.

"I think also that recreators can serve as a tool in reversing the trend toward isolation which has marked the progress toward a thoroughly urban society," Tait emphasized.

"One of the areas of growing opportunity for recreation graduates is retirement villages, particularly in Florida," Tait said. "People are living longer, are retiring earlier, and have more free time, and many of the retirees are coming to Florida to live."

The student in recreation takes certain basic course work in the behavioral sciences to learn how to handle groups and motivate people of all ages. He also studies recreational planning and administration.

Recreation majors in addition to their regular course work are required to spend four trimesters of field work in varied situations as W. T. Edwards Tuberculosis Hospital, a municipal playground, a private agency such as the YMCA, or at the University School.

Some elementary education and social welfare majors enroll, along with recreation majors, in a class in social recreation.

Bounce Back Teams Face Off Tomorrow

By BOB CORNET

When N.C. State and FSU meet tomorrow night in Campbell Stadium they will be in the position of two men, one a 6-1 giant and the other a 5-3 midget, each trying to bounce higher than the other.

Both teams are seeking to rebound after disappointing games last week. FSU dropped a 13-13 tie to the University of Houston and North Carolina State was slashed by the VPI Gobblers 28-19. (That's one thing the two teams have in common).

Both teams have incentive and desire to win this game. If the Wolfpack wins they will wrap up another Atlantic Coast Conference title. If FSU wins they will keep their hopes alive for a bowl bid.

The Carolinians would also like to even the series up a little. They have lost three of the four meetings, all by shutouts. The one game they did win was curiously enough, a shut out.

In personnel the Seminoles hold more than just a slight edge. Two Tribesmen, Fred Biletnikoff and Steve Tensi, have more offensive yardage than the entire North Carolina State team. Biletnikoff has caught 300 more yards than the N.C. State squad. Tensi has completed more passes than the Wolfpack has thrown.

Defensively, the Wolfpack has been on the downslide since their first few games. "We haven't been able to stop anybody lately," said Coach Earle Edwards. The Seminole defense is ranked in the top ten.

A happier thought for Edwards, though is his quarterback Ron Skosnik has added a passing arm to his talents as one of those running quarterbacks. In the losing effort to VPI he tossed a record three TD passes. Skosnik is second in team rushing behind halfback Shelby Mansfield. Mansfield has 312 yards and Skosnik has 272. This kind of combination has been a real problem for the Tribe all year.

Despite all this, the key to the game will be Biletnikoff. He is THE outstanding player for the Garnet and Gold. He is also its heart.

GUESS WHO'S BACK!

... says smiling Steve Tensi. Fred Biletnikoff will play, after a week's benching for a leg injury, against the Wolfpack of North Carolina State, tomorrow in Campbell Stadium.

In spite of the week out, Biletnikoff is still the third leading pass receiver in yardage (809) in the nation. He is also fourth in scoring with 50 points on eight touchdowns and one two-point conversion.

To FSU this means that Fleet Fred is worth a little better than a touch down a game. That was the margin that the Seminoles needed for victory last week against Houston. Biletnikoff also is worth two men of the field as he is usually double and sometimes triple teamed by enemy defenders.

Liberty, Learning Lost To Politics' Says J. Collins

By CATHY KAUTS...

"No university can be a place of light, liberty, or learning if politicians lean over the shoulders of its instructors or nudge the pencils of its students," J. said former governor J. B. Collins in his University open dedication speech Saturday at 7 p.m.

"Our country will experience its greatest danger of extinction on the day when that light is left to flicker unprotected in the howl winds which blow will come blowing in off the stagnant swamps of freepressibility," continued Collins.

"There can be no place in the laboratory for the rigged experiment; no place in the classroom for the closed mind; no place in the library for the censor's scissors, nor if the University is to be a true crucible of conflicting thought."

"The university is not free unless its faculty and students are free to examine thoroughly and come to grips with the important needs and issues of its times."

"The ability and courage to do this is the essence of the university's very nature," J. said. "As a member, no governor should tamper with it, no matter how right he thinks he is or how well off he thinks the state is."

Collins was the key speaker of the program which was held in the Moore Auditorium of the Union Complex, presided over by President Gordon Blackwell.

Governor Farris Bryant made the presentation of the University Union, was accepted by Wayne C. McCall, Jr., of the Board of Control, President Blackwell for FSU, and Patsy Burnham, Union Board chairman, accepted for the student body.

The three halves of the complex are named for former students, Helen Davis, Robert Crenshaw, and Kyle E. Moore, Jr.

Thanksgiving is the theme for The Choral Union, FSU's oldest and largest mixed chorus, concert tomorrow evening at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Directed by Herman Guter Jr., will be the 402 member choral group. They will perform three works by contemporary composers—Vaughan Williams, Randall Thompson and Miklos

Using the program will be "conducive" by Williams with Jerry Schreckengost as soloist and the Choral Union as choist.

The first half of the program will be the "Carmen of Fraute" by Vaughan Williams and the final number will be "To Everything There is a Season."

'Salzburg Castle' Comes Alive For University Women's Club

"A Castle in Salzburg" will come to life for members of the University Women's Club when Mrs. Harry Day will describe her 2 1/2 year stay in the Austrian city. The lecture meeting will be in room 215, Davis Bldg., and will begin at 3:30 p.m. tomorrow.

In June Dean and Mrs. Day returned to Tallahassee with their two children, Steve and Sydney, following a stay of two and half years in Salzburg, Austria, where Day served as director of the Salzburg Seminar in American Studies.

They made their home in a castle on the outskirts of Salzburg to which the European participants in the seminars were invited to speak on various facets of American life. Six times each year the castle, "Schloss Leopoldsdorfer," would have as many as 60 Europeans from 15 countries, working with four or five American lecturers representing such diverse fields as law, politics, the arts, economics and higher education.

When seminars were in session, Day was responsible for making all the administrative arrangements, while Mrs. Day served as hostess and gave special attention to the Library of some 12,000 volumes, representing the latest materials which could be obtained on the topics to be studied.

When seminars were not taking place at the castle, Day traveled throughout Europe to interview prospective candidates for future sessions. On several occasions Mrs. Day and the children were able to go with him to visit London, Rome, Paris and Belgrade.

Each visit would be highlighted by reunions with former participants of the seminars who were to be found in all parts of Europe working in business, governmental agencies or teaching at university centers.

Ballots Accepted

Nominations for the Alpha Kappa Psi Instructor Efficiency Award will be received in the main lobby of the Union Complex from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. today.

Controversy Coming In Henderson Speech

"I may say some sharp things about education, and government, I say what I think about things, I always have, and I think it's a little late to change now," remarked Dr. Edgar

H. Henderson concerning his forthcoming Mortar Board Last Lecture Series.

Henderson, professor of philosophy, will speak Wednesday night at 7:30 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall for the Torchbearer chapter of the Mortar Board's Last Lecture Series. The professor of philosophy refused to title his subject.

"I am going to say what any teacher would say at this time about culture, government, education, politics, religion, science and social order, and how my philosophy would be applied to these subjects," stated Henderson.

A graduate of Furman, where he received his BA and MS degree, Henderson earned his Ph.D. at Harvard. He is affiliated with over 15 professional organizations.

Dean Harry Day Speaks To ACU

Dean of Students Harry Day challenged delegates to the Association of College Unions Conference Friday night to offer at their student unions a variety of opinion on current important issues.

Or, he said, they could allow their unions to become "congenial music men to blot out intellectual discontent."

"The commonly accepted role of the union is that it provides a living room for the campus," he said.

"The visitor," he explained, "can determine from the union, especially from its schedule of speakers, whether the campus seeks escapism or is concerned with real issues."

He said that a university should have a public forum policy which supports controversial speakers, "and the impetus for this 'healthy give and take' should come from the union."

"We have heard about the non-involvement man," he continued. "This is not the attitude needed and wanted by colleges today. What is needed and wanted," he said, "is the person who will face the controversial issues rather than dodging them to seek popularity."

FSU Sends Six To Study Abroad

A group of six FSU students is currently taking advantage of their junior year abroad at the University of Freiburg, Germany, sponsored by FSU's Modern Language Dept. According to Professor Victor R.B. Deichslager, the head of the Modern Language Dept., the program is designed to immerse FSU students in firsthand contacts with the German language, literature and culture, as well as the German people, their customs and institutions.

Students participating in the 1964-65 program departed August 17th for Germany and have concluded a series of six-week courses in German language and culture specially designed for foreigners. They are now eligible to enroll at the University as regular students.

While they will receive no credit for these introductory courses at Freiburg, they will receive regular FSU credit toward graduation requirements on the basis of a comparison with similar courses offered at FSU.

Although at present most of the students are majoring in modern languages, Deichslager stressed that the program is open to interested students in all fields, provided they meet the basic requirement of a solid preparation through two years of college language instruction. Students interested in participating in the program may contact Dr. Edelgard Weber of the Modern Language Dept. in 303 Classroom Bldg. A.

Florida Weekend Plan Released

The campus will be the site of numerous activities during the weekend of the FSU-UF game in Campbell Stadium.

Thursday, Nov. 19 at 7:30 p.m. the Gator Gie pep rally will start the big weekend. The site will be announced later.

At 10 p.m., all freshman women residence halls have house meetings.

Friday, Nov. 20 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. is Public Relations Day sponsored by the school of business and the Hush Puppy Chapter of the Florida Public Relations Assoc. in Moore Auditorium.

The Public Relations Day Luncheon is from 12 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the University Room.

Tentative time of 1-2 p.m. has been set for the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation Annual Membership Luncheon, State Room, Union.

FSU-UF Student Government Banquet is scheduled for 5:45 p.m.-7:45 p.m. in the University Room. The Men's Glee Clubs will present the Third Annual FSU-UF Football Concert in Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m.

FSU Center will have a dance and concert. The concert will be at 9:30 p.m. and the dance at 11 p.m. Saturday Nov. 21, begins at 8 a.m. with a meeting on the FSU Alumni Board of Directors meeting in Tully Gym.

Concert Planned By Choral Union

Mourns Editor

Today the "Flambeau" mourns the passing of its associate editor Dick Smith. Dick didn't die exactly—he just passed on into the bosom of that great body of students who have to devote themselves entirely to academic pursuits. Like most other students who fall into that category, Dick didn't want to go—he had to. This cult of the pure student is something relatively new at FSU. It came with the trimester.

Many of the students who are members of the cult are the same students who in high school held positions with student government, service clubs, musical organizations and other extra-curricular activities. Most join because of instinct—the survival instinct.

Dick served for a full year as associate editor before the trimester squeeze finally got him. He fared well by comparison with some of the "Flambeau's" line editors of the past.

It seems the only kind of student who stays with the "Flambeau" or any other time consuming activity for long is the tenacious sort who manages to hold onto his 2,00001, even if he has only five minutes to study. Probably all the blame doesn't belong in the hot little lap of the trimester—at least some should go to those faculty members who haven't yet taken into account the fact that the trimester and the semester are not the same thing and that you cannot teach the same things in the same way under both systems.

There really isn't much students can do about it all though, it's one of those things you just have to get used to and complain about—like death.

Favorite Poems Read By Rogers

By ISABELLE COUTANT

Dr. William H. Rogers, retired FSU professor, read and discussed some of his favorite poems Friday afternoon at the English Coffee Hour. "Great poetry gives us something to think about. It makes us a better person and helps us understand life better. It says something true and makes us say 'why didn't I think of that?'"

Rogers read "Honeydew" by Rossetti and several poems by Ernest Dowson including "Synara." As he read "Porphyria's Lover" by Browning, Rogers noted that Browning wrote of "people's mountain top experiences, their pinnacle moments." Also, that in four or five words Browning could express the whole of a life time.

Next, Rogers read a passage from "Troilus and Cressida" by William Shakespeare, which he considers to be a peace document.

The quote, "perseverance, dearmy lord, keeps honor bright," is one of the finest in all Shakespeare according to Rogers because it "is true."

Rogers finished the hour with few poems by George Meredith.

They are Norm Lewis, Elbert Lambert, and Janie McMullon. The cheerleaders would also like to announce that the old cheer of "Two Bits" has been replaced

"MARCH FOR MUSCULAR DYSTROPHY"

...began this Saturday, as the Tau Epsilon Phi fraternity staged a parade block in order to collect money for Dystrophy funds. With the aid of Ben Netzer, chairman of the Muscular Dystrophy chapter of Leon Fanny, and the Tallahassee police department, the TEP's manned the corners of Monroe and Tennessee Streets, as well as the corner of Monroe and College, soliciting contributions from the people of Tallahassee. The flag that the TEP's collected during their six hour vigil will be used in the fight against a disease that kills thousands of people every year, Sandy Shulman, Chancellor of the fraternity, said that he was "happy that his chapter was able to participate in this worthwhile endeavor."

Freddy Ready, Tribe Trips NCS Wolfpack

By MELODIE BETTS
Flambeau Sports Writer

Fleet Fred was ready and FSU rolled to a 28-6 victory over North Carolina State in a ballgame of errors, Saturday night in Campbell Stadium.

Frank Pennie, FSU's ace in the hole, recovered three Wolfpack fumbles. Backed by Wayne Giardino's able running and Fred Biletnikoff's nimble fingers, FSU capitalized on the errors and scored.

Two gun Steve Tensi was slow finding range on his receivers, passing long and wide of his targets. Late in the first quarter he began hitting Don Floyd and bulleyeing in on Biletnikoff for a 38 yard bomb and FSU's third TD.

Tensi directed a ground attack behind Giardino and Phil Spooner who burrowed through North Carolina's line like moles in a garden.

DON FLOYD

The Magnificent Seven contained the Wolfpack until early in the fourth quarter. FSU's Bill Campbell dropped Ron Skosnik's punt and Jenkins recovered for NC State. On the first play Skosnik fired a pass to receiver Wendell Coleman alone in the flat. He scooped down field across the chalk line for the score.

Thirteen seconds had ticked off the scoreboard clock when FSU got the first break of the game. Pennie recovered Faltaro's fumble on the Wolfpack 25. Tensi stayed on the ground with Spooner and Giardino picking up yardage. Giardino scored from the one yard line and Les Murdock split the uprights. The Seminoles jumped out in front 7-0.

The rest of the quarter was a defensive battle. The Magnificent Seven held the Wolfpack whose deepest penetration was but to their own 44 yard line.

Murdock attempted a 26 yard field goal as the second quarter began but the attempt was wide. The Wolfpack was unable to move the ball and Skosnik punted to Winfred Bailey. Bailey took the pigskin with nine NC State men behind him and ran 35 yards before being pulled down at the Wolfpack 30 yard line.

With the exception of one completed pass to Floyd, Tensi moved the Seminoles on the ground with Giardino. Giardino went over from the two to boost FSU's score. The kick was good and the Seminoles led 14-0.

The Tribe got their second break of the game when Noggle fumbled Murdock's kick. Pennie made his second recovery on the Wolfpack 38. Tensi then unleashed the bomb to Biletnikoff for the third TD, bringing the 24,000 fans to their feet. Murdock's foot proved true as the Seminoles now boasted a 21-0 lead.

The remainder of the half saw the Magnificent Seven hold the Wolfpack to minimum yardage. Tensi ran hot and cold, hitting Biletnikoff and overhauling him. During the first half, Floyd tied the old school record for pass receptions in one season catching his 31st pass. Biletnikoff holds the record with 55 receptions for 906 yards and 62 points.

The halftime show performed by the Marching Chiefs depicted the Seminole rally as the Chiefs formed a steam locomotive on the field. FSU continued to chug along to victory the second half.

Pennie came up with his third recovery for the evening early in the second half, giving FSU possession on the Wolfpack 17 yard line. Giardino moved the ball to the 12. Tensi then backpedaled and lobbed a pass to Fleet Fred who swiped the ball from his defender's hands and fell back across the chalk line. Murdock's toe added the extra point and FSU led 28-0.

The rest of the third quarter saw the second string contain NC State and Ed Pritchett held the offense on a 93 yard drive only to be hurt by penalties and finally bog down at the 34 of NC State. Murdock began the fourth quarter with a field goal attempt that fell way short of the goal.

Skosnik was unable to move his club and punted to Bill Campbell. The Wolfpack got their first break of the game as Campbell bobbled the ball and Jenkins recovered on FSU's 45. Skosnik hit Coleman for the touchdown and, on two attempts, failed to score the extra two points. The scoreboard read 28-6 with 10:52 left in the game.

The remainder of the game was a see-saw battle with neither team moving the ball. The game ended as Winfred Bailey intercepted a Noggle pass. The final score was 28-6. The score showed a decisive victory for the Seminoles but the overall game was not up to par for the Tribe. If the Seminoles expect to win their final game with arch rival University of Florida, they will have to improve on Saturday night's game.

SenateBucks Block Seats

A petition to abolish block seating for the FSU-Florida game will be presented to the Student Senate tomorrow.

"A resolution was previously introduced and defeated, but it was felt that the students should have a means of questioning the decisions of the Senate," said Senator Carl Domino today.

At present the petition is being circulated through the dorms and a table has been set up near the Post Office. Some one will be there to answer questions and take signatures.

It was felt that if some people had to stand in line for hours for a ticket then it was not fair for others to have reserved seating.

If block seating were abolished, the seats would be on a first-come, first-served basis.

FSU Senators Seek Solution For Transportation Tangle

Mike Thackston, senior senator and chairman of the men's senate transportation committee, has been working with Senator Steve Wynn to find solutions for the current campus bus problem.

"Student Government has been generally interested in the students' requests for a better bus transportation system and in answer to this present problem has presented the facts to the school administration with hopes of an immediate remedy by the school and city transit officials," said Thackston.

Several solutions are presently being considered. Thackston and Wynn have met with Asst. Dean of Students Jack Arnold and also with the maintenance department.

They tried to secure additional buses for the campus route but this plan would have proved to be too expensive.

Dean Arnold doesn't feel that there is enough time left in the trimester to work out a feasible solution, according to Thackston. The Senate and Administration will continue to work on this until the problem can be solved.

... Meisel

rida's educational system lies outside of the realm of the educators. The men that decide the fate of our university, as well as the other universities within the state, are politicians, all of whom are interested in votes and various economic factors, not education. Thus the constituency, pressure groups, such as townspeople, church groups and businessmen and money determine, for the most part, the future of our educational system.

Politicians are not educators. As a matter of fact, there are some politicians whose job it is to judge our professors, even though they have never gone to college. And, for that fact, there is a great possibility that our next governor won't be able to spend very much time assessing our educational system, because he will be too busy looking for communists in every dark corner and under every chair.

Pritchett Out: Trouble In

Saturday night the Seminoles played just well enough, showed just enough to win. They didn't dazzle or confuse NCS, they just out-manuevered the Wolfpack. If Florida Coach Ray Graves hoped to learn anything new by watching that game he was sadly disappointed.

Coach Bill Peterson was obviously holding back. He used his second and third teams almost exclusively in the second half. When the varsity was in they used only the most basic plays.

Pete will want the big surprises to come Saturday against the Gators. But will they?

Throughout the current season when Peterson has tried to out-finesse the opposition he has used his second string quarterback Ed Pritchett as a halfback. Against Southern Mississippi he took a pitch out from Steve Tensi and passed 35 yards to Fred Bilenkoff.

In Houston two weeks ago he again took the pitch from Tensi and threw a pass, not to Fleet Fred, but to Tensi. The play was broken up but could work against Florida.

All this is so much speculation now as Pritchett will be out of action the rest of the year with his leg in a cast. He was injured in the third quarter Saturday night.

Not only does this cut down on the variety of the regular Seminole attack, it also eases the job of the Gator defenders. With Pritchett out they no longer have to worry about the threat of a roll out quarterback. Peterson can no longer depend on subterfuge on the single big play to put the Gators in a hole and then pray that the defense can hold them.

With Pritchett out Pete will have to go with the usual Tribe game plan. This can be successful against the Reptiles; but only with perfect execution, especially from the offensive line.

VAUGHN MANCHA

Final preparations are being made for an overflow crowd of some 42,500 fans assured for Saturday's FSU-UF showdown at FSU, which in four home football games has already surpassed its best season at the gate.

It will be by far the largest turnout ever in Campbell Stadium, expanded this year from 24,000 seats to a "normal" capacity of 40,500. Because of the great demand for tickets—they have long since been gone—additional bleachers and temporary seats were added to accommodate an additional 2,000. Those seats are sold out, too.

The Seminoles, 7-1-1 and a definite bowl prospect, have drawn 109,982 fans in home games against New Mexico State, Kentucky, Southern Mississippi, and North Carolina State. The best previous home attendance over a season was 98,728 for six games in 1957.

"We are far short of satisfying the demands of students, faculty, alumni, boosters, and the general public for this one," says Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha.

"One of the pleasing rewards of an exciting, winning football team is the large crowds it draws. It creates problems, but many major universities in the nation would welcome such problems," Mancha said.

"We do regret that we cannot accommodate all of the Florida State and Florida students and supporters who wish to see Saturday's game."

Tickets for this seventh football meeting—the first in Tallahassee—between the Seminoles and Gators have been sold out since Oct. 13. A new home-and-home contract between the state rivals this year calls for the visiting team to receive an allocation of 9,150 seats, plus seating space for their band, with a minimum of 4,650 of these tickets to be on the sideline. University of Florida has sole discretion over the allocation of its tickets.

"Tickets allocated to the University of Florida," said Mancha, "begin in the south end zone and spread through a southeast corner bleacher to about the 35 yardline in the east stand (FSU student side) at Campbell Stadium."

For a number of reasons, it is recommended seating policy for visitors to be in adjoining stadium sections rather than in scattered places throughout the stadium," said Mancha.

Mancha said a temporary rail divider has been placed in the east stand to separate the reserved-seat tickets which went to the University of Florida from the unserved seats in the adjoining FSU student section.

"This divider is designed solely to help stadium ushers guide ticket holders to the proper seats in the quickest, most convenient way," Mancha says.

FSU students claim seats on a first-come, first-served basis, with no seats reserved except for certain block seating allocations.

Athletic officials said they were sympathetic with the block seating arrangement requested by students in that it provides more seats and curbs crowd confusion.

"Usually, the students are able to crawl more into a block than the actual number of seats will accommodate," said Mancha. "This means more students will be able to get into the stands. Also, block seating means that a certain number of students know exactly where they are going when they enter the stadium, helping to minimize the seating problems."

Mancha said FSU students were allocated 11,000 tickets, just about matching the University's 11,119 students who pay the activity fee. In addition, 1,000 student date tickets were made available as well as 250 tickets for married students. University of Florida students who were able to obtain tickets, paid the full $5 ticket price, as will FSU students for tickets to next year's game in Gainesville.

Cuban Guitarist Juan Mercadal Presents Programs Tonight

Juan Mercadal, Cuban concert guitarist, will present two programs of classical guitar music in the University Auditorium tonight at 8 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

Mercadal, a Cuban exile, performs frequently with the Brazil Symphony Orchestra and has performed extensively throughout Latin America.

The young Cuban began his study of the guitar at the age of five. Later he studied under the guidance of the Cuban guitarist, Severino Lopez. Mercadal came to the U.S. from Cuba in 1961.

"I am a Democrat by heart and by birth," he says.

"I couldn't stand it in Cuba. One day one of my children started to yell 'Viva Fidel.' I knew then that I had come to the United States," he explained.

'Gator Gig' Tops Weekend Events

A "Gator Gig" at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow will start off a weekend of activities in connection with the FSU-Fla. game.

The pep meeting will honor cheer leaders, Marching Chiefs, and the football team. A huge paper gator is being made by the Rally Bureau, according to Norbert Martin, secretary of internal affairs. The gator's "for a burning" if student plans for a bonfire held up, Martin said.

A meeting and banquet of student government leaders from FSU and UF is planned for Friday at 5:45 p.m. Some 80 students from both schools are expected at the banquet in University Room (Room C) of the Union. The St. Petersburg Exchange Club football trophy will be presented.

Highlight of the evenings' activities will be the third annual football concert by the FSU Collegians and the UF Singing Gators. It will be at 8 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

A dance band concert by the St. Zenner Band is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. in the main ballroom of the Union. Tickets are $1 for students and $1.25 for the public.

From 11 p.m. to 1 a.m. there will be dancing to the 16 piece St. Zenner band. Price is $1.25 for students and $1.50 for the public. The trombonist's band was recent winner of "Cash Box" and "Billboard" disc jockey polls.

Saturday at 11 a.m., there will be a barbeque spread for some 300 attending the annual FSU-UF Alumni Barbeque in Tully Gym.

Two dances will wind up the weekend activities. Rick Powell's Band will play for a dance in the main ballroom of the Union from 8 p.m. to midnight. Price is 50 cents per person.

The Colours, rock and roll band from Macon, Ga., will play for a dance in Tully Gym. The New Journeymen, folk singing trio, will be featured. Price is $1 per couple.

Block Drawing Set

Drawing for block seating for the Florida game this weekend will take place in the Senate Room, Room 346 University Union, at 4 p.m. Only those organizations which have had blocks previously will be eligible to draw.

YA'LL COME THURSDAY!!!

Union Schedules Open House

The open house tonight at the new University Union will be from 7 to 9:30 p.m. The main attraction will be the Cuban guitarist, Juan Mercadal.

Last Lecture Today

Dr. Oscar Henderson will speak on new controversial issues today at 3:30 p.m. in Open House Music Hall of the Mortar Board Last Lecture Series.

Henderson will say some "rather deep things" concerning different aspects of speech. He has released no title for his Last Lecture.

Juan Mercadal, at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. The open house will also feature a faculty art exhibit, Hi-Fi listening concerts, fencing lessons, games, and tours of the buildings comprising the new University Union, beginning at 7:30, 8:30 and 9:30 p.m.

The art exhibit includes works by faculty members in the art and construction design departments of the University. They include paintings, silver, fabric, wood, stone and ceramic items.

A baby-sitting service will be provided for the married students in rooms 246 and 252 of the Union.

Lessons Given By Fencing Ace

In fulfillment of a promise made to his college fencing professor, Dr. Alan R. Dorius will give instructions in this art today and every Wednesday from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in Ballroom C of the University Union.

A proficient fencer since college days, Dr. Dorius is being sponsored by the University Union Games Committee to instruct interested FSU students. Part of the $1.50 fee will be used to purchase fencing equipment for the Union.

Children of faculty and staff will also have an opportunity to receive instructions for only 25 cents on Saturday mornings.

Announcements will be made of fencing exhibitions to be given in an arena formed in Ballroom C this trimester.

TODAY . . . Weekend

Science Education Seminar will have as its topic "Fire-Service, In-Service, and Graduate Aspects of Elementary Science Education," in the Faculty Lounge of the Education Bldg. Speakers are Dr. Elizabeth Home, San Fernando Valley State College; Dr. Richard Schulz, Cedar Rapids, Iowa; and Dr. Robert Sund, Colorado State College.

Faculty Senate meets at 4:10 p.m. in the Library Lecture Hall.

Pi Eta Sigma will have a business meeting at 6:30 p.m. in 346 Union. Tally Ho pictures will be taken.

ceeded expectations and the circumstance of both teams enjoying outstanding seasons. University officials say they underestimated the demand for student date tickets for this game. This became clear at homecoming, said Mancha, but the game already was virtually a sell-out.

"Our primary concern," said Mancha, "always is seating for our students. But with unprecedented demands from students, faculty, alumni, and others, tickets just wouldn't stretch far enough.

"We appreciate the understanding attitude of most of our students," Mancha continued. "We shall continue our efforts to increase our student seating."

'F' Club Initiates Seven Girls

By MELODIE BETTS

WOMEN'S "F" CLUB: The Women's "F" Club initiated seven new members last weekend after the traditional walk to the reservation. Every trimester "F" Club taps girls who have received two All Star ratings in Intramural sports for women. The girls go through a period of goating similar to pledging. The goating period ends with Hell Week and is climaxed by a walk to the reservation and final initiation ceremonies.

The walk began at 1 p.m. and the chase was on till 5 p.m. when final initiation ceremonies began. The new members are Judy Bense, Gloria Forster, Gail Weston, Sue Schroeder, Kathy DeAmas, Jody Irving, and Sue Ellen Sharpe.

"F" Club stands for courage, perseverance, self-control, health sports ability, and emphasizes cooperation and teamwork not only in sports but in everyday life. The main university functions of the club are running the concession stands at the Flying High Circus and preparing the Homecoming Queen's float and decorating the main gates for homecoming.

SAILING CLUB: Centerboard Sloop Championships is the topic of discussion for the sailing meeting scheduled tonight at 7:30 p.m. in room 555, IMB Building. Sailing slides will be shown.

ALL STARS: The U of F All Star Flag football team barely nudged out a 25-24 victory over FSU All Stars in the final minute of the game played in Gainesville last Saturday.

FSU was hurt by two 20 yard penalties giving the University of Florida field position for a TD pass in the final seconds of the game. Quarterback Jim Gordon, Phil Tau, led FSU's attack hitting John Lambert, DTU, for the first TD. Ray Perez, DTU, ran in the second score after a pass from Gordon to Scott Spicer set up the play.

The third TD came on a triple pass play from Gordon to Perez back to Gordon and then Gordon fired back to Perez downfield. He scored across the chalk mark. A Gordon-Lambert pass scored the fourth touchdown.

FSU led at the half 14-13 and outstayed the second half while the University of Florida rallied to win. Leading the defense for FSU were Sam Huffphries intercepted for passes.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT: Varsity and freshman players survived first round action, with one exception, the Florida State tennis championships last week. Jerry Adams, graduate student from Okaloosa City, Oklahoma, upset for FSU Montague, 6-4, 6-4, Friday for varsity's only defeat.

The tournament closes with final practices for Lex Wood's team and offers FSU students a chance to win against scholarship players.

Results of the first round: school captain Paul Lewis, 6-1, 6-1; Palmer Williams, 6-1, 6-1; team's number two player, De Zeeuw, swept his opponent, 6-0, 6-0 against Warren. Dundics, freshman, defeated Gage 6-3, 6-2.

Right Ray, it certainly has been a fun series (but wait till Saturday and we'll see who has the last laugh).

Senate Passes Block Seating, Bill Of Rights Merging Commends Senate Block Resolution

President States Action Beneficial

JOE FOWLER
Staff Writer
Vice President John Domini recommended the senate today to amend Senator Domini's resolution to read "block seating" rather than "block seating" in yesterday's Senate meeting.

Domini said that this was in line with the action of the Senate Director Vaughn statement made in the Wednesday concerning block seating. Domini said that he was in sympathy with the students who are able to crowd more into the blocks that the actual number of seats will accommodate. Domini said that he was in sympathy with the students who are able to crowd more into the blocks that the actual number of seats will accommodate. JOHN MERTING COMMENTS ACTION

... which resolved the question of block seating at yesterday's Student Senate meeting, presided over by Vice President Joyce Killian.

G. Stearns Bill Defines Rights

Two new resolutions, one dealing with block seating and another dealing with the "Bill of Rights," were passed yesterday during a prolonged session of Student Senate. Senator G. Stearns introduced the "Bill of Rights" resolution to recommend several changes in the social environment which presently exists on campus. The resolution involves: the rights of free expression, the right to self-government, the right of recourse to public, defined and equitable law, the right of due process of law, and the right of association. Quoting from Stearns' resolution, "Responsibility cannot be taught in theory. It can only be developed in an atmosphere of mature citizenship, where natural rights may be freely exercised." The "Bill of Rights" resolution was passed with only one opposing vote. Senator Bill Falck in opposing this bill said that the events of the past few weeks on the part of the majority of students at FSU demonstrated clearly to him that the student body was not ready yet to take on the added responsibility of the proposed "Bill of Rights." Falck inquired of the senators how could it be said that the administration had the right to authority, but didn't have the right nor power necessary to use authority. The block seating resolution was introduced by Senator Carl Domino. It passed as a suggestion to the FSU Athletic Dept., to eliminate block seating after 12:30 p.m. At this time the blocks would be open to anyone, if the department accepts the suggestion. The resolution was a compromise on the part of the Student Senate.

Students Must Present Two Part ID For UF Game Admission: Dean Arnold

"Apparently many students still are not aware that admission to a football game is dependent upon presenting for inspection the two-part ID packet," said Dean Jack Arnold today. This packet includes the yellow registration certificate (which must bear the page stamp from the Bursar and the number stamp for tax paid) and either a permanent photo ID card or a temporary ID card with an appropriate expiration date.

No provision will be made at the game for paying the tax, replacing lost registration certificates and photo ID cards, or updating temporary ID cards. These matters should be taken care of before Friday afternoon in 102 A Westcott. "For one reason or another, an increasing number of students, after gaining admission to the stadium are presenting their certificates through the fence to other students for use in gaining admission."

Students allowing their registration certificates of ID cards to be used by other persons, and students attempting to use another's registration certificate to gain entrance are subject to prosecution by the Honor Court," warned Arnold. Conviction could result in suspension. Many students have brought coolers and other large containers to the stadium. Since these are not permitted inside the fence, students have been turned back at the gate to dispose of them. "Entrance into the stadium will be facilitated and expedited if students do not attempt to bring such items with them," Arnold said.

Scalping Honor Court Offense; One Student Caught Already

The resale of tickets to the FSU-Florida game for prices other than those paid and the misuse of ID cards are honor court offenses. One FSU student has been apprehended by the Tallahassee police for "scalping" his tickets. The student was arrested when police answered his ad offering to buy the tickets. Florida statutes 817.36 on the resale of tickets of common carriers, places of amusement, etc., states the following: (1) "Whoever shall offer for sale or sell any ticket good for passage or accommodations on any common carrier in this state, or good for admission to any sporting exhibition, athletic contest, theatre or any exhibition where an admission price is charged, and request or receive a price in excess of one dollar above the price charged therefor, by the original seller of said ticket, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 and not more than $1000 or imprisoned for not more than 6 months, or by both fine and Misuse of ID cards is a deliberate deception, an Honor Court offense. Penalties range from Honor Court probation to suspension from FSU. Dean Harry Day said that students were observed by people at the stadium to be misusing their ID cards. "Students may be doing this without realizing it," said Day. He warned that in the future students will suffer the consequences of the misuse when apprehended.

Pink Slips Poor Reminder

To the Editor:

I wish to denounce the use of pink slips as sensationalist and meaningless. The following reasons motivate my denunciation:

1. Some professors give pink slips for all work of C plus and lower while others give them only for failing work. Some do not even give them at all.
2. Those students who are doing poorly in a course know who they are, know they are doing poorly and do not need a reminder.
3. There is no point in giving a student one better work by shoving him a pink slip. This does not work.
4. There are many professors who do not even give pink slips since they have seen their worthlessness as stated above.
5. Some courses in this University are so poorly taught that it is impossible to assess satisfactory or unsatisfactory work, much less assign a grade. Other courses are taught in such a manner that their prerequisites are useless.

6. There are professors who have locked themselves into a proverbial Ivory tower, forgetting the difficulties of learning an involved subject, the knowledge of which they take for granted. This type of professor is not qualified to assess a student's progress. In fact, it is this type of person who should receive a reminder of unsatisfactory work since one of the symptoms of the Ivory tower syndrome is the unawareness of mental isolation from students.
7. In view of the above facts, the time and money spent on the dissemination of pink slips is wasted and should be put to constructive use.

Therefore, I call for the discontinuance of the use of pink slips.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

The legislative branch of Student Government is the Student Senate. It acts as a sounding board of student opinion at FSU.

The Senate acts both as a combined group of men and women legislators. In the Student Senate, and as two separate bodies in a Men's Senate and Women's Senate.

The Men's Senate, presided over by Men's Vice President Jack Cannon and the Women's Senate, presided over by Women's Vice President Pam Mozur, consider legislation involving men and women on campus respectively.

Joyce Kilian is president of the Student Senate and presides over all meetings of the student legislative body. There are four standing and several special committees. The Elections and Appointments Committee considers and recommends action on students who are appointed to all Student Government Offices. The Judicial and Rules Committee is concerned primarily with the campus court system and the rules and procedures of the Senate. Student opinions and welfare is the field of study and work of the Labor, Student Services and Education Committee. The fourth committee is the connecting link between the students on campus and the Senate itself. It is the Senate-Student Relations Committee.

America Must Face All Realities

To the Editor:

I read with some interest, the letter by Mr. Alan Barr which appeared in the November 2 issue of the Florida "Flambeau". Although I have no doubt that Mr. Barr is indeed concerned with the integrity of the individual and with the preservation of democracy, I do have certain doubts as to the validity of his assertions.

Certainly an article which purports to analyze the weaknesses of our system and to assign blame for our failures would, if it is to have any value, be free of misleading statements and misrepresentations of fact. I take exception to Mr. Barr's letter on four counts:

First, Mr. Barr asserts that, "a marked decline in the widespread infatuation with Lyndon Baines Johnson has become evident in these final weeks. . . . Moreover, he goes on to suggest that the reason for the decline of this so-called 'infatuation' is conscious corruption and dishonesty on the part of the President.

I disagree here for two reasons: first, national polls have shown that there is no decline in the popularity of the President; in fact, an increase in his popularity has been consistently reflected in the polls since the Republican convention. Both the Gallup and the Harris polls, in surveys conducted in the week just prior to the election, showed a 64% 36% split in favor of Johnson; I suggest that Mr. Barr compare these figures with the results of earlier polls. Second, Mr. Barr has attempted to establish guilt on the part of the President by virtue of his association with those persons within the administration who have been proven corrupt. Such an attempt proves nothing; it is rather a smear tactic usually used by those unable to prove their assertions in an open manner.

Second, it was stated that, "Liberalism, ostensibly the enemy of conformity and champion of free thought, has produced a generation so willing to unquestioningly accept edicts from on high as to obligingly bury its collective head in the sand whenever the unpleasant realities of the twentieth century press too close." The fact, of course, is that since the end of the Second World War, a mass culture and a mass reliance on conformity has come into being; I fail, however, to understand how such a phenomenon may be directly traced, in the manner of a cause and effect relationship, to liberalism.

Indeed, Reinhold Niebuhr, writing in "The Children of Light and the Children of Darkness," one of the best expressions of the new liberalism which followed World War Two, has accepted the imperfection of men ("Man's capacity for justice makes democracy possible; but his inclination to injustice makes democracy necessary") and has called for a necessary degree of restraint on the part of the individual for the sake of the community. This cannot, however, be construed in any sense as calling for the sort of total conformity and subservience which Mr. Barr suggests.

Rather than seek the simple solution, I suggest that the roots of our current culture and of our failures are found in many and diverse areas: in the realization that man is capable of such inhumanity as was manifested during World War Two; in the fact that configurations of world power are undergoing vast and far reaching changes, not solely due to the advance of Communism, but also as the result of the awakening of white continents new to the world power; in changes in the economic system of the United States such as those noted by Max Lerner in "The Lonely Crowd"; and in the realization that the arm race is simply supplying man with the capacity to destroy himself. These are but a few of the areas where one might seek the roots of our problems; if Mr. Barr still maintains that our failures are largely the result of the inadequacies of liberalism, I can only suggest that they are equally the result of the inadequacies of conservatism. Third, much of Mr. Barr's argument seems to reflect a misunderstanding and rather frigidity of mind, made famous by Senator Johnson that extremism is a disease of the mind. Extremism is a disease of the mind is no virtue. The fact that liberalism is frightening with its promises of peace and in which the domestic scene, if not the international scene, might quickly be reduced to the status of a police state, is a point to the quite different which "liberty" (liberalism) groups as the Ku Klux Klan and the John Birch Society, as well as the American Civil Liberties Union, in the international scene, is a picture of a belligerent, fanatical, and a culture it is necessary to order Communism, a policy used in an argument would seem to be directly to diplomatic success. Finally, Mr. Barr states that "today people all over the world face chains and slavery because past and present administrations have tried to deal with Communism by wishing it away," and

Combined Groups Give Concert To Kickoff Weekend Activities

Male singing groups from FSU and U of F will present their annual Football Concert at 8 p.m. tomorrow in Westcott Auditorium.

The joint concert has become a traditional affair held annually on the eve of the football game between the two rival schools. This year it will be on the FSU campus for the first time.

Guy Webb will direct the Singing Gators and Ramon E. Meyer, FSU's Collegians.

FSU's Collegians will present "Heavenly Light" by Kopylow; "Natus in Curas" by Siebelius; "Frostaniana" by Thompson; "The Noblest of Songs" by Bruchner; "Sound of Today" by Powell and two Bach numbers, "Sonata No. 3" and "Invention No. 11."

The Singing Gators will perform "Cry Out and Shout" by Nystedt; "Album for Male Voices" by Grieg; "The Night" by Schubert; "Drinking Song" by Williams; "Down by Sally Gardens," an Irish folksong; "Old King Cole," and "When Johnny Comes Marching Home Again."

The two singing groups will perform a joint football medley arranged by Richard Powell, a graduate student.

...Realities

area, I cannot help but feel that Mr. Barr is either ignorant of history or is attempting to distort it to further his goals.

In Europe, and in the sense which Mr. Barr suggests, I know of no country which fell to Communist domination simply because its rulers took no pains to prevent conquest. The fact is that Bulgaria, Rumania, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland, and the eastern portions of Germany were occupied by the Red Army at the end of the Second World War. Indeed this Army was welcomed by rulers and ruled alike as a liberator; it was not, however, expected by persons outside the Kremlin as an occupying force.

Across the world in China, as more than one noted historian has pointed out, it was Chiang's failure to retain the support of his own people that brought about his defeat—this plus the efficiency, incorruptibility, and the ruthless fanaticism of Mao Tse-tung and the Chinese Communists Party.

Just as it is absurd to contend that Chiang delivered China to the Communists simply because he tried to wish away the Communist threat if the United States is to face the reality of the twentieth century it is necessary that we face all of the realities, not just a select few. If we are to enjoy any degree of success in our role as the leader of a coalition of free nations, it will be necessary to discard all of the panaceas, all of the scapegoats, and all of the quick and easy solutions, and then to expend every effort to make democracy an attractive and workable choice for those we seek to lead.

Sports On Campus

by GEORGE BETTS

Tryouts for the University Union Bowling and Billiard teams continue today through November 24, except Saturday and Sunday from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

Tryouts for the bowling team will consist of two, three game series to select two men's and women's teams.

The billiard tryouts will be run as a 125 ball straight pocket billiards challenge ladder. The top players in both sports will represent the FSU Union in the regional tournaments to be held on campus in February.

Baseball Coach Hatfield announced that a special meeting for all baseball players is scheduled today at 4 p.m. in room 212, Tully Gym.

BASKETBALL: A meeting for off-campus women interested in playing basketball will be today at 4 p.m. in the Intramural Office located in the back of room 208, Montgomery Gym.

SOCCER: The Soccer Team has a double-header weekend as they Gators Saturday at 10 a.m. on the soccer field located behind Gaines Woods. Sunday, they play the Bruins Spiders of Jacksonville at 2 p.m. Everyone is invited and admission is free.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT: Three important matches are set for today and tomorrow in the Florida State Tennis Championships, going on at the FSU varsity courts near Tully Gym.

Attention this afternoon at 3 p.m. focuses on a semi-final match in the upper singles bracket, matching 1965 team captain Paul Bennett with an improving Steve Cose.

Meanwhile, at 2 p.m. quarterfinals match pits transfer Terry Poore against hard-hitting Stewart Bruner. The winner faces South African star Paul De Zeeuw Friday in the semifinals at 3 p.m.

Lex Wood, the FSU player-coach, postponed finals in the singles play until Monday and finals in the doubles Tuesday.

Doubles rounds will continue today and tomorrow.

NEA Taps Fleet Freddy First

It's one down and ten to go for Flankerback Fred Biletnikoff in the All-American race. The Newspaper Enterprise Assn. yesterday named Biletnikoff to its All-American team as an end.

The NEA, one of the nations three largest news services was the first group to announce its annual honors list. Biletnikoff is expected to figure highly in several other of the 11 All-American teams.

FSU individuals can do their part to assure the first pan-handle All-American in Florida football history by letting the men who pick the All-American know that FSU wants Fleet Fred recognized for the genius that he is.

If each of the 12,000 students on this campus would write his home sports editor and tell him about FSU's talented spark plug, this would help get Fred and FSU their deserved recognition.

Fleet Fred is considered the best pass catcher in the nation by almost everyone who scouts him. What amazes coaches (besides his statistics) is Biletnikoff's uncanny ability to deceive and outmaneuver his defenders.

Few college players possess this and usually takes the pros awhile to develop it.

Despite missing the Houston game because of a bad charley horse, Biletnikoff has broken all FSU pass catching records. He has 55 receptions for 90 yards and 62 points. This is only 97 yards away from the national mark of 1002 yards set in 1962 by Vern Burke of Oregon State. If Biletnikoff can elude his vaunted Gator defenders this Saturday that record should fall.

With all this in the record books Biletnikoff should be a shoe-in as an All-American for anybody's team; and he should garner quite a few votes for the Heisman Trophy. But publicity as such as records makes an All-American.

FSU-UF Weekend Begins

Educate UF

The original editorial slated for this column urged the student body to restrain themselves, to remember how to act and to stay out of trouble this weekend.

We decided we didn't need to run it.

The students at this university we believe have shown themselves capable of channeling their enthusiasm over the big weekend ahead into worthwhile, not destructive, displays of spirit.

The women of Dorman Hall surprised the team during the week with an enormous cake and a decorated "Stomp the Gators" dining hall.

Hundreds of letters have poured into the team and Coach Peterson wishing them well and demonstrating their support for the team win or lose.

We believe that we have never seen such a building wave of enthusiasm on our campus. It is a healthy sign.

We don't think that the officials of either school have to worry about the students of FSU giving either institution a black eye.

We should worry, however, about our neighbors to the South. A history of childishness seems to prevail at the other state institution and we all know that children are ruled by their emotions and not their intellects.

Therefore we are urging all of the students at FSU to overlook any incidents that may arise and demonstrate a "turn the cheek" attitude.

Perhaps we can teach some manners as well as how to play football to the University of Florida.

Walk To Game

The Campus Security Dept. has urged us to remind the student body to leave the cars at home and walk to the game.

With an estimated crowd of 42,000 people expected, the traffic jam before and after the game will be monumental enough without the FSU student body adding any more complications.

Walking will be good tonic for worn nerves and frazzled tempers. Let's not let anything interfere with our big win tomorrow.

Letters Policy

Students are reminded that all letters to the editor must include the student's signature and student number in order to be considered for publication.

FLAMBEAU FORUM Republican Must Evaluate Party

To the Editor:

Now that the smoke has cleared from the charred remains of the Republican Party, I think it is time for we Republicans to evaluate what has happened to our party since San Francisco.

By allowing the conservative element in our party to dominate our political theory, we have plunged our party to its lowest ebb since the days of FDR. Senator Goldwater with his "choice, not an echo" brand of politics has led us to the brink of permanent Democratic domination. President Johnson's plurality of 15,419,027 votes (with 98 per cent of the precincts reporting) is a sound and bitter defeat for both Senator Goldwater's politics and for the right-wing faction within our party. Bitter as this defeat may seem, however, Republican strength remains. Moderate Republicans voted not for President Johnson per se, but rather against the avowed policies of Senator Goldwater. Republicans are still loyal to the principles of our party as exemplified by Abraham Lincoln.

If Republican strength is to be unified once again, this conservative force-epitomized by Senator Goldwater and the campaign of 1964 must be rejected! President Johnson's plurality is a mandate for moderate liberal government, and it is for we Republicans to obey the voice of the people who are the makers of our government and for whom government exists.

Goldwater's campaign director Denison Kitchel said "it doesn't look like we're going to win the first round. Four years from now, we're going to get the government back to where it belongs." (St. Petersburg Times-Nov. 4, 1964.) It is my contention that government IS where it belongs - in the mainstream of American political thought.

Party leadership must be wrested from Goldwater control at the national, state, and local level. National chairman Dean Burch should step aside as should ex-candidate Goldwater who said: "...the GOP must stick to his conservative course if it is to rebuild its power." (St. Petersburg Times-Nov. 5, 1964.)

It is time we Republicans begin rebuilding, that much is true, and we must rebuild with the framework of the people and their desire for sound, representative government.

Joint Concert, Dances Scheduled

THE COLLEGIANS

A joint glee club concert and a concert-dance with SI Zentner playing will open a round of cooperative activities this weekend for the FSU-Florida game.

Musical harmony unites the two schools on the stage of Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m. tonight, when the Singing Gators join the FSU Collegians for a free public concert.

Prior to the concert, Student Government leaders from both schools will get together for a banquet at 5:45 p.m. in the University Room of the Union.

Tonight at 9:30 p.m. there will be a concert by SI Zentner and his orchestra in the main ballroom of the Union. Concert tickets are $1 for students and $1.50 for the public.

The dance following will feature a 16-piece band. The dance is from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m., tickets are $1.25 for students and $1.50 for the public.

Alumni of the two universities will share a barbecue dinner at Tully Gymnasium.

Closing the evening will be two dances, one in the main ballroom of the Union, with Rick Powell's Orchestra, and the other in Tully Gym with the Cobres, rock and roll band. Dances are 12:00 a.m. to 12:30 a.m.

FSU-UF Presidents Give Joint Message

It is pleasing to note the interest and enthusiasm being generated by the FSU-Florida State-University football game.

Reserved Block Chart Displayed

Seating arrangements for all FSU students who participated at the reserved block seats Wednesday night are in a chart which is posted in the University Union Bookstore.

The reserved block seating sections will be open to any students at 12:30 p.m. as requested by the Student Senate Resolution 24.

Students are requested to enter the stadium tomorrow through gates 10, 11, and 12.

Florida football game to be played this Saturday," said a joint statement issued by Dr. Gordon W. Blackwell and Dr. J. Wayne Reitz, presidents of the respective universities. "Fans of each team—including students, alumni, and friends—can be expected to provide enthusiastic support within the bounds of good sportsmanship.

"As presidents of our respective institutions, we urge all supporters to conduct themselves in a manner befitting the highest standards of inter-collegiate rivalry.

"We know that no one would wish to do anything which might threaten the continuance of this fine series. Also it would be particularly unfortunate if any student's educational program were jeopardized by careless or impulsive actions.

"It is our hope that all of us may look back on this game with pride and admiration."

NEW JOURNEYMEN SHOWS

... will be from 8:30 to 9:15 p.m., and from 10 to 10:45 p.m. tomorrow night. Tickets for the show and dance are available at the main ticket office in the University Union today, or at the door tomorrow night.

'Here Is Gator, Color Him Dead' Sign Typical Of Support For Football Team

"Here is a Gator, color him dead" are the words appearing above a nine-foot long alligator, designed by the coeds of seventh floor east Dorman Hall and now appearing in an honored slot in the football dining hall.

"We're just enthusiastic about the

Mums Are Sold

Mums for the FSU-Florida game will be sold tomorrow from 7:30 a.m. until game time by the Recreation Society for $1.55 each.

They will be available at off-campus bars and restaurants, front of the Union post office, the Alumni bar-be-que, and Campbell Stadium.

team," explained Marguerite Bryant, one of the coeds who began sending letters of support to the team after becoming disgusted with the poor turnout at the VPI game pep rally.

"Like the Phantom strikes again. We like surprising the team," said Pat Pendegast, who presented the team with a cake Tuesday on behalf of the coeds of seventh floor Dorman.

The cake was lettered "Good luck on your Gator Hunt, Scalp em!" The coeds have sent letters to Coach Bill Peterson after every game praising the team and letting them know that they are behind the team 100 per cent. For the past few weeks they have decorated the dining room with spirit-raising posters every evening.

Not only Dorman coeds, but students all over campus have demonstrated their support for the team. Coach Peterson's office has reported that they have been swamped with over 300 letters expressing enthusiasm for the team.

Signs like "What's for sale? Gator Tail!" appear on dorms, Greek houses, and buildings all over Tallahassee.

All night camp-outs for tickets, letters of team support, and increased interest in the sport's page demonstrate that FSU will be behind with the Garnet and Gold team on Campbell Field tomorrow afternoon.

DIRECTION SIGNS

Will be posted this weekend by the FSU Jaycees in cooperation with campus police, city police, and highway patrol, showing the way to the stadium. Jaycees pictured are Jim Elder (L) and Ray Brennan.

NSF Offers Grads Aid

The National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council will advise the National Science Foundation in the selection of candidates for the Foundation's program of graduate and regular postdoctoral fellowships.

Committees of outstanding scientists, appointed by the Academy-Research Council, will evaluate applications of all candidates. Final selection will be made by the Foundation, with awards to be announced on March 15, 1965.

Fellowships will be awarded for study in the mathematical, physical, chemical, biological and engineering sciences. Anthropology, economics (excluding business administration), geography, the history and philosophy of science, linguistics, political science, psychology (excluding clinical psychology), and sociology (not including social work) are fields for study.

Fellowships are open to college seniors, graduate students working toward a degree, postdoctoral students, and others with equivalent training and experience. All applicants must be citizens of the United States and will be judged solely on the basis of ability.

Applicants for the graduate awards will be required to take the Graduate Record Examinations designed to test scientific aptitude and achievement. The examinations, administered by the Educational Testing Service, will be given on January 16, 1965, at designated centers throughout the United States and certain foreign countries.

The annual stipends for graduate fellows are $2400 for the first level; $2600 for the intermediate level; and $2800 for the terminal level.

The annual stipend for postdoctoral fellows is $5500. Limited allowances will also be provided to apply toward tuition, laboratory fees, and travel.

Further information and application materials may be obtained from the Fellowship Office, National Academy of Sciences-National Research Council, 2101 Constitution Avenue, N. W., Washington, D. C.

Students Learn Glass Blowing

by SALLY BESSANT

With the aid of flame, lungs and skill, Orus Sheward and his students repair a maze of scientific glassware in what could well be one of the most unusual courses on campus; Chemistry 457 (glass-blowing). To most unscientific minds, glass-blowing and chemistry would appear to be at opposite poles. Yet the class meeting in the Physics Annex comes under the auspices of the Chemistry Dept. The class's main purpose is to make apparatus that can not be bought.

Rough drawings of the apparatus are submitted by researchers. Individual and sometimes complicated connections of pyrex tubing are constructed by the glass blowers. As a straight tube is heated, blown and manipulated—outlets, inlets and bulbous reservoirs appear.

During World War II, while working as a lab technician, Sheward became interested in glass blowing. He came to FSU seven years ago. His work in the lab includes diagrams to be followed with mathematical precision.

No matter what nightmare of glass to be assembled, it can usually be done in the shop.

Chiefs To Play Carter Original Half-Show

Another original innovation, "Marching Chiefs Fantasia," will be presented by the Marching Chiefs during the halftime show of the FSU-Florida game tomorrow.

This year's composition is the second show. Last year's homecoming half-time was the first time an original serious composition for marching band had been performed in this country. It was written by Dr. John Boda, professor of composition.

Charles Carter, music arranger for the Chiefs, was selected to do the composition this year. Carter has written many compositions for high school bands.

Opening with a fanfare the band proceeds with triangular and kaleidoscope patterns in 3/4 time and change to march tempo.

The second part of the program is a drill with a transition march, waltz, and march.

With a modern jazz idiom the band forms a stage presenting the majorities and solo twirlers for the third part.

The grand finale will feature a drill sequence ending in a company front finale.

Robert Braunsgard did the formations for the show.

History Says: Men Faddists

Men laugh at the fads and foibles of feminine fashion!

But, their superior air might vanish, if they would glance back at the history of one of their own items of apparel.

For centuries, men chose neckwear for its decorative value rather than practicality and comfort. The well-dressed man of ancient Egypt wore heavy necklaces and collars of beaten bronze to adorn his neck.

The Renaissance male felt underdressed without his lace ruff peering over his high, band collar.

The Spaniards of that period wore huge, pleated ruffs that often measured a foot-and-a-half in diameter. They were called "millstone" ruffs.

The Frenchman contributed several elegant styles to men's fashions. The lace cravats of French courtiers of Louis XIV had a base origin. "Cravat" was the name the French gave to the linen or muslin scarf worn by Slavic soldiers. Even the Slavs had a flair for style.

In 18th century France, the fashion of men wearing wigs gave rise to unique and intricate neckwear. The back hair of the wig was gathered into a little cloth bag. This bag was tied with an elaborate ribbon. This ribbon extended around the neck. Since this ribbon tied in a bow over a plain cravat, its name "solitaire," was somewhat inappropriate.

The 19th century in France favored large neckwear for the men. These consisted of lace jabots, pussy-cat bows, and enormous cravats.

The first tie, as such, was the bow tie, tied in a lover's knot. It had floppy loops and ends. A narrower version of the same tie was de rigueur for formal wear.

In the 20th century there were the tight "apple-bobbers." These bobbed about uncomfortably on the "adam's apple."

The wide, loud, and garish neckties of the 30's and 40's are still the butt of many a joke.

TAKE A LOOK AT TOMORROW!

FORD MOTOR COMPANY'S EXPERIMENTAL GAS TURBINE SUPERHIGHWAY TRUCK ANTICIPATES THE NATIONAL HIGHWAY NETWORK OF THE 1970's.

A new era in trucking is almost here. When the 41,000-mile national highway network is completed it will be possible for the first time to schedule coast to coast, big payload hauling. Ford Motor Company's answer to the challenge is this experimental tractor-trailer combination. A tandem axle drive tractor, powered by a 600 hp gas turbine engine permits a cruising speed of 70 miles per hour, a non-stop range of 600 miles. Designed for long-distance, non-stop operation, the two-man cab includes sleeping facilities, fold-away table, lavatory, toilet, oven, refrigerator and TV for the co-driver—with over 63" of headroom. Because of its cruising speed, the truck will be compatible with the normal passenger car flow rate of traffic.

Other unique features are its odorless exhaust and extremely quiet operation.

Anticipating the opportunities and needs of the future is standard practice at Ford Motor Company.

That's why it's such an exciting place to work. Look to Ford Motor Company for a career with growth potential and satisfaction—from pure science to manufacturing... marketing to labor relations.

New initiates are Judy Weaver, Molly Kopp, Marylee Phillips, and Karen Knight.

KAPPA SIGMA—The Kappa Sig pledges sponsored their annual "Gator Wagon" for last night's Pep Rally and all day today.

The chapter will have a stereo party tonight and a combo party tomorrow night with the Dynamics.

The Kappa Sig's will have a luncheon Sunday in honor of President and Mrs. Blackwell.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA—Mark Mitchell and John Ogden are new pledges. Vaughn Mancha and Keith Pitchford and their wives were recent dinner guests.

Brothers and their dates will celebrate after the game with a victory banquet.

PHI DELTA THETA—Tomorrow night the Phi's and their dates will party at the fairgrounds with the Cepers.

PHI KAPPA PSI—The chapter will host the Florida Colony this weekend and feature a costume party tomorrow night with Bobby and the Challengers.

Saturday's game will premiere the Phi Psi's new fight song.

PHI MU—Sunday the Phi Mu's "Magnificent 20" toppled the Sig Eps in a football clash, 14-7. Stat ball-carrier for the Phi Mu squad was a '64 Corvair convertible.

The chapter will host members of the Florida chapter this weekend.

PI KAPPA ALPHA—Plans are now being completed for the new PIKA house to be built in the spring. New pledges are Tom O'Quinn and are J. L. Milton, president and George Meahan, vice president.

The Shadows will entertain for a victory dance after tomorrow's game.

PI KAPPA PHI—New pledges are Jim Irwin, Francis Williams, Wayne Vincent, Jeff Cross, Roy Grissent, and Ray Fordyce.

The PI Kapp's will have a closed combo party with the Starfires after the Florida game.

SIGMA CHI—The Sig's and the Tri Delta's joined forces Saturday to help the Leon County Civil Defense Unit in storage and repair work. Doug Ferry and Bob Williams are the new rush chairmen, and Rich Hogan is the new historian.

The Sig's will have a post-game party at the Holiday Inn.

SIGMA NU—After tomorrow's long-awaited victory over Florida the Sigma Nu's will celebrate with a barbecue and dance at Silver Lake with the Velvets.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON—New chapter officers are Dennis Berry, president; Paul Adams, vice president; Jeff Henderson, secretary; and Barry Milstead, recorder.

The Sig Eps enjoyed a football social with the Phi Mu's Sunday. Dean Rovetta of the Business School was a dinner guest Wednesday. A record party tonight will start this weekend's activities for the chapter and the Florida Sig Eps. The two chapters will square off for a football game tomorrow morning. After a post-game buffet dinner, the two chapters will party at the house with the Checkmates.

TAU EPSILON PHI—The Tep's thank all the sororities and fraternities for their help in the Muscular Dystrophy Drive.

The chapter will host the Florida Tep's with a party in the evening tomorrow.

THETA CHI—The Theta Chi's will party at the house tonight and tomorrow night with Wee Willie and the Teens.

ZETA TAU ALPHA—The Zeta's held a Senior banquet Wednesday in honor of the graduating seniors. The Zeta Pickers performed at the Talent last night.

Presenting America's slowest fastback.

There are some new cars around with very streamlined roofs.
But they are not Volkswagens.

They are called fastbacks, and some of them are named after fish.
You can tell them from Volkswagens because a VW won't go over 72 mph. (Even though the speedometer shows a wildly optimistic top speed of 90.)

So you can easily break almost any speed law in the country in a VW.
And you can cruise right past gas stations, repair shops and tire stores.

The VW engine may not be the fastest, but it's among the most advanced. It's made of magnesium alloy (one step better than aluminum). And it's so well machined you may never add oil between changes.

The VW engine is cooled by air, so it can never freeze up or boil over.

It won't have anything to do with water.

So we saw no reason to name it after a fish.

Seminoles Must Be Perfect For Gators

For the first time since 1950 FSU has a real, no fooling around, backed into, or tied into winning season. It stands up and shouts 7-1-1. That's something to be proud of. No moral victories here. None of this "we were brilliant in defeat." But for 12,000 FSU students this won't mean a damn thing tomorrow afternoon.

For them, as well as Bowl committees and alumni, the Seminoles play only one game this year. That's against the Florida Gators. Coach Bill Peterson may have a winning season, but as far as these people are concerned it won't be "successful" unless he beats the Gators.

The seven Seminole wins, instead of lessening the importance of this single game, have increased it. FSU is now in contention for a bowl bid. Florida is under consideration for that same bowl. Saturday will decide, probably, who will go to Jacksonville.

Peterson and the team want this win very badly. This is his team. He recruited and coached every player on the squad. They're his boys and they want this one to prove his four years with them haven't been for nothing. But can they?

This is the finest team in 12 years at FSU; but Florida also has one of its best teams. The Seminoles excel in pass offense. The Gators have the best pass defense in the nation.

The Tribe has had no open dates in the season and last week lost second string quarterback Ed Pritchett for four weeks because of a leg injury. The Gators have had two open dates including last week. All their men, except little Jack Card, are in excellent shape and ready to play.

There is but one way for the Tribe to win tomorrow. They have to play errorless, determined football. They can. They must.

BOB CORNET

MISTAKES

... In the form of three North Carolina State fumbles decided last Saturday night's football game 28-6 in favor of the Seminoles, boosting their record to 7-1-1.

Tomorrow afternoon the Tribe will have the opportunity to add one more victory to the string, get a bowl bid, and begin to even the series with the University of Florida. The Gators and Gold has never beaten the Seminoles, though they did fight to a 3-3 tie three years ago.

The team that wins tomorrow can not afford to make the mistakes that both NCS and FSU made. The Tribe lost one fumble and had two passes intercepted in that game. Florida is noted for capitalizing on errors to win the big ones.

Tribe Tops UF; Bowl Bound

By BOB CORNET

The confident Seminoles completely bowled over the punchless Florida Alligators Saturday in Campbell Stadium on a Tensi-Biletnikoff strike and the spares of Les Murdock.

The 16-7 score--six by Fleet Fred and ten by Long Foot Les--was decisive enough to earn the Tribe a berth in the Jan. 2 Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, once considered the Gators home away from home.

Coach Bill Peterson accepted the bid in the FSU dressing room after being carried off the field on the shoulders of Red Dawson and Jack Edwards. On the way to the field house he was congratulated by a surprised Ray Graves, who had been saying all week, "Never FSU Never."

Graves looked like a prophet for the first few minutes of the game when Wayne Giardino fumbled at the FSU15 on the second play of the game. A Tom Shannon pass to Gary Thomas and three Larry Dupree bursts moved the Gators to the two.

On the next play jittery senior Shannon left the line of scrimmage without the football and Tribe end George D'Allesandro picked up the loose pig-skin to stop any Florida hopes of a rout.

Stuck deep in their own territory the Seminoles were unable to get anything started, but then neither was Florida with good field position.

At the beginning of the second quarter the Gator pass defense made a real effort at living up to its clippings as Allen Trammel intercepted a long pass on

Castro Claims Credit For 'Progress'

To the Editor:

Please allow me to make some remarks about the statement made by the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba, as published in the "Flambeau" issue of November 2, 1964. I think it should be at least of some interest to the student body of our university to present a different view from the one stated by the Committee for Travel to Cuba.

1. The Committee for Travel to Cuba stated that the members were "allowed to walk and talk where they please," and that they were transported from area to area, by the government, but once in a city they had organized tours or could wander around at will. What the Committee for Travel to Cuba failed to point out is that under a police state such as Castro's, with its Committee for the Defense of the Revolution in practically every block of major cities, it is impossible for anyone to feel free to talk to anyone else, especially if the visitor is a foreigner, and in particular, an American.

As it has been explained somewhere else, the Cuban Committees for the Defense of the Revolution are set up to keep track of who visits whom in a given block, how many enter a particular house, what kind of car was driven, packages carried, and so on. This information is passed on daily to the repressive police, who later on go over the information so compiled and use it to harass, intimidate, and incarcerate the people. Under such condition, how could anyone expect Cuban to talk freely to even his most trusted friend? How could any Cuban dare to say much of importance to this group from the United States, especially when it was traveling at the Cuban Government's expense? No sensible Cuban would take that chance.

2. Newman - one of the Committee for Travel to Cuba members - said that the Cubans "had made a lot of improvements under Castro's rule." He cited new housing, racial equality, high employment, equal distribution of food, and medical care. Now, new housing projects have always been a feature of Cuban governments, from Batista down to Frio and Grau San Martin. Therefore, to build some 300 new houses Castro didn't have to make the Cuban people pay the tremendously high price they are paying, i.e., their freedom, their standard of living, and even their lives. The fact that Castro has claimed credit for the largest housing project already built by the administration of new communistly elected government of Frio Socarras (1948-52).

About racial equality -- I know that none of the Committee for Travel to Cuba had visited Cuba before Castro took over. Therefore, I must question the statement made about Cuba having achieved racial equality today. In the first place, racial equality was never an issue in Cuba. There were Negro senators, Negro congressmen, Negro doctors, Negro engineers, Negro public servants, Negro workers in general, and so on throughout Cuban society. The color of the person was never an impediment for social, economic or political acceptance. It is true that there were private clubs in Cuba founded by groups of individuals who certainly had the right to exclude anyone they pleased -- not only Negroes, but white alike! Today, racial equality in Cuba really means the turning over of these clubs to the uneducated and low class people who have destroyed them. The idea was for Castro to win the complete support of these poor groups, who would be known in any civilized country by the name of "mobs." These mobs are today the back-bone of Castro's militia.

High employment -- Of course, everyone in Cuba works today -- for the government. The people must do what the government says, regardless. If a Cuban is not openly for the government, or paying lip service to it, he will not be issued a work permit, without which no Cuban can secure any kind of job. No Cuban is allowed to quit, change jobs or even refuse to contribute some hours a week to militia drills, or sugar cane cutting.

Equal distribution of food -- It is a well-known fact that there is no food in Cuba today. The Castro regime had to issue four ration cards because of the shortage. The only truth about the statement is that the equal distribution of food in Cuba, under Communism, has been of a downward nature. In other words, everyone -- except of course Castro and the Communist elite -- has no less to eat. The members of the Committee for Travel to Cuba conveniently have failed to point out that oranges, a natural product of Cuba, must be purchased, if available, only under a doctor's prescription.

Medical care -- Since the members of the Committee for Travel to Cuba have never been in Cuba prior to the Communist take-over, it is impossible for them to compare the previous medical care system with Castro's system. The Committee for Travel to Cuba should know that prior to Castro, Cuba had dozens of privately owned associations, which for a modest fee, provided hospitalization, dental care, doctor's visits, and medicine to the association's members. In addition, public hospitals, including the one used by the University of Havana medical students, and the most modern maternity hospital in Latin America, provided free care to anyone who needed it. Suffice to say that Cuba, prior to Castro, enjoyed one of the highest standards of health in Latin America and second only to the United States. Today, Cuba doesn't even have the great majority of doctors and dentists who once constituted the pride of Cuba and who now have fled the country in fear of Communist repression.

3. "One third of the Cuban population is in school and 70,000 students are on full scholarship." This statement made by the members of the Committee for Travel to Cuba is really meaningless. What the Committee for Travel to Cuba failed to point out is that to learn how to read certain type of propaganda, Communist or otherwise, cannot be called education, but indoctrination. The Committee for Travel to Cuba should know that most books were removed from the market as soon as Castro took over. These books were replaced with Communist literature and propaganda-loaded magazines, bulletins, brochures, etc. No one in Cuba is allowed to possess any book not previously sanctioned by the Communist regime. The Committee for Travel to Cuba should compare this with the situation we have here in the United States, where the Cuban Communist magazine "Bohemia" is available even at the FSU library.

In Cuba today no student would dare to challenge any economic, political or social view unless it is done to further the Communist ideology. To show what extreme Castro's Communist regime is capable of, even the book written by Raul Roa, one of Castro's mouthpieces in the United Nations, has been banned. The reason is that prior to Castro's take-over Raul Roa had written in his book all about the evils of Communism!

Is this the kind of improvement or advancement in education which so much impressed Miss Maher (member of the Committee for Travel to Cuba)?

Suffice to say that the Havana University had worldwide recognition. Today this recognition has been limited to that offered by Communist countries only. What improvement indeed!

I have noticed that the three members of this so-called Communist Committee for Travel to Cuba "are on our Florida" to "tell the truth about Cuba", as one of the members quoted. I sincerely believe, however, that the real purpose of the Committee is explained in the words of its members, who said "we may be able to influence some people to get the government to change its attitude on Cuba."

Fuqua Says Broader Approach Required For Poverty Problem

By TOM MIMMS

U.S. Congressman Don Fuqua complained at the recent session of Congress and on proposed legislation at the recent meeting of the House Democrats. He called for a broader approach to the poverty problem in America than that presented by the Appalachia bill. Some north Florida counties have as much poverty as some Appalachia counties Fuqua explained. He urged an area redevelopment program that would deal with these poverty areas located all over the state, rather than a program confined with just Appalachia. He said that he opposed the current measure bill because "it was too expensive and did not cover all of the elderly who needed medical aid."

Fuqua saw no reason why the proposed excise tax cut legislation would not be passed.

Regarding legislation regulating the sale of guns by mail-order houses, Fuqua said that it was "useless" because guns are too accessible. Instead, he favored forbidding the sale of guns to minors and the mentally ill.

"The real trouble is in regard to presidential succession and presidential disability," he said.

Fuqua explained that the President needs a vice-president to perform some of the ceremonial duties and especially to take over if he becomes disabled.

Fuqua defended the seniority system in Congress as the "most effective and practical system" for selecting committee chairmen. He said that the committee allowed a thorough examination of legislation. He noted that committee reports are very helpful to Congressmen in deciding who to vote.

Senate Debates Dorm Problems

Members of the Men's Senate met Thursday and discussed the installation of change machines in dorms, problems caused by motor scooters, and storage of students' guns.

The installation of change machines would alleviate many problems in the dorms. Senator Gene Stearns reported that this year's contract with the three vending machine companies that serve FSU will permit the companies to supply change machines if they want to, if acquired, one machine will be put in a women's dorm and one in a men's dorm on a trial basis.

The senators voted unanimously in favor of Senator Larry Brennan's proposal to request the Campus Security Police to alleviate the scooter problems around the men's dorms.

Brennan said that scooters parked in the elevators of parking spaces often cannot be seen by a driver until he has started to pull his car into the space. Also, some people unnecessarily wear up their motors for five minutes and cause a great deal of noise.

Brennan said that notices from the campus police that the situation is being watched might help to alleviate the confusion and noise.

Men's Vice President Jack Cannon then pointed out that boys who own guns have no place to store them except Smith Hall. He suggested that a gun closet put in the security office, would give the boys access to the guns at all hours, thereby lessening the temptation to keep guns in rooms.

Seminoles Gig Gators (And How!)

the UF 47. The ball was intended for Biletnikoff but he was getting the undivided attention of four Florida backs.

The interception became as good as a completion for the Tribe when Steve Spurrier fumbled on the FSU 45 and Howard Ehler recovered for the Seminoles.

With good field position for the first time in the game FSU took a time out to consider the situation. They elected to scare Graves and company out of the state and out of the Gator Bowl.

Tensi dropped back into a pocket that would have kept him safe in a nuclear attack, waited for Biletnikoff to fake his defenders into the stands and then cut loose with the bomb.

Fleet Fred took the pass over his left shoulder on the five yard line and skipped into the end zone for six points and 55 yards. After Murdock's conversion the Gators were looking a bit greener than their natural reptilian hue.

The Floridians tried (not too convincingly though) to treat this as a freak and come roaring back after the kick off. Shannon drilled two passes to lonesome end Charles Casey to get them into FSU territory.

The second pass proved disastrous as Jim Massey and Ehler belted the ball loose from Casey and Maury Bilent recovered. The Gators never mounted another drive until the fourth quarter.

FSU opened the second half by capitalizing on another Florida fumble—this one by Marquis Baezler on the kickoff.

Starting on the UF 34 Phil Spooner and Wayne Giardino ran through the Gator line and Tensi passed over their heads to Don Floyd to carry the Tribe to the seven.

From here Murdock booted the first of three field goals to increase the Seminole lead to 10-0 with 10:37 left in the third quarter. The kick was good for 24 yards.

The teams spent the rest of the quarter trading punts and fumbles and one short field goal try by Murdock. The Seminoles tried of this soon and set up for another score.

This one came in the beginning of the fourth quarter with Tensi pitching holes in the Gator air defense and Giardino breezing through Florida on the ground.

After starting the drive on the FSU 43 the Seminoles stalled on the UF 16. Here Murdock belted his second three-pointer of the afternoon—good for 34 yards.

The fidgety Floridians finally settled down and went 75 yards in six plays for their one touchdown of the afternoon. Key plays in the drive were passes of ten and 14 yards to Casey and a wobbly 35 yard toss to Jack Harper.

Harper blasted his way through the center of the line from six yards out to get the Gators lone score. Jimmy Hall added the point after to bring the ball game to a 13-7 contest with 9:03 left in the game. With his team in serious danger for the first time in the six year UF-FSU series, Graves elected to a desperation move. He ordered an on-sides kick. The try—an attempt to pull out a 14-13 victory—backfired and Seminole Larry Williamson grabbed the ball on his own 47 and ran it back to the Gator 49.

Tensi, Giardino and Floyd propelled the club down field to the UF 21. Once again Murdock was called on to get three points. This one would be for 40 yards. It had to be good to put the game out of reach.

Tensi took a high snap from center, placed the ball on the tee and Murdock stepped into it. He caught the ball low and sent it high and slow toward the goal. It just made it over by one turn of the football and the Seminoles had a victory.

Any come from behind hopes the Gators might have had were squelched by Winfred Bailey and Bill McDowell. Bailey intercepted one desperation pass on the FSU 34. McDowell intercepted another intake next Florida series and returned it 32 yards.

The game ended with Florida still dead in a hole and the FSCW myth demolished by the score of 16-7.

STEVE TENSI AND FRED BILETNIKOFF

WAYNE GIARDINO

... and the rest of the Magnificent Seven kept the Gator backs under pressure all afternoon. Here Steve Spurrier the Florida sophomore quarterback gets blitzed while his protection rolls around on the ground.

Both Florida quarterbacks were held to minus yardage rushing and only short gains in the air. The other backs fared little better as the Magnificents put on one of their best efforts of the season Saturday.

The defense not only stopped the Gators motion they also made them cough up the ball four times on fumbles and twice on interceptions. Howard Ehler, and Maury Bilent grabbed a fumble a piece and George D'Allesandro got two miscues. Winfred Bailey and Bill McDowell each had an interception of a Spurrier pass. McDowell returned his 32 yards in the fourth quarter.

The Magnificent Seven and Formidable Four will get their next test against the other Gator Bowl team, Jan. 2, probably Georgia Tech.

DICK HERMANN

... (below) and the rest of the Seminoles backs completely surprised Ray Graves and the Gators by moving through the vaunted Florida line almost at will.

Keying on the passing of Steve Tensi the team fell down and was unprepared for the slugging ground attack led by Giardino and Phil Spooner. Even quarterback Tensi got into the act and picked up three yards on a sneak for the first down in the second quarter.

The only "success" when the defense had at all was having American Fred Biletnikoff get two catches. These however, were good for 75 yards and set the stage for Keying on Fred left Don Floyd to get seven catches and 85 yards.

Rose Wildes In National Finals For Top Singer

Rose Wildes, a senior, will compete in national finals for the "Singer of the Year" award in Minneapolis next month. A regional winner in competitions sponsored by the National Association of Teachers of Singing, Miss Wildes will represent the Southern region in the competition. Miss Wildes, a voice student of Miss Betty Jane Grimm at FSU, will appear in two campus programs before leaving for the national competition. She will be contralto soloist for the Women's Glee Club Christmas Vespers Dec. 6; and for the Florida State Opera-Symphony association's concert Dec. 11. In Minneapolis, she will compete along with other regional winners, for a $1000 scholarship prize. The winner will also have the opportunity to audition for leading opera houses and studios.

Miss Wildes won the regional student auditions, collegiate division, in 1963. At FSU, she has appeared as soloist with Women's Glee Club, Choral Union, and University Singers. She was featured singer with the Ch'legans in 1963. Her operatic roles include the lead in the FSU production of "Kismet" and the title role in Bizet's "Carmen."

Theatre Dance Group Presents Explanation Of Modern Dance

By PAT FREEMAN
News Editor

Time and space merge with movement to spotlight the birth of a dancer when members of Theatre Dance present an Informal Open Studio Wednesday evening, Dec. 2, in the Dance Studio of the Women's Gym.

Students who have never fully understood the concept of modern dance will have an opportunity to view extended choreography on a "dance about dancing" theme.

The theme, entitled "Etudes," featuring an accompanying narration, will explain and illustrate the dancer's movements in the art of modern dance.

The program has been planned to show the process rather than the finished, with "An Evening in Dance" scheduled for next trimester offering a formal program of modern dance.

A command performance of "The Mathematician," (which won wide acclaim and recognition at last year's presentation of "An Evening of Dance") will be shown with its newly-created companion feature, "Incompensation."

Dr. Nancy Smith, director of the Theatre Dancers, reports that the newest addition to the "Mathematician" will feature quantitative aspects of computers and computation with sound effects to match.

Actual computer scores on tapes will be used to provide music for the avant-garde "Incompensation," and choreographer Pat Katrella promises that it will be another "first" in the field of modern dance.

"Etudes" will develop separate themes on Movement, Space, Time and Gesture.

"A dancer uses space as a swimmer uses water," explained Miss Smith, choreographer for "Etudes."

"We intend to show the development of a dancer, to explain that the studio is a dancer's classroom. We planned the informal studio to explain what the formal evening of dance should be, as a finished product. The studio has been designed to present the workroom of the dancer."

COMPUTERS IN ACTION

Petition Circulated To Honor Biletznikoff

By BOB CORNET

Let it never be said that FSU students don't know how to appreciate a good thing when they see it. This year the good thing is a Gator Bowl bound football team and the school's first All-American -- Fred Biletznikoff.

The student body is saying "Thanks" through a petition started by Senator Chuck Powers and Sec. of State Mike Wigilous and pushed by dorm and Greek senators.

The petition reads: "We the undersigned do heartily congratulate our outstanding 1964 Seminole football team and do hereby endorse Fred Biletznikoff as our All-American, and urge the permanent retirement of number 25 as a tribute to Fred." Powers said that they will present the petition to Coach Bill Peterson and the team next Tuesday night at Sallee Hall, the dorm for the team. He said that the Sophomore Council will first serenade the team and then present the petition with its expected 8,000 signatures.

As of today, said Powers, they have 5,500 names mainly through the efforts of dorm canvassers and campus petition stations manned by APO and Freshman Flunkies.

The petition will be circulated again next Monday at stations in the University Union and Library for students who did not have a chance to sign it before, said Powers. Powers said that Tuesday will be a general Football Appreciation Day at FSU. The team will wear their jerseys and jackets and "... expect a spontaneous show of appreciation from the student body," said Powers. This is the first time in 10 years that the students of FSU have had a chance to show more than their "wait 'till next year" about their football team. The first All-Peterson recruited team has given the school an 8-1-1 record and it's first major Bowl.

A big factor in this success story has been the phenomenal performance of Biletznikoff. He has broken all FSU pass catching records, is the University's first All-American, and is considered the best receiver in the country by scouts and coaches that have seen him this year.

'Quartet-In-Residence' To Give Concert Tonight In Opperman

The newly formed Quartet-In-Residence presents a concert tonight at 8:15 in Opperman Music Hall.

The concert, the quartet's first of three, will feature Edward Kilenyi, pianist.

Bringing together four of the School of Music's most outstanding musicians, the new quartet is made up of Ruth Fossell, artist in residence, violin; Harry Dunscombe, assistant professor, violin; Robert Sedore, conductor of the University Symphony and the State Symphony, viola; and Harry Dunscombe, assistant professor, violoncello.

Music programmed for the concert includes "Quartet in D major, Op. 64, No. 5" by Josef Haydn and "Quartet in G minor for piano and strings, Op. 25" by Johannes Brahms.

Dunscombe has studied at the University of Michigan, at the Conservatoire Royal in Brussels and at the University of California.

Ruth Fossell has made appearances with L'Orchestre Symphonique de Paris (Monteux) and others in Europe, with the Boston Symphony and many seven extensive European tours including Soviet Russia.

Robert Sedore joined the FSU faculty in 1947, and has both taught and conducted symphony orchestras since that time.

Burgin has been virtuoso and associate conductor of the Boston Symphony.

'A Place In Sun' Shown Tonight

The Campus Chaplains are sponsoring "A Place in the Sun" starring Elizabeth Taylor, Montgomery Clift, and Shelley Winters tonight beginning at 7:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

A panel consisting of Dr. Meyer Nimhoff, sociology; Dr. Claude Flory, English; and Dr. Robert Spivey, university chaplain, will discuss the film.

"The purpose of the film and discussion is to explore the film's power to raise critical social and ethical issues," said Spivey.

"The adequacies and inadequacies of this artistic work in helping to understand and grapple with reality will be examined," he added. The movie is free and open to all students.

Gideon Decision Reviewed Today

ELECTRONIC ENGINEERS MATHEMATICIANS

Let's discuss tomorrow

In science and technology, the accomplishments of today are but direction for tomorrow. Why? Simply because resting on the accomplishments of today is a luxury we cannot afford.

In Communications Engineering, where others are content to modify, our mandate is to CREATE.

In Electronic Data Processing Systems, where others are content to innovate, our mandate is to CREATE.

Thus, then, is the philosophy . . . the crux of intellectual thought . . . at the National Security Agency—where the concepts of tomorrow are the problems of today.

So let's discuss the future . . .
yours and ours

If you are a gifted and interested Engineer or Mathematician, we have much in common—including a COMPULSION TO SUCCEED.

The future is contingent upon a constant input of . . . and creative . . . scientific talent . . . the . . . of any institution. Our success is embodied in the technical capabilities of our professional staff. To insure this, scientific employees are encouraged to pursue graduate studies at local universities.

Agency sponsorship. Your future with NSA is a . . . of education . . . early responsibility . . . of . . . usually challenging assignments.

Because . . .
• We MUST create completely new kinds of communications equipment and systems embodying concepts and techniques THAT HAVE NO PRECEDENT . . . antennas, transmitters, receivers and terminal hardware of a most advanced design.

• We MUST assure the complete invulnerability of message content through the novel . . . but never . . . science of cryptology.

• We MUST develop special refinements for computers and electronic data processing systems . . . experimenting with the latest semiconductors, magnetic film and superconductive devices to provide new logic circuits and memory units for increased speed and capacity.

SECOND ROW FSU'ERS

..attending the University of Freiburg under FSU's Modern Languages Dept. plan are (left to right): Gene Allen, Christina Clarke, Elizabeth Moreland, Jerry Naylor, Ouida Swope and Barbara Waugh.

Six Now Studying At Freiburg To Improve Language Grasp

A group of six FSU students is currently taking advantage of the Junior Year Abroad at the University of Freiburg, Germany, sponsored by the Modern Languages Dept.

According to Professor Victor R. B. Oetschlager, the Head of the Modern Languages Dept., the program is designed to immerse FSU students in firsthand contacts with the German language, literature, and culture . . . as well as the German people, their customs, cities, institutions, etc.

Students participating in the 1964-65 program departed on Aug. 17 for Germany and have just concluded a series of six-week courses on German language and culture specially designed for foreigners. They are now eligible to enroll at the University as regular students. While they will receive no credit for these introductory courses, at Freiburg, courses for which they register will receive regular FSU credit and will count toward graduation requirements on the basis of a trimester with similar courses offered at FSU. Although at present most of the students are majoring in Modern Languages, Professor Oetschlager stressed that the program was open to interested students in all fields, provided that they meet the basic requirement of a solid preparation through 2 years of college language instruction.

Comments from students who participated in the initial year of the program have been extremely favorable. For example, Andrea Wright, who returned to FSU from Germany this fall, writes the following reactions to her year at Freiburg:

"I want to study abroad? Sounds exciting, doesn't it? . . . And maybe a little out of reach."

"But the possibilities today are all but unlimited. Through the work and planning of the FSU Modern Languages Dept., students with a desire to study and a little money may take advantage of a trip overseas."

"Money? How much does it really require? Count on spending the amount normally spent at FSU for two trimesters, plus the transportation costs (for 12 months in Freiburg, Germany, it costs around $1200-$1500). Extra travelling and books will cause the amount to vary."

"The trip's just the beginning," exclaimed Miss Wright, "then you gain a new land, . . . another world. And you realize that this is what your history teacher has been talking about all these years."

Miss Wright continued, "Then you discover that this vaguely familiar language being spoken everywhere is what your FSU Prof spoke in your German class."

"Finally, you arrive in the town that will be your home for the coming months, and you're officially a student at the University of Freiburg," she added.

Once abroad, a student is really on his own.

"You soon learn that, although you are not under the pressures of an American University, you have a certain responsibility to the American people, to FSU, to your family and friends, and to yourself. You study a little and with a little effort, you learn a little," said Miss Wright.

"You travel, seeing other nations and their ways of life. You take on new interests and enrich old ones. Culture is all around you. Beauty is there, too. How about the time a Florida girl sees snow for the first time? And there, in the background, surrounding you is the Black Forest, tall and proud up on the mountainsides. This is just a part of Europe . . . and your heritage."

Interested? Dr. Edgard Weber, 332 of the A Bldg, will answer questions concerning the FSU-Freiburg Program.

Style Said Problem

Dr. Nills Erik Envist spoke on "Linguistics of Style" Friday at the English Coffee Hour.

The problem of teaching literature in a foreign language has been a personal problem for Envist.

"What do you do to help a foreigner acquire a sense of style?" he said. Envist gave four definitions of style. The first definition is a shell that surrounds a core of thought, therefore one "surrounds thought with style."

Lost, Found Again

The official University Lost and Found Dept. has been moved from Longmire to Room 201, University Union. This room is on the second floor in the browsing lounge on the patio side.

It is attended by a student assistant and is open every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday between the hours of 2-5 p.m.

All students are requested to turn in any lost and found items here. If it is not open, the articles will be accepted at the main desk in the lounge.

Seminoles Go Gator Bowling

Whoever faces the Seminoles in the Gator Bowl Jan. 2 will have to put up with the same things that beat the once proud Gators: tricky backs, tough defense and a talented toe. Steve Tensi pulled one of the biggest surprises of Saturday's contest when he ran the ball on a fourth and three situation. He got the needed yardage through a group of befuddled Floridians.

This is only the second time that Tensi has elected to run in his college career. The first time he scored a touchdown.

With the "monster" guarding Fred Biletnikoff all afternoon, Don Floyd was able to pull off tricks too. Florida saw his number 81 pull in seven passes for 85 yards. Several of his receptions set up Murdock's field goals.

Murdock's three-pointers were the margin of victory for the Tribe as he put them through the uprights from 24, 34 and 40 yards. The last kick put the game completely out of reach for the Gators.

When the Tribe takes its talent to the $0,000 seat Gator Bowl in Jacksonville it will mean money and prestige for the school and fun for the team. FSU will get approximately $135,000 for playing in the bowl and a nation wide audience over ABC-TV.

'Wednesday Mixers' Smash Records

By MELODIE BETTS

BOWLING: It was an evening for breaking records when the Wednesday Mixers faced the approaches in a position clash for first place last week.

Dave Anderson led the game scoring with a 211. Gary McCallister found the line and rolled a 207-544 set. Bob Oberman also broke the 200 barrier shooting a 202. Dick Mayr came through with a 193-518, followed by Bruce Russell with a 197-508. Other high scores were Gary Hainline's 171-497 and Tom Retter's 197-493.

Mike Selznick held on to a slim five pin edge over Bud Bacon to maintain high average of 163.4. Bacon sports a 162.26 for 27 games.

The 4 Roses took three points from league leaders Kingspins to move back into first place with a 20-12 record as the Kingspins dropped to second with 19-13. The last place Bunnies shot high game and set 444-2361 to move into second place in the team handicap scoring behind the Kingspins 448-2367.

Oberman, a Bunnie, smashed individual handicap records with a 263-680 to move teammate Mike LeBlanc into second place with a 273-674. Dave Peoples retained third place in the handicap game standings with a 256, while McCallister moved into third place handicap set with a 670. Splits felt like one pin spares with Chuck Carr, Sally Drizba and Melodie Betts converting the 5-10, Russell Bill Perry made the 3-10, Don Peoples slid the 6 pin over perfectly to pick up the 6-7-10. Mary Kraus converted three splits for the evening, 5-7; 5-6-10; and the 1-2-4-10.

MEN'S INTRAMURALS: Two tournaments have been scheduled for after the holidays; a preseason basketball tournament with a 16 team limit begins November 30; and the All Campus Weight Lifting Tournament starts December 2.

Dorm independent teams are recommended to sign up in the Intramural Office, Tully Gym, for the basketball tournament.

ATO leads the fraternity volleyball tournament. The semifinals last night pitted UTU against Theta Chi (results were unavailable at press time). The winners of the match take on ATO tonight at 7 p.m. in Tully Gym for the championship.

The Misfits are the strong contenders in the dorm-independent league along with the Majors, BSU, FSU, Geology, the Oak, and Delta Sigma Pi battling for first place.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS: Basketball practices got underway this week with games set to begin after Thanksgiving. Deck tennis and ping pong matches will be played today at 4 p.m. Bowling is set to begin December 5 at 9:30 a.m.

Cagers Fete Staff

Coach Bud Kennedy will fete the faculty and staff this afternoon in Tully Gym at 5 p.m. He will introduce this year's basketball squad and stage a scrimmage. The Cagers open their season next Tuesday night in Tully Gym.

Cross Country Undefeated; Seeking Yacht Club Trophy

FSU's cross country track team added two more wins toward the Yacht Club Trophy as they rolled to an undefeated season downing Pensacola, Auburn, Miami, and Florida twice.

The Yacht Club Trophy is presented to the university winning the most sports in all the combined competition between FSU and Florida.

The cross country team is in its third year having lost every game in its first year of existence, hitting .500 last year and batting 1,000 this season. Sophomore Bill Nelson led the team remaining undefeated in every dual meet. Teammate and captain Tom Graham ran a close second in the meets.

Nelson and Graham along with Irv Watson and Bill Peterson consistently finished in the top six in every match. In the final meet with Florida last week, Nelson and Graham tied for first place.

The freshman team also scored a perfect season defeating Florida and tying with Pensacola. Sidney Merchant led the frosh to their victories. Against Florida last week, the frosh captured the first five places with Merchant leading the pack.

The team travels to Troy Alabama, December 5, for the Troy Invitational dual meets. They will race against the foremost cross country teams in the South, such as Furman, Auburn, Mississippi State and Alabama.

The team hopes to capture the Troy title and will be up for the match according to Coach Dick Roberts.

Class Date Changed: Registration Begins

Classes for Spring trimester will begin Jan. 6 rather than Jan. 7 as indicated in the catalogue, according to a statement issued by the Council of Deans today. This change in classes will provide a dead day between the last day of classes and the beginning of the final examination period.

Changes have been made in registration policies and procedures effective with the registration for the Spring trimester.

All currently enrolled students, except graduating seniors, must pre-register during the period from Nov. 1 through Dec. 11. If students are unable to keep appointment times due to classes, they may report at the earliest time thereafter.

Entry to the pre-registration area will be through the south entrance in the Swanee room. The appointment card, photo ID card, or temporary ID, and a green trial schedule will be required for admission. A detailed instruction sheet on procedures will be issued at the door. Fee payment will be accepted at the Bursar's Office, 105 Westcott, from Nov. 30 through Dec. 18. Checks received by the Bursar during this period will not be deposited until Dec. 4.

On Jan. 4 and 5, pre-registered students will be required to turn in a special "check-in" card at the Union Admissions. It will be required that all delinquent fees be paid prior to check-in. Laundry and Food Plan payments will be located in the admission during Jan. 4 and 5. The special check-in card will be issued at pre-registration. It must be turned in according to the following schedule:

Last names beginning with M-Z--- Jan. 4, 8 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Last names beginning with A-L--- Jan. 5, 8 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Failure to check in as indicated will result in cancellation of a $25 late fee for re-registering.

Interns who will be off campus during Trimester II should identify themselves to station VII at pre-registration for instructions concerning the "check-in" card.

The late fee is increased effective Jan. 1, 1965 from $5 to $25. Students who have pre-registered prior to the Christmas holidays, but who do not turn in check-in cards according to schedule must pay the $25 late fee.

New students or former returning students who do not begin registration prior to 5 p.m. on Jan. 5 must pay the late fee.

Students who do not pay fees prior to 4 p.m. on Jan. 13 must pay the $25 late fee.

Those students who begin registration according to schedule have until Jan. 13, the end of the drop and add period to pay fees without payment of late fee.

THE STORY YESTERDAY

... was rain, rain, rain. FSI students are pictured scurrying out of the dampness into the warm confines of the University Union. Many students have already left for home for the Thanksgiving holidays and most of those left will be doing the same today, giving the campus an air of festivity that even the rain fails to dampen.

SPECIAL GUEST SOLOIST

... for the Women's Glee Club's Christmas Vespers program Dec. 8, will be Carolyn Love Glenn, instructor of music at August. Rae Junior High School. Miss Glenn stands during a practice session with Miss Betty Davis, director of the 105-member choral group.

Miss Davis Expresses Thanks

The following letter was received by Dr. Reid Montgomery today from Miss Helen M. Davis.

"It has been difficult to come down to earth after the experiences of the past week. My family and I are most grateful for all you did for our comfort and pleasure. Nothing was lacking as far as we were concerned. All new buildings are lovely. The students are fortunate having such facilities available to them. Too, they indicate the great growth of the University. I am more than proud that my name was selected for the food service building. This is an honor I had never dreamed could be achieved.

"I was pleased that I had the opportunity of meeting friends and interested people after the dedication ceremony. I appreciated the special conducted tour of the buildings. Dinner in the Davis Building was a most enjoyable experience. Thank you for all that went into the fourth of November a perfect day."

Singers, Band Present Joint Concert

The University Singers and The Symphonic Band will present a joint concert Friday evening, Dec. 4, at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

The concert will feature two original Christmas pieces, 16th and 17th century music, and the Gloria from Bruckner's Mass No.

2 in E minor. Selections from Bach, Wagner and Debussy will be programmed as well as traditional carols from Hungary and Poland. The 80 voice singers will open the program with a double choir motet by Andrea Gabrieli, "Four Motets" by Orlando di Lasso, and a six voice motet, "To Us A Child Is Given" by Heinrich Schütz.

They will sing two folk carols, "Infant Holy" (Polish) and "All Men Draw Near." (Hungarian). Charles Stanley will conduct the Singers in their first group of numbers. He is a doctoral student in music theory and assistant director of the Singers. John Boda, FSI composer and conductor, will take over the group for the presentation of a selection he recently composed especially for the Boda's composition is entitled "Christmas, 1964."

An original composition by Edmund Rubbra has also been programmed. His carol, "Star of the Mystic East," was written for Worcester College, Oxford on a text by C.H.G. Daniel, Provost.

After intermission, the 90 piece band will play "Toccata and Fugue in D minor," by Bach; "Ipsi's Procession to the Cathedral from 'Lohengrin'" by Wagner; and "Fetes from Three Nocturnes" by Debussy.

The two musical organizations will join for the Bruckner number, "Gloria" from "Mass No. 2 in E minor." Manley R. Whitcomb will conduct the combined presentation.

Accompanist for the program will be Lillian Huss.

Meetings, Banquets Fare For SSRF Third Annual Conference

The third annual meeting of the Southern Scholarship and Research Foundation, Inc., kept the past week filled with activities for members and Directors and members from Miami during the meal was pre-arranged by Miss Donna Dickinson, soloist, and Miss Dorothea Harrison, accompanist. Miss Lucy Dyal and Miss Judith Longworth entertained with folk music.

At 1 p.m. members, directors and students holding Foundation Scholarships attended a meeting in Ballroom 5 of the University Union. Music during the meal was pre-arranged by Miss Donna Dickinson, soloist, and Miss Dorothea Harrison, accompanist. Miss Lucy Dyal and Miss Judith Longworth entertained with folk music.

TG Schedule Set

Out! Says Union

As fate would have it, we missed the FSU-UF football game due to a requirement in a scholarship application calling for the results of the morning and afternoon sections of the Graduate Record Exam.

Well, we thought, what has to be, has to be. We will simply have to miss the live action and watch the filmed reports over WFSU-TV Monday night at 10 p.m.

Not having access to a television set at home, we decided to watch the big game at the Student. . .oops, sorry about that bourgeois error. . .University Union.

Putting aside homework and other pressing duties, we eagerly tramped downstairs from the "Flambeau" office to the main lounge where sure enough the game was beginning.

As there were already some 15 to 20 students grouped around the main tv, we prevailed on our kind student desk attendants to turn on the other set. We then settled down to watch the game, joined shortly by some 10-15 more co-watchers.

The first quarter passed uneventfully but at the beginning of the second, our poor desk attendant stood up and announced the bad news. The game would have to be shut off as the ~~Student Union~~ . . . almost made that mistake again. . . automatically shuts at 11 p.m.

To our angry cries of protest, he informed us that he had volunteered to stay as long as the game was in progress in order that we might see it but that the "University" part of the Union had informed him that "rules are rules and the Union. . . we are getting better. . . closed at 11 p.m., game or no game, students or no students.

Well to make a long story short, we didn't see the Florida game.

Go ahead, "University," ask the students to do something for you sometime. Go ahead and see what kind of response you get after these types of little thoughtless actions.

The "University" in University Union is there for a good reason. We guess "student" would have been a bad word after all.

Congratulates FSU

The campus Security Dept. today issued the following statement:

"FSU can take justifiable pride in its student body after the past weekend.

"The days prior to and during the FSU-U of F weekend were probably the most exciting in FSU's history. Ticket shortages, seating problems, pep rallies, and other conditions attendant to intense rivalries and "sell-out" crowds helped fan the emotions of the student body and the community to a fever pitch.

"The rumor mill in Tallahassee worked overtime producing wild tales of anticipated sportsmanlike behavior on the part of our student body. However, as the events showed these rumors couldn't have been further from the truth.

"The student body is to be congratulated on their splendid show of school spirit and their excellent conduct. They set an example to be followed by both Universities in the years to come.

"The FSU Security Dept. wishes to express its sincere appreciation to the students of FSU for their help, understanding, and cooperation during a great weekend."

Cure Only For 'Sick' FSU Student

My eyes kept tearing, my nose running and my throat was so sore that it made sandpaper look like soft, luxurious silk. Yet, I did not despair, as I knew exactly what had to do—get the German measles, or mononucleosis, which ever came first.

You see, I became acutely aware of my ragged physical condition two and a half weeks before I was finally admitted to the FSU infirmary. Upon my first visit, Dr. Black told me that I didn't look very well, and that the only thing he could prescribe was time; he told me to come back in one week time, after which he was positive that I would contract the German measles, and would therefore be classified as "curable."

In the meantime, he said that there was nothing he could do for me, that is except for giving me some sulphur pills, aspirin and horrible tasting pink throat lozenges.

On week later, I returned to Dr. Black's office, via the student I.D. desk and the thermometer room, naturally. Anyway, it seems that I let Dr. Black down—I did not have a whooping case of the German measles, but I presented some sort of problem to medical science, I was entitled to a free trip to the blood department, where, to be quite logical, blood was extracted from my quivering arm. The result was negative. To which I was told that I was as healthy as the pig. The Gators went to their next game. Anyway, since mine is so good, which is a sort of catchy phrase, I again tried to get "sick." I even made it a point to visit every sick person I knew who was doing time in the infirmary. In fact, last week flew by and I had nothing to show Dr. Black except frustration. Now, although it began to get cold, I consented to give it a go, if I knew what I mean. Yeah, I went back to skipping through puddles without shoes, and in twenty degrees temperature no less. However, this time I returned in only three days.

Although I did not have the German measles, or for that fact, ever in contact this silly disease, I demanded space in the infirmary. I had to get sick, in order to be cured, then I couldn't think of a better place to go.

The very first night that I was in the infirmary, my previously normal temperature zoomed to over 103 degrees. It took six days before I was released by the infirmary officials who felt that I was a miserable patient, and that I drank too much orange juice.

Anyway, I believe that I had either pharyngitis, or laryngitis, or maybe both. I asked Dr. Bowden, who relieved Dr. Black one day, what was wrong with me. He said, "You're sick."

There are twelve-thousand students on the denuded campus—this has been one of them. (All names were changed to protect the 17)

Automation Brings Chaos

Back in 1932, as the country tried to fend off the crippling depression, the political and economic scene was often the butt of a Will Rogers joke, as he remarked: "Ours may be the first nation to go to the poorhouse in an automobile."

The philosophical Rogers surmised also that: "You let this country go hungry, and they are going to eat, no matter what happens to budgets, income taxes or Wall Street values. Washington mustn't forget who rules when it comes to a slowdown."

Rogers proved to be more than a humorist. He was a prophet as well.

While the Bonus Expeditionary Force sang:

"Mellon told the whistle. Hoover rang the bell. All Street gave the signal. And the country went to Hell." A hunger march descended on the Ford River Rouge plant in Dearborn, Michigan. Strikes began to increase all over the country as working men demanded recognition for their Union.

In Minneapolis, in 1934, 20,000 workers gathered in the central market place to battle police and armed deputies who attempted to break a trucker's strike and get trucks rolling in one of the just really effective work stoppage in the history of the labor movement.

Unemployment rose from 4 million in 1930 to 11 million in 1932, and to nearly 13 million in 1933.

The Big Depression was upon the nation. Curiously enough, the fore-runner to the greatest economic breakdown the nation had ever known was a persistent pocket of unemployed even during the prosperous years preceding the crash in 1929.

Part of the nation was prosperous. Many of its citizens were destitute. If the prophet Will Rogers were alive today, he might well humorize: "Ours may be the first nation to go to the poor-house on an automated production line."

Two million workers annually lose their jobs to machines at a time when more people enter the labor market than ever before. The number of automated jobs is certain to increase as industry accelerates the automation of its plants, as computers take over factories and one man oversees a production line once manned by hundreds of workers.

Herbert Hoover remarked when the stock market came tumbling down in 1929 and when the country wallowed in misery: "What this country needs is a good laugh."

Some 35 years later, it still is not funny. What this country needs is not the meaningless words of a politician, but a sense of priority concerning the effect of automation.

Thus far, government committees have little success gathering information on automation. Industry

Poor Old Landis Green Subject Of Various Rumors, Comments

By DIANNE MUNYER

FSU drivers in quest of a convenient parking space often refer to the Landis Green, seemingly one of the choicest locations for such a parking lot, as "green" due to a legend in its deed.

This is pure rumor according to E. L. Shaw, business manager of the Landis Green, and a member of the President's Planning Committee. However, Shaw, who is a firm advocate of the Landis Green, said that the need for other things is just here besides asphalt. We're trying to keep some places looking better than a parking lot."

The committee has already begun to make plans to develop Landis Green. Sidewalks will be put where many of students' trodding have paths. A fountain will be built in the next few months.

The committee wants the green to be open, but is doing all it can to improve parking conditions. Every day was a parking lot before the new complex was built. The green was more important, but that's all it happens to parking lots," says Shaw.

USN women first used the green as a social gathering place in 1939 when Landis Hall was built. In those days Landis was "the pride of the campus," according to Edith McCollum, director of housing and a former FSCW student.

"The girls would often gather on Landis and sing or just talk before having dinner in the new Seminole Cafeteria," says Miss McCollum. "The green wasn't as developed then as it is now, and the area on the other side of Landis was rural. In those days of few cars, few boys, and few places to go, the green had to accommodate the 1,973 members of the FSCW student body.

Miss McCollum recalls that the green was especially pleasant to have when the campus was quarantined from dysentery during the war. Civil engineering draftsman Ken Highsmith pointed out that Landis has some of FSU's oldest property. The green was bought in four separate purchases, the first one being in 1907.

The last section, which is adjacent to Landis Hall, was bought in 1923. This mysterious last parcel is "not clearly covered by deed" according to a map of the FSU campus compiled by Herbert Mendenhall in 1952.

Inquisitive students may want to find out just what this means, but most FSU students casually walking and talking on the green in the moonlight don't really care.

Recruiting Team Begins Today

The officer programs team for the U.S. Navy recruiting station in Jacksonville will be recruiting on campus today through Friday. The team will accept applications from senior male students and junior and senior women students to attend the officer candidate school at Newport, R.I. The male officer candidate school is a 16 week course of indoctrination in naval subjects leading to a commission as ensign, USNR, in one of several line or staff corps. From OCS the new ensign will report to one of many stations (Navy Schools) for further training or to one of 800 ships and numerous shore stations in the United States and overseas. There is no restriction on marital status in this program.

The officer candidate school (women) is also a 16 week course. The first half of the course is served as an officer candidate (ensign) after which time the candidates are commissioned as ensign, USNR. The second half of this course is the officer indoctrination and is served as a commissioned officer. After completion of the full 16 weeks the new ensigns are assigned to one of many shore stations in the United States.

The OCS team will be located at the University Union for testing, interviewing and processing. Applications are strictly voluntary. There is no obligation on the part of the applicant.

Poster Racks Up

Poster racks have been installed in four areas of the University Union enabling all university groups to publicize their events and activities.

Any group wishing to place posters in the racks should take up to five posters to the office of the Assistant Director, room 250 of the Union.

The posters will be stamped and placed in the racks by Union personnel. Following the event, they will be taken down by Union personnel. The service will be provided by the University Union at no charge.

All posters must be standard 14 in. by 22 in. The racks are installed on the second floor of the Activities Bldg., the Crenshaw Bldg., the Ticket Office, and the Cafeteria.

Debating Squad Takes Honors At Tournament

For the second consecutive weekend, FSU took top first place honors against teams from Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee.

Members of the FSU Debate Team traveled to Montevallo, Ala., for the Central Alabama Debate Tournament Thursday.

The team of McKinnon and Brennan received a trophy for ranking as the first place negative team. Rice and Schumann were awarded third place with a record of 4-1. The affirmative teams had a total of five wins and five losses.

In total overall points, the FSU team was recognized as second place. Students composing the FSU team are: John L. Brennan, Mac McKinnon, Pat Rice, Jodi Schumann, Beverly Jones, Ronnie Wiant, Fran Wintarschick and Ken Olsen.

Accompanying the group were Dr. Thomas R. King, Director of Debate and Peyton Wyans, a graduate student.

The next tournament will be at the University of South Florida, Dec. 5-7.

On Dec. 3, graduate students, Miss Joan Corey and Mike Cornett will debate the British International Fair velle the Alabama Team at 8 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

WRA To Open Second Sports Season

by WARREN PEACE
Flambeau Sports Writer

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS: The second sport season sponsored by the Women's Recreation Association gets into full swing after the holidays with bowling, basketball, ping pong, and lock tennis.

Basketball practices were held this week. Any team which did not attend their scheduled practice will not be allowed to participate in the tournament. For the first time, WRA is supplying coaches for the teams from the Women's Physical Education Association.

The women's rules have been changed and modified this year according to president Shirley Harrison and the coaching practice will be a help to incoming seniors and undergraduate majors.

There will be a final meeting for the deck tennis participants December 1 at 7 p.m. in the Women's Gym. It is a required meeting for anyone wishing to take part in the tournament. Ping pong games have already begun and the schedule is posted on the bulletin board in the women's gym.

Bowling teams face the foul lines Saturday mornings in two shifts at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m. The teams will roll two game matches and competition will be divided into two categories, scratch and handicap. Any team which did not attend the required meeting Monday night will not be eligible to participate.

FSU SOCCER CLUB

... picked up a victory this weekend over the Brumos Spiders. They beat the Jacksonville squad 10-0.

FSU Kickers Stomp Spiders; Get Even For Earlier Loss

The FSU Kickers completely outmaneuvered, outscored, and outmanned the Brumos Spiders of Jacksonville Sunday afternoon for their most decisive victory of the season.

Having lost an earlier match to the Spider, 1-4, the FSU eleven enjoyed a 10-0 rout behind the scoring of Manfred Ziegler, John Aiken, Ian Gordon, David Cheng, Sonny Dawsey, and Ernst Schubert.

FSU dominated play through out the game with goalies Heinz Haas and Bill Maddux making fine defensive plays. Maddux suffered four cracked ribs when he collided with a Brumo man preventing a score.

The defense contained the Jacksonville team with Bill Jackson, John Keglovich, Dick Goddard, and Doug Padgett filling in at fullback. Martin Matthews and Tom Mather played in the halfback slots.

A buffet dinner was held after the match for both teams and Schubert was voted the Most Valuable Player. FSU travels to Dade City to play St. Leo College, December 5.

Townsmen Defends Tribe Outguesses TV Forecaster

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ever since the Pow Wow, students have been a little leary of letters from the townspeople of Tallahassee. We, happily, received a copy of a letter today from a Tallahasseean who is a proud Seminole fan.

George Sausel has even gone so far as to defend FSU against the "attacks" of a national TV show. Jack Lescoulle, the Fearless Football Forecaster of the Today show, predicted a Florida victory Saturday because of their tougher schedule. Upon hearing this Sausel sent this letter.)

Dear Jack Lescoulle:

On your FEARLESS FOOTBALL FORECAST this morning from the Florida Show Case—I noted that your choice was Fla. over FSU. Your reason for this decision was that Fla. had played the tougher schedule. When Fla. played Auburn, Jimmy Sidle was sidelined with a shoulder separation. Well, while making my statistics I made extra copies for you which are attached here. I'm right here on the ground floor and I'm selecting FSU over Fla. and will get this under way to before game time tomorrow. At the game I'll contact you again. (In the statistics Sausel pointed out that neither team had been scored in either the first or third quarters.)

A remarkable thing happened in Tallahassee at Doak Campbell Stadium—FSU remained scoreless in the first and third quarters. The Florida Gators, however, were scored upon in the third quarter.

The first time this season FSU Seminoles.

Final score FSU 16, Fla. 7. Florida has a tough schedule, especially when they encounter opponents like Alabama and FSU.

Soloist Featured In Glee Club Vespers

An instrumental choir and a special guest soloist will be featured on the annual Women's Glee Club Christmas Vespers program Sunday.

A university tradition heralding the holiday season, the Vespers will be held at 8 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium. The FSU Brass Choir, directed by Dr. William Creamer, will present an instrumental prelude. Carolyn Love, instructor of music at Daytona Raa Junior High School, will be featured as guest soloist. The 105-voice Glee Club, directed by Miss Betty Jane Grimm, associate professor of music, will relate the traditional Christmas story through the reading of the Scriptures and musical selections. The music ranges from sacred motets of the 16th century to compositions arranged and composed especially for them by local composers.

Miss Glenn will open and close the program with portions of the program "The Holy Night." The invocation and benediction will be by the Rev. Virgil L. Bryant, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Gainesville, Ga.

Arranged in four sections, the program includes several carols arranged by Dr. Irvin Cooper of the Music school. Carols from Poland and Bohemia will also be featured. A pair of compositions by Hans Leo Hassler and Giovanni Palestrina, will open the program. Featured will be "The Prophecy," a composition written for the Glee Club by Richard D. Powell, graduate student.

The Glee Club will sing five of the "Alfred Burt Carols." The Rev. Bates G. Burt and his composer son, Alfred, collaborated on the carols. Originally they sent them out as Christmas cards, but recent publication has made them available for presentation.

Other selections include "List! The Cherubic Host," from Gault's oratorio, "The Holy City," and "The Gate of Heaven" by Randall Thompson.

Soloists for the program will be Sandra Cooper, Judith Blue, Martha Wilson, Jennifer Black, Christina Cody, Susan Webber, Joyce Graham, Donna Dickenson, Rose Wildes, Tanka Lupiewicz, and Lana Sue Faulk.

'Legend' Editor Says Prizes Set

"Legend" editor, Carolyn Christiansen, announced today that the literary anthology will offer $200 prize money for the best short stories and poems submitted to the magazine.

The new editor hopes that this incentive will help promote interest in "Legend" and encourage students to offer writers to offer their work. Miss Christiansen said that she plans to give readers as diverse selection of material as possible. Therefore, she will accept not only short stories and poetry, but also essays, sketches, satires, and plays. Any student currently enrolled in the University may submit stories. Those submitted to the "Legend" are read and rated by its literary staff. Christiansen would like to publish as much good material as their $1000 budget will allow. Anyone interested in writing for the magazine should leave his stories typed and double spaced at the main office of the Activities Building or Room 202 of the "Legend" Office, 352 Activities.

Dr. Griffin To Speak Tonight In Library

By DICK SMITH
Flambeau Ghost Writer

Dr. James Bennett Griffin, nationally known anthropologist and archaeologist, now with the University of Michigan, will speak tonight at 8 in the Library Lecture Hall. The discourse topic will be "The Old Copper Culture." Admission is free; FSU students and faculty and the general public are invited to attend.

Griffin received the Viking Medal and Award in Anthropology in 1957, in recognition of the outstanding contributions he has rendered to date both in anthropology and archaeology.

Kansas born, Griffin received his Bachelor's from the University of Chicago and his Ph.D. from the University of Michigan where he was a Fellow in Aboriginal North American Ceramics from 1933 to 1936.

Among books authored by Griffin is the important work "The Lower Mississippi Alluvial Valley, 1940-47," published in 1950. He served as editor for the comprehensive work "Archaeology of the Eastern United States," published in 1952 which quickly became a standard reference work for archaeologists.

The old copper culture, about which Griffin will speak, was first described by him through field trips to the Great Lakes area in 1953, 1956, and 1957. The culture existed on the Wisconsin and Michigan borders of Lake Superior between roughly 3,000 and 1,000 B.C.

A distinctive feature of the old copper culture was, as the name implies, its implementation for ceremonial and utilitarian (7) purposes of cold hammered or beaten copper which was found in abundance in the area in exposed surface "veins."

The Indians used copper for the manufacture of ornaments such as earrings and gorgets (pendants), and also for such tools as axes and knives.

It is held by many archaeologists that the culture was eventually overshadowed or absorbed by the Hopewell culture of Ohio, one of the most well known yet enigmatic expressions of pre-Columbian Indian culture on the North American continent.

Griffin has been director and curator of archaeology in the Museum of Anthropology at the University of Michigan since 1946 and professor of anthropology since 1949.

He is a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a former president of the Society for American Archaeology.

The noted archaeologist and anthropologist will speak under the auspices of the FSU Dept. of Anthropology and Archaeology.

New Ideas

Elwyn Thomas Talks Tomorrow

Justice Elwyn Thomas of the Florida Supreme Court will be the speaker at the annual Founder's Day meeting of Phi Beta Kappa at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Justice Thomas will speak on the work of the Judicial Council at the meeting of the Alpha of Florida Chapter in the Starry Room of the school of Business.

A member of the Florida Supreme Court since 1938, Thomas twice has been the chief justice. He was appointed the first chairman of the Florida Judicial Council in 1953 and has served as a member of the American Judicial Council since 1951. In 1963 Thomas was elected an honorary member of the Alpha of Florida Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa in recognition of his service to the cause of justice.

Mark Focus

New sets, new people and new ideas will mark tonight's showing of "Focus" at 8:30 p.m. on WFSU-TV. "We're giving the show a more pleasing personality," said John Perkins and Wayne Cowart, co-producers of the "Flambeau" sponsored show.

The show, built around a more modern set, will add a new female host, a "Greek Goddess" for Greek letters, and a "Calendar Girl of the Week."

Perkins said that the major part of the show will still be devoted to current and topical events on and off campus through "in depth interviews by Wayne."

He also said that the "Calendar Girl" will be used in the announcement section of the show and that she will be a different girl each week. Tonight, said Perkins, "Focus" will feature interviews with Vaughn Mancha, FSU Athletic Director, about the Gator Bowl game and with Bud Kennedy, FSU basketball coach.

Perkins also said that new staff members, Nancy Dale and John Hester, would host a brief showing of Winter Fashions on tonight's show. Tonight's show will also introduce the first "Calendar Girl of the Week."

"We have also been receiving production help on the show from the WFSU-TV television production class for research, interviews, and winter fashions," said Perkins.

"Focus" was started this year as a joint effort by the "Flambeau" and WFSU-TV to increase the comprehensive coverage of campus and campus related events.

To the Editor:

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. has been chastised by a variety of people for his methods in leading the Negro toward the goal of full civil rights for all American citizens under law and practice. This letter seeks not to defend his every move nor work, but does speak out in defense of the Nobel Peace Prize award which was recently bestowed upon him.

The derogatory references made in the Oct. 28 issue of the FLAMBEAU are based upon some ignorance of and prejudice toward the subject, and written response either way not occurring since that time indicates to me a general campus apathy or agreement.

I am both surprised and deeply concerned by this conclusion and should like to present these further thoughts on the subject in order to further stimulate students and faculty to deeper consideration of a topic which vitally affects us all.

America's attitude toward civil rights is one important yardstick by which the other nations of the world measure our integrity and intent, and they observe and judge ever more closely as the years go by. Future alliances between our nation and others, particularly those newly emerging on the African continent, and continued maintenance of those already established, has come to depend more and more on the progress of the movement of the American Negro to achieve the class of citizenship purportedly guaranteed him by our Constitution.

Racism throughout history has been the direct antagonist of the peace we so devoutly claim to be seeking, therefore one of the most important ingredients of this peace is the ability and willingness of persons of different ethnic origins and color to live together on as equal terms as possible; both within our own great nation looked upon as a world leader, and between all nations of differing racial and cultural characteristics. The underlying problems facing us from Arab-Israeli and Turkish-Cypriot clashes are no less serious nor much different that those facing us here at home between segregationist-integrationist. Fear and ignorance of things new and different from what we now know has been a human failing since humans got started.

Any group able to promote its own cause has been quick to seize upon these weaknesses to overcome the opposition. Communism as practiced today has sometimes effectively exploited racial differences for just this purpose. By its very scope the outcome of the civil rights struggle in the United States will vitally effect the future of world governments, and this then is an important area in which these agents of totalitarianism have concentrated their efforts to best advantage. Both support and opposition to attempts for full civil rights benefits for the Negro have been utilized in various ways by these Communist oriented intellectuals, effectively confusing many of our citizens who do not or cannot follow the pattern of events in this struggle wisely or objectively. But one universal understanding seems to have made itself clear to the majority of the world's population—the Nobel Peace Prize is intended for that person judged to have contributed most to the cause of peace and human understanding annually. This intent has been established and reinforced over a period of time sufficient to my acceptance of its integrity and theoretical truth.

This intent is parallel to the avowed goal of Dr. King—to diligently and actively pursue a way of life, not just for the Negro but for all Americans, that practices equality of citizenship in public and private opportunity.

Dr. King has long been a disciple of the late Mahatma Gandhi, whose policy of non-violence was a principle factor in helping India win political freedom from Great Britain at the end of World War II. Dr. King decided a similar approach was suited to the Negroes' fight to end racial segregation in the United States.

In carrying this message to the people of this country, Dr. King said to have "the very peculiar knack of leaving a wavering audience and fury wherever he goes." I am his personal observer, and I know those people who cannot cope with the rationale of ideas, for whatever reason, must resort to force to express themselves; therefore, perpetrating a philosophy of endless destruction until the one left has no one to dispute or even disagree with or for. But how do we win the idea?

Dr. King proposes and practices a war of ideas on discrimination—the cause of all men-oppression held subjugated by widespread greed, fear and ignorance. He made mistakes along the way, certainly. Such as the arrest of Lt. Gilligan in New York City, a derider, without apparent justification. He is not perfect in his qualified recipient for the Nobel Peace Prize; but he is the only one who got it because he was the only one to have a profound effect on the peace of a country in his racial struggle for civil rights, for the benefit of all American citizens. He has been recognized as a great leader and an encouragement in the constitutional progress of our nation's beings.

'Scientific Establishment' Discussed

"We must recognize the truth that we have created a scientific establishment reflecting our diversified, pluralistic society," said Dr. Clifford A. Lakoff, speaking on "The Scientific Establishment and American Pluralism" in the Government Dept.'s Lecture Series, he gave a two-part definition of a pluralistic society.

First he distinguished between public government and private government such as industrial corporations and labor unions. Secondly, he noted the pluralism in public government caused by the decentralization of power and evidenced by the great diversification of governmental agencies.

"We cannot understand the situation of the United States or of the world without regard to science and technology," Lakoff stated.

"What happens in society depends on whether we let science and technology run their course or whether we direct them," he continued.

In early American history, the Founding Fathers generally opposed government aiding scientific research, he noted but now the government either directly or indirectly supports the majority of the research work done in this country.

"We must balance the blessings of growth with the curse of bigness. The government must develop the capacity for progress with as much decentralization as possible," he said.

He attributed the pluralism found in the nation's scientific establishment to the American tradition of decentralization. As evidence of the pluralism, he pointed to the vast number of science agencies in private industry, the universities and the executive branch of government and even certain committees recently established in Congress to deal with scientific and technological advances.

When questioned on the feasibility of creating a coherent scientific policy, Lakoff replied that it would be difficult to do it because of the trend toward decentralizing and the problem of comparing different scientific programs having different goals.

He added, however, that some system of priorities is needed and that those who make the final decision on a project would represent all viewpoints on it.

Ticket Office In Student Section University Union

The main ticket office, formerly in Westcott, has moved to 140 Student Activities Bldg., in the University Union.

Tickets for all university events except athletic contests may be obtained from the office, which is under the direction of Mrs. Ruth Tate and will be known as the Ticket and Information Office.

Access to the first floor office is from Call Street and motorists may park on nearby Woodward Ave.

The new office, a part of the University Union, will be open from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Announcements

There will be a general meeting for elementary and secondary education students interning Trimester II tomorrow at 4:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

The American Finance Society will hold its Spring Trimester Organizational meeting, Wednesday at 7:30 in B-217 in the School of Business. Members and prospective members are invited.

Plans will be discussed for next trimester's activities, which tentatively will include field trips, guest speakers, and numerous other activities.

Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell will be the guest of honor at this month's meeting of the Dames Club on Wednesday at 8, Alumni Villa Recreation Hall.

Mrs. John Stead will demonstrate some unusual Christmas decorations and PHT (Putting Hubby Through) Degrees will be awarded to those women whose husbands received their degree in August or this December. Members are asked to bring 15 Polyanthus.

Scholarships Set For Asian Study

The vast panorama of dynamic change that is Asia today is brought to life in a scholarship program created especially for American graduate students in Asian-American affairs.

Scholarships are sponsored by the East-West Center, a national institution established on the islands of Hawaii.

American students must major in a field keyed to Asia or the Pacific in subject matter and in language study. Studies are principally at the University of Hawaii, with opportunity also for qualified students to take a field study in Asia or the Pacific area.

The East-West Center's award-winning administration and residence halls are located on the University of Hawaii campus in palm-studded Ma'aloa Valley.

The two-year awards also provide tuition, books, health insurance, a small personal allowance, and travel to and from Hawaii.

Applicants for the 1965 scholarships should submit their completed applications and credentials by no later than Dec. 15.

Approximately 100 scholarships are awarded annually to American graduate students. Current total enrollment is nearly 600 scholarship students from 24 Asian-Pacific countries and the United States.

Further information may be obtained from the Director of Student Selection, East-West Center, Honolulu, Hawaii 96822.

BYE-BYE GRIDDERS

HELLO CAGERS!

Sooners Win, Gator Bowling

Its all over but for the desert--served up January 2--for the Tribe gridders but the rest of the nation's teams didn't finish up until this weekend.

Alabama moved into position to become the national champion by turning back a determined Auburn 21-14 Thanksgiving Day. Notre Dame was shoved out of contention by Southern Cal 20-17.

Favored Oklahoma had to overcome costly fumbles to defeat rival Oklahoma State 21-16 for the 19th straight year. Oklahoma will be the Seminoles' opponent in the Jacksonville Gator Bowl.

The score should have been more conclusive but the Sooners fumbled the ball away five times--three times in scoring position. As it is they racked up 35 yards on the ground and 107 in the air.

The Slumbering Gators came out of The Great Sleep Saturday by defeating the Miami Hurricanes 12-10 in Gainesville. The Floridians had to come from behind with two second half touch downs by Jack Harper and Larry Dupree.

In Pro Draft activity Fred Biletnikoff was tapped by the Oakland Raiders of the American Football League in the second round. Steve Tenet was chosen by the AFL's San Diego Chargers in the fourth round.

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

Cold turkey sandwiches in front of the TV; Army sinks Navy; Southern Cal takes Notre Dame that the Knute is NOT back; and football rules the sports world. But from the gym comes the faint thump, thump, thump of a basketball.

While football breathes its last for another year, the cagers of America are getting set for their extended season under the boards. FSU kicks off its year tomorrow against Valdosta State at 7:45 p.m. in Tully Gym.

The seminoles' first game will signal the start of a busy season opening with the Tribe playing five games in nine days. After Valdosta they play VMI at home. Then the cagers meet Auburn and Alabama on the road. Next Wednesday they face Florida here.

FSU Coach Bud Kennedy will open the year with most of his high hopes resting on the shoulders of 6-7 Gary Schull. Schull was a stand-out last season as a sophomore. He averaged 12 points and seven rebounds a game. In basketball where speed makes the difference Schull should have an edge on his last year's effort. He has lost ten pounds and is quicker than ever said Kennedy.

Joining Schull in the FSU quimer will be frosh stand-out Ron Malmgren at one forward and Bill Peacock at the other front position. At the guards will be vets Bobby Lovell and Pete Gonzales.

The big man for Valdosta will be Miami Dade transfer Letson Plant. Plant has led his team to two victories already this year over Alabama colleges.

The game will be preceded by a freshman contest at 5:30 with Chipola junior college.

Theatre Dance, Play This Week

By PAT FREEMAN

Motion captures Time and Space in dance tonight and tomorrow night at 7:30 in the Dance Studio of Montgomery Gym when members of Theatre Dance present an Informal Open Studio.

The Informal Studio will demonstrate the birth of a dance in three selections, "Ftudes," "The Mathematician," and "Incompulation."

"Ftudes," a dance about dancing, will illustrate the dancer's involvement with Time, Space and Motion in modern dance. An accompanying narration will explain each step in the intricate art of modern dance. Musical arrangements for "Ftudes" are by Lester Erlich. Planned to show process rather than product, costumes and light effects will not be used. A formal program, "An Evening of Dance," is scheduled for next trimester to show the finished product in a complete program of modern dance.

Dr. Nancy Smith, director of Theatre Dance, explained that "The studio is a dancer's classroom, a place for fact and fantasy, knowledge and speculation, for studies of the craft, a laboratory for the imagination..."

A repeat showing of last year's hit number "The Mathematician" will be shown tonight and tomorrow night with its new companion piece "Incompulation."

By MAX COURTNEY

A Russian play, "The Cherry Orchard," one of Anton Chekhov's major works, will be the next production by University Theater Players, tomorrow through Sunday.

Characters in this play are beset with problems common today, according to the director of the play, Dr. Arthur Dorlag. Dorlag says Chekhov's intent in writing the play was to show life as he saw it--frustrating, comic and pathetic--all at the same moment.

"Chekhov," Dorlag stated, "was unhappy with the structure of plays as he found them, is felt that they were too simple, too unlike life. So he decided in later years to write plays which would not have a protagonist or in which all characters would be protagonists."

"He also demonstrated that he disliked traditional categories of tragedy, comedy, and melodrama," in his earnest desire to show life as it really is, he set the tragic and the comic side by side using one as control over the other. So the audience finds itself at one moment caught up with the pathos of a situation and then is shown, in the next moment, that the same situation is just as truly comical.

"Our production attempts to follow his intent," Dorlag said, "and is richly larded with a wide range of comedy, most of which serves to undercut and control the seriousness of the action."

Class Officials Control Caroling For Blackwells

For the season for the annual Christmas caroling festivities at President Blackwell's home begins, the Interclass Council, composed of all officers from the freshman, sophomore, junior and senior classes, will coordinate caroling activities with the Blackwells.

Blackwell has been designated as the caroling night. The Blackwells will show all caroling groups between the hours of 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. Any organization on campus may participate, but each group must follow the schedule their appearance. To set up a specific caroling time, groups must contact Miss Marie Williams, program director of student activities, room 315 of the Student Union, Box 2231.

Every fall this festivity has heightened the close of the fall trimester at FSU. Since the Blackwells will be away shortly, it will offer many groups the opportunity to wish them a Merry Christmas farewell.

Petition Circulated

A petition to honor the team captain and retire football jersey 25 of the senior of Fred Bilenkoff will be circulated on campus today from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will be working at the polls. At 8:30 tonight, the petition will be given to Bilenkoff and Coach Bud Kennedy, the other co-captain of the team. The Sophomore Council will circulate at this time. It is hoped that the petition will have 8,000 signatures by then.

GLEE CLUB SOLOISTS

Live WFSU-TV Broadcasts Set For First Two Seminole Games

The first two Seminole home basketball games will be televised live over Channel 11 today (Valdosta) and Thursday, (VMD), at 7:30.

The purpose of the telecasts, according to Athletic Director Vaughn Mancha and Coach Bud Kennedy, is to stimulate interest in basketball in North Florida. Mancha and Kennedy, offering their full cooperation to WFSU, anticipate very successful results from this television venture. John Hoy, former Sports Director for a local station, will be the play-by-play announcer, and he will interview Kennedy during both the 15-minute pre-game warm-up and again after the game.

The games will be taped for playback by a Jacksonville affiliate the days following the game. Duane Francenchi, Program Manager for Channel 11, speculates that if the shows are successful, the FSU-Florida basketball game will be telecast Wednesday, Dec. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Playboy Gives Double Award

The second annual Playboy Club International Scholarship has gone to FSU hotel and restaurant management majors Stanley G. Lawson and Stephen Prince.

Prince and Lawson will share the $500 award provided by Playboy Clubs, according to Peter Dukas, director of Hotel and Restaurant Management.

Sunday Vespers Features Soloist Carolyn L. Glenn

A Tallahassee music instructor, Carolyn Love Glenn, soprano, will be soloist for the Women's Glee Club Christmas Vespers Program, Sunday at 5 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Miss Glenn is an instructor of music at Augusta Rae Junior High School. A former member of the Women's Glee Club, she graduated in 1956 with a degree in musical education. She served as treasurer of the Glee Club.

Miss Glenn, who has continued her voice studies with Miss Betty Jane Grimm, director of the Women's Glee Club, will sing in Carnegie Hall in New York on March 12.

Miss Glenn will open and close the four-part program with Adam's "O Holy Night." Eleven soloists will be featured in selections throughout the program, which relates the traditional Christmas story through the reading of the scriptures and musical selections.

Soloists are Sandra Cooper, Judith Blue, Martha Wilson, Jennifer Black, Sharon Cody, Susan Webber, Joyce Graham, Donna Dickenson, Rose Wildes, Tanka Lukiewicz and Lana Sue Paulk.

Programmed for the traditional Vespers program is music ranging from sacred motets of the sixteenth century to contemporary music. One of the featured numbers will be an original composition by Richard D. Powell, FSU graduate student. It is entitled "The Prophecy."

Senate To Meet

Women's Senate will meet today at 4:30 p.m. in room 346 of the University Union.

... Cherry Orchard

Chekhov seems strangely modern to us in 1964 (this play was written in 1903), Chekhov was an existentialist. He saw man as lonely, isolated, unable to establish meaningful contact with his fellow men.

So intense is this isolation that Chekhovian characters oftentimes don't seem to listen to one another, and at other times when communication becomes almost possible they tend to withdraw into themselves instead of exploiting this possibility.

Dorlag noted that Chekhov's characters seem to be as isolated as modern man feels himself to be.

In time, since play was written the most controversial issue surrounding the play is what sort of play it is. Its premiere under the direction of Stanislavsky came out as a stark tragedy and this reputation has tended to haunt the history of the play. Chekhov insisted he had written a play full of rich comedy.

"In developing that some people have called 'dark comedy,' Chekhov buried melodrama beneath the surface of 'The Cherry Orchard' and sought to counteract the traditional kind of audience response by juxtaposing the serious and the comic very deftly in repeated moments of the play."

Dorlag further stated that "no play could be thought of as completely serious in which characters move like cows, make speeches to bookcases to prevent serious moments of the play from being sustained."

"Sometimes these are broadly comic, sometimes that are as subtle as playing a serious scene in the foreground while audience watches in background party guest dancing and laughing in adjoining ballroom." "The Cherry Orchard" is a play without a leading role, according to Dorlag. Each of the 15 characters is "a drama in himself." Included are peasants, wealthy land owners, a perennial student, a merchant, a governess and other servants.

A single circumstance—that the cherry orchard is going to be sold to pay off a debt—links many of the people in the play. This pivotal circumstance was used by Chekhov as symbol rather than part of the plot.

The cast for this play include: William Aldridge, Lopakhin; Rich Copburn, Yasha; William Adler, Yevikhodov; Martha Meyer, Charlotta; Terry Rogers, Gaye; Laurel Holliday, Anya; and Louise Beddingfield, Varya.

Tickets are now one sale. They are priced at $1.50 for the public and 75 cents for students. Advance sales will be at the Central Ticket Office in the Union.

The latest addition to "The Mathematician" features quantitative aspects of computers and computation processes with sound effects to match the avant-garde dance.

Actual computer scores on tapes will be used to provide music for "Incompulation," and choreographer Miss Pat Kairalla has promised that it will be another first in the field of modern dance.

"Studies" will develop separate themes on Movement, Space, Time and Gesture as seen in a dancer's dimension.

"A dancer uses movement in the same way that a painter uses paint or a writer uses words... he twists, bends, slides, jumps... he develops a vocabulary of movement..." said Miss Smith.

U.S. Must Support 'True' Reform

Godless, atheists, communists, and bloody butchers were just a few names which were applied to the Mexican revolution. The two main reasons for this response were the appropriation of the U.S. oil refineries and the Mexican government's attempt to break the stranglehold of the Catholic church. Today, many years later, the policy of the U.S. is to praise the progressive Mexican revolution.

I think that there is a considerable parallel between the Mexican and the Cuban revolutions. This is further pointed out by the refusal of Mexico to break diplomatic relations with Cuba (Mexico is the only state in Latin America that hasn't done so).

There are many reasons given for Castro going communist. The one that makes the most sense to me is that because of U.S. pressure he could not carry out the reforms necessary. They were under the tremendous pressure and attack Mexico underwent during her revolutionary period.

Castro had a revolution in mind much more encompassing than the Mexican revolution. He wanted to go along with Castro's revolution as long as he was "allowed" to rule.

My friend Sr. Leuvenne recently wrote about the half-heartedness of Cuba. I agree with him in regard to the students who were misled there.

They didn't describe accurately a utopia. They were apparently blinded by their dogma.

But I take issue with Sr. Leuvenne which is difficult to disagree with. Cuban, but I worked with some Cubans this summer, and they expressed different points of view.

One had some six half-brothers, and he was a revolutionary activist while in Cuba. At the U. of Havana, his father lost some one million dollars in the capital stock, owned by him. The other Cuban felt that Cuba is a criminal dictatorship, and that the U.S. is a criminal dictatorship.

First that Castro propped up Communist until he saw that the U.S. wouldn't allow him to go as far as he wished.

Second they both believed that "masses" are now devoted to power. They were before Castro's revolution.

Honesty seems to be lacking in Cuba (corruption helps to bring about the downfall of Batista).

Presently many Latin American U.S. economic imperialism is keeping them from advancing. This was expressed by one of the mentioned Cubans in regard to the Alliance for Progress.

He expressed hatred for a free Kennedy because the Alliance was designed by the "Eastern Bloc" interests for the U.S. benefit.

Reading some of the press of the radical left is quite disappointing. It has made several statements.

First, the U.S. is going to be willing to support any true reform and all the implications of Latin America. Second, the term applied to number of Cubans in Latin America.

FLAMBEAU FORUM

Freedom Is Paradox

To the Editor:

"Liberals are utopians. In pursuing a utopian vision, they encounter obstacles; other people. Their humanitarianism becomes selective, broad tolerance becomes intolerance of those who do not share their vision; the world becomes polarized into "goods" and "bads" just as it is for their conservative opponents. "Liberals are humans; subject to the same passions, impatience, and selfishness as everyone else. In pursuit of liberalism, one can endanger the very values we advocate," joined Dr. L. M. Killian, co-author of "Racial Crisis in America," in a talk to Liberal Forum.

The liberal ideal is characterized by broad humanitarianism and egalitarianism. The liberal has faith in the possibility of progress through reason. He believes in the freedom of the individual and its varying degrees, a pacifist. Yet there is a latent conflict between some of these values.

We require tolerance, yet any organization, in order to survive, must have a definition of subversion and

No Wishbone For Homeless

To the Editor:

Just a note of cheer from the Landis Ford during Thanksgiving dinner. While I am a member of the trimonster-worn students (I use the term loosely) trampled each other in their frantic demonstrations (a naughty word) to reach transportation terminals, we-seconds of wishbones-lugged our several foot lockers (sufficiently capacious for a four night hitch) to the primitive living quarters of FSU's temporary ward for homeless girls. It is called the Wreck Room. Which also describes how we left it.

We are allowed such simple pleasures as leaving the electrical apparatus functioning until 2 a.m. or essaying to disturb as many of the inmates in the 30 bunks with telephones, radios, typewriters, and record players; not to mention the slot machine. As for that hallowed American dinner of dimers—you should have tasted the Great Turkey a la Tormaine Tavern!

The authorities have our best interests in mind, of course. For instance, the Rodent Center was conveniently closed on Friday and Saturday nights. This clever administrative strategy left us free to fraternize the local bachelor flats. See the frustrated flooglehorn player who has four whole days to practice and can't get into the locked music building.

See the nervous crowd filling out a late-parolee entrance form by the "Right Director's" office: Where were you?—"Wouldn't you like to know?" How returned?—"Bashed." With whom?—"Napoleon."

Gale Finlayson

heresy if internal discord is not to destroy it. The problem is to define the limits as broadly and informally as possible.

Dr. Killian also sees a conflict between the goals of egalitarianism and freedom. Attempts to create equality to be implemented at the expense of freedom and vice versa. As an example, he cited the fact that equality for Negroes has been most achieved in the most authoritarian environment of our society—the armed forces.

Another dilemma is that there must sometimes be a certain amount of authoritarianism in order to assure any freedom at all. When young nations attempt to give their people the same amount of freedom we enjoy in the U.S., the result is sometimes chaos. A small group gains power and freedom disappears.

In view of these dilemmas, Dr. Killian is pessimistic about the rate at which progress can be made toward the utopian goal. "No generation will be born, in which men sin because there is no temptation in which they will not suffer, in which they will not have to make difficult decisions between right and wrong, in which they will not have to do things which they are desperately afraid to do."

The paradox of freedom and order is perplexing, but the worst thing is to quit struggling, to be afraid to make a mistake. Inform yourself well, then work energetically.

Portrait Exhibit Premiers Today

By SARA ANN SLOAT

In exhibit of portraits of FSU's twenty presidents opens this afternoon at 3 p.m. in the University Union Art Lounge, at the top of the escalator.

Coffee will be served from 3 to 5 p.m. with the presidents of the fraternities and Thomas D. Bailey, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, as special guests.

The L'Avant Studios exhibit is being presented for two reasons. One is to make these presidents better known over the campus, and the other is to introduce an interesting and revolutionary new method of portraiture.

The basic mechanics of living color portraits begin with exposing a special Eastman Kodak Company color negative material. A critically light-corrected portrait lens is used in combination with professional Sbride speed lights.

These lights emit an extremely short but brilliant flash of light at a pre-determined color temperature degrees kelvin, just suited for the color.

Processing is done by the Internationally known firm of Gittings, Inc. of Houston, Texas, the most precise color portrait lab in the world. Previews are shown in living color and are mounted in a portfolio.

At L'Avant Studios they are projected to wall size, in color, with the aid of an opaque projector.

Finished portraits are agnapped by craftsmen at Gittings in Texas through a wide variety of professional sizes and with the most modern electronic equipment. Finally, they are surfaced with a morocco leather type finish.

The portraits for the President's Salon were made at L'Avant Studios by Master of Photography, David A. Avant, Jr. The studios are operated by Avant and his brother George. Each president is shown in a three-quarter pose in evening gown with a variety of props and backgrounds employed.

Graduate School Dean Folger To Begin Leave Of Absence

Dr. John K. Folger, dean of the FSU Graduate School, will begin a two-year leave of absence early next year to assume duties as director of the Commission on Human Resources and Advanced Education in Washington.

He plans to return to FSU early in 1967.

In Folger's absence, Dr. Thomas Lewis will be acting dean of the Graduate School.

While in Washington, Folger will direct a broad study of college educated manpower in American society. He will study needs for scientists, humanists, doctors, teachers, and other highly educated persons.

The study will also examine the capacity of the educational system to supply the people needed by the growing economy. Special attention will be given to forces which block the flow of talent into needed specialties, as well as forces which assist in supplying the nation's manpower needs.

Folger has been at FSU since 1961.

A native of Atlanta, he earned his bachelor's degree from Emory University in political science, his M.A. in sociology from the University of North Carolina, and his Ph.D. in sociology from North Carolina.

The Commission on Human Resources and Advanced Education is sponsored by the American Council on Education; the National Academy of Sciences; the Social Sciences Research Council; and the American Council of Learned Societies.

Musician's Kin Following Path

Christoph von Dohnanyi, a grandson of the late Dr. Ernst von Dohnanyi at FSU, is following in the footsteps of his distinguished grandfather as an orchestra conductor, according to the weekly "Bulletin" published in Bonn by the Press and Information Office of the German Federal Government.

Dohnanyi, now 35, at first planned to enter the legal profession followed by his father, the newspaper said. His father, Hans von Dohnanyi, was a senior justice official who was Reich court counselor in Leipzig.

"He belonged to the resistance movement actively plotting against Hitler, and was executed by the Nazis after the last abortive assassination of July 20, 1944."

"His mother's brother, Dietrich Bonhoeffer, one of Germany's most esteemed theologians, was killed by the Nazis for having taken part in the same cause."

Young Dohnanyi, although he had decided on law, "met his grandfather, Ernst von Dohnanyi, in the United States. The elder man, a composer and pianist, gave his grandson lessons, and an incentive to music as a career. He became a conductor and rapidly achieved an international reputation."

The "Bulletin" continued: "When the old Hanseatic free city of Lübeck appointed him as its chief conductor in 1956, he was only 27. Since then he has completed two concert tours of the United States."

"He has appeared with the Berlin Philharmonic, the Vienna Symphony and the Amsterdam Concertgebouw. He has also performed in the Deutsche Opera of Berlin, the Milan Scala and in Vienna, Salzburg, Athens, Lisbon and Barcelona."

"The Cologne Radio Symphony Orchestra has recently appointed Dohnanyi its chief conductor."

Announcements

Two graduate student debaters will meet the British Traveling Team in Moore Auditorium Thursday at 8 p.m. to debate "The Influence of Television in Politics."

The debate is being sponsored by the Speech Dept. and the University Union Public Committee.

The 1963 Tally Ho's are now being distributed in room 336 of the University Union until Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. If Tally Ho's are not picked up by Friday, they will be put on sale.

Tomorrow will be the last day for Organization Contracts to be turned in to the Tally Ho office for the 1965 Tally Ho.

Robert H. Powell, Jr., Southeastern Advertising Manager for "Woman's Day Magazine" (a Fawcett Publication), will give a practical demonstration on "How to Sell Magazines as a Medium of Advertising" tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in room 220, School of Business.

All interested students and faculty may attend, especially advertising, communication, and public relations students.

Alpha Delta Sigma, national professional advertising fraternity, will conduct its last meeting of Trimester tomorrow at 7:15 p.m. in room 220, School of Business.

The University Union Pool will remain open through Dec. 11 on a trial basis.

It was publicized last spring that the pool would be closed today through March 1. However, because of several requests the pool will be open through Dec. 11, from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m. for recreational swimming.

A daily attendance check will be made in order to decide whether or not the pool will remain open during January and February.

Dr. Richard L. Pfeffer, associate professor of meteorology at FSU, has received a $19,896 grant from the United States Weather Bureau for research on the atmospheric energy cycle.

Pfeffer, who joined the faculty this fall, is a former senior research scientist at the Lamont Geological Observatory at Columbia University. He will continue research in atmospheric dynamics at FSU under support of the Office of Naval Research on a contract being transferred from Columbia University.

Cagers Meet Valdosta Tonight

By BOB CORNET

The time hath arrived to shift gears, and reshape thinking from low flying halfbacks to high jumping forwards, and from goal posts to baskets. Tonight the FSU cagers will open their season against Valdosta State in Tully at 7:45.

Coach Bud Kennedy will introduce his 17th Seminole basketball team to the campus tonight, but one man will be missing from the starting team. He's Jerry Shirley, second leading scorer last year and leading scorer the year before.

Shirley has not been able to practice with the team since he has been out with a case of mononucleosis. Kennedy said that this will definitely hurt the team at the beginning of the season. He said that Shirley probably will not start practicing with the team before the Vanderbilt Invitational Tournament.

"The rest of the men," said Kennedy, "are looking good and we should have a good year." He said that the team should do well in spite of its small size and tough schedule. "We have one of the toughest schedules of any independent in the country."

To equalize the odds Kennedy said that he has "definitely been working on a lot of things on defense. We use a pressure type defense to keep the bigger teams off balance. We are going after them."

In the next nine days the Seminoles will meet the tall SEX squads at Auburn and Alabama and then come home to meet the University of Florida. The Gators feature a front line of two men 6-10 and the other 6-5. The Seminoles average 6-3 up front.

Offensively, said Kennedy, FSU will continue with the "shuffle." This enables the Tribe to keep the ball moving until they get an opening for a shot. "Because of our size we have to go for the percentage shot," concluded Kennedy.

3,000 Student Tickets

BEARDS IN PROFUSION

will be seen at tonight's opening of "The Cherry Orchard," by Anton Chekhov. Left to right are W. Terry Rogers, (Gayev); Bill Adler, (Vepkhodov); and Bill Aldredge, (Lopakhin).

'The Cherry Orchard' Opens In Conradi; Runs Through Sunday

"The Cherry Orchard," Russian playwright Anton Chekhov's story of life as he saw it, opens at 8:30 tonight in the Augusta Conradi Theatre and will run through Sunday. Tickets are now on sale at the Central Ticket Office in the University Union. They are priced at $1.50 for the general public and $1.75 for students.

The play, without a leading role featured, presents each of the 15 characters in a drama into themselves.

Characters range in roles from peasants to wealthy land owners, with the selling of the cherry orchard to pay off a debt as the only major link in the play. Chekhov designed the orchard's selling as a symbol rather than as part of the plot.

Dr. Arthur Dorlag, director of "The Cherry Orchard," explained that Chekhov's purpose in writing the play was to present life as it existed for Chekhov—in it's frustration, pathos and comedy—all at the same moment.

"The author," Dorlag added, "was unhappy with the structure of plays as he found them to exist by other playwrights. He felt that they were too simple, too unlife like. Chekhov decided to write plays which would not have a protagonist or to write plays in which all characters would be protagonists."

"Chekhov demonstrated his dislike for traditional categories of tragedy, comedy, and melodrama... and, in his earnest desire to present life as it really is, he set the tragic and the comic side by side, using one as a control over the other. So the audience finds itself at one moment involved in the pathos of a situation only to be shown that the same situation is just as truly comical in the next minute."

"Our production of 'The Cherry Orchard' attempts to follow this intent," Dorlag added, "and is spiced with a wide range of comedy, most of which serves to undercut and to temper the seriousness of the action."

Chekhov appears strangely modern to most viewers in 1964 (the play was written in 1903).

A block of 3,000 Gator Bowl tickets--more than 35 per cent of all the tickets available for sale by the University--has been reserved for FSU students, Director of Athletics Vaughn Mancha said today.

Tickets for the Seminoles' Jan. 2 clash with Oklahoma in Jacksonville's Gator Bowl will go on sale to students at 8 a.m. this Saturday Dec. 5.

"We are hopeful 3,000 tickets will be sufficient for our students who will be able to attend the game," Mancha said.

"One thing for sure. Coach Peterson, the players, and all of us hope as many of our students as possible can be on hand in the Gator Bowl to support our team against Oklahoma," he added.

Of the 3,000 tickets set aside for students, Mancha said 2,400 of them will be sold at Tully Gym on a single first-come, first-served basis beginning at 8 a.m. on Saturday. The additional 600 tickets will go on sale to married students only at Campbell Stadium (east side) at 8 a.m. Saturday.

Ticket windows at both Tully Gym and Campbell Stadium will remain open Saturday until 4 p.m., or until tickets are exhausted.

To give the best possible service for distribution of the 2,400 tickets, four ticket windows will be open at Tully Gym's Athletic Ticket Office.

On presentation of his identification card, each student can purchase one ticket at Tully Gym.

For the married student booth at Campbell Stadium, married students can purchase two tickets upon presentation of the identification card. All Gator Bowl tickets are priced at $6 each. Students can purchase tickets with cash or with check or money order made payable to the Florida State University.

Single tickets not claimed on Saturday will be sold next Monday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Tully Gym. All student tickets remaining after Monday will be placed on sale at Tully Gym, Tuesday morning at 8.

Mancha said that all of the 3,000 student tickets are centrally located in the South Stand (old inside stand) of the Gator Bowl.

Based on the present ticket allocation, Mancha said the three priority groups established (after student allocations) are:

1. 1964 season ticket holders,
2. Seminole Boosters and contributing alumni,
3. Other alumni and the general public.

Season ticket holders may purchase one Gator Bowl ticket for each 1964 season ticket purchased. If any tickets remain, persons in priorities 2 and 3 may order a maximum of two tickets.

Mancha said all priority orders must be received in the Athletic Ticket Office by Monday Dec. 7. Second priority orders (Boosters and contributing alumni) will be filled beginning Dec. 8 and any tickets remaining will go on sale to the general public, students included, on Dec. 10.

Any unsold tickets must be returned to the Gator Bowl Association by Dec. 10.

Mancha emphasized that all orders must be accompanied by check or money order payable to the Florida State University, and that persons ordering by mail should include an additional 25 cents for handling charges. No student orders will be accepted by mail and no orders will be accepted by telephone.

Mail orders should be addressed to GATOR BOWL TICKETS, Athletic Ticket Office, Tully Gym, Tallahassee, Florida.

Oxford Debating Team Meets FSU On TV Problem Tomorrow

The Oxford Debating Team will join FSU debaters on the topic "That the power of television in politics is increasing, has increased, and ought to be diminished, tomorrow at 8 p.m. in Moore Auditorium.

Oxford debaters are Jonathan W. P. Aitken and Michael Beloff. They will each take opposing sides teaming with an FSU debater, Joan Corey and Michael Cornett. Aitken is the editor of the Oxford "Tory," and was president of the Oxford University Conservative Association, summer 1963. He is studying for the Bar, journalism and politics.

Beloff is a member of the Liberal party, and past president of the Oxford Union. He intends to become a Barrister.

Miss Corey is a graduate student to government who has debated throughout her college career at FSU. Cornett, a graduate assistant in debate, gained his experience at Ottawa University, Kansas.

The debate is sponsored jointly by the speech dept. and the University Council Forum committee.

COMBINATION CONCERT SCHEDULED FRIDAY

The University Singers and the Symphonic Band will present a joint concert Friday evening.

The concert will feature two original Christmas pieces, 16th century 17th century music, and Florida from Bruckner's Mass No. 2 in E minor. Selections from Bach, Wagner, and Debussy will be programmed as well as traditional carols from Hungary and Poland.

The 80 voice singers will open the program with a double choir motet by Andrea Gabrieli, "Four Moets" by Orlando di Lasso, and a sixvoice motet, "To Us A Child Is Given," by Heinrich Schütz.

They will sing two folk carols, "Infant Holy" (Polish) and "All Men Draw Near" (Hungarian). Charles Stanley will conduct the Singers in their first group of numbers. He is a doctoral student in music theory and assistant director of the Singers.

John Boda, FSU composer and conductor, will take over the group for the presentation of a selection he recently composed especially for them. Boda's composition is entitled "Christmas, 1964." An original composition by Edmund Rubra has also been programmed. His carol, "Star of the Mystic East," was written for Worcester College, Oxford on a text by C.H.O. Daniel, Provost.

After intermission, the 90-piece band will play "Toccata and Fugue in D minor," by Bach; "Elsa's Procession to the Cathedral from 'Lohengrin'" by Wagner; and "Peters from Three Occurrences," by Debussy.

The two musical organizations will join for the Bruckner number, "Gloria" from "Mass No. 2 in E minor." Manley R. Whitcomb will conduct the combined presentation. Accompanist for the program will be Lillian Burns, a freshman in the School of Music.

Dorm Is 'Progressive'

"United We Stand" is the cry of FSU's newest addition—Nathaniel Moss Salley dormitory. Many of our beloved tribe have been under the misconception that the occupants of this ultra-modern building are in two different dormitories. As character members of Salley, we would like to correct this idea. All of our activities in the dorm are designed for co-ed enjoyment. Many of the old traditions have been changed to meet this new level of living. The ceremonial "tea" initiated in all the other women's halls has had a facelift; the residents of Nathaniel Salley now enjoy Wednesday "coffees". The time for these coffees was changed to 9 p.m. so that the men residents participating in sports to attend.

Through the help and guidance of the co-ed soci 1 committee, entertainment for the coffees and other social functions has been outstanding. Ranging from bootenannies and transfer skits on dorm life to classic music and billiards, the Salley resident is seldom lacking entertainment.

The students take an active part in governing dormitory policies and functions. With the able leadership and assistance received from the residence counselors, the student Board of Directors is formulating policies and procedures to make Nathaniel Salley an outstanding co-ed living.

One of the outstanding features of this arrangement, as noted by the present occupants, is the better-suited atmosphere for study. Due to the hall's location and the room arrangements, study habits are enhanced without interruption; therefore, it is hoped that this new residence hall will continue to be an upper-class dorm.

As the new occupants moved into Nathaniel Salley this year, many doubts concerning the success of such an arrangement were aired, but the promising results of this new venture have surpassed all expectations. The residents and counselors of this new "experiment in living" readily agree that Nathaniel Salley is a tremendous success and a progressive step in university housing.

Blah! It's 'Cool' To Be Care Less

It is definitely cool not to care. Florida State has a general undercurrent of pseudo-sophisticated indifference which I will hereafter refer to as blah. We are not unique in this respect. Blah is sweeping the nation. Regrettably, young people are particularly susceptible.

"I really couldn't care less." How often we say and hear this. We don't care about school—the trimester's a grind. It's ridiculous to be concerned about world affairs—what can we do? Besides, you can't ever be sure of waking up tomorrow. We are afraid to care about other people—it's so much easier not to get involved. You can't get hurt that way. The future is of little concern—oh, hell—live for today, tomorrow will take care of itself. We see something we believe in ridiculed—it's better to keep quiet and stay out of trouble. It's just not worth all the bother.

Look around you—every personal or campus problem is viewed as blah. It's all a game and we all are losers.

We live in an insecure world surrounded by socio-political disasters: automation, urban riots, nuclear war, unemployment, inflation, depression, China, Russia, segregation, Viet Nam, etc. We live in a revolutionary world, one that has some respects is frightening.

We are also at a stage in history which is in itself unstable. It is time to question, to search, to decide, to understand. What are we? Where am I going? What are the answers? Man for ages has sought answers. Why are we the industrial ones? We, who should be among the most enthusiastic searchers for truth. Why are the words "under surprise, openness, mystery" used and expectation strangers to us?

The more revolutionary we are, the more desperate its need for a leadership, people with their feet on the ground. Where are the leaders? Are there any among us?

Yes, a few, but they are not in the pseudo-sophisticated world of care. Some wear a mask of indifference perhaps even without knowing it. Others are self-proclaimed everyday types on their way to where. It's great to have a place where for only then do we know how and someday become leaders.

Some frantically pursue the search for purpose. Others are indifferent—perspective—but they are not the ones who pursue.

Each of us is more than a product of a biological existence. It can be a reason for our existence.

"The world is full of answers" people over extending themselves.

CO-ED DORM

... really is "co-ed" as students watch entertainers at coffee social.

SU Nominates DCIP Candidate

has been announced that FSU nominates one student for the Department College Intern program.

The competition is open to juniors, seniors, and graduate students who are returning to school in the fall of 1965 for another year of study.

The program is especially geared toward students studying international affairs, economics, government, foreign trade, and other social; and disciplines utilized in the administration of foreign policy. Winners must be citizens of the United States, have an overall average of 80 or better, and be interested in public service career in international activities.

Each nominee must write an essay of approximately 500 words expressing his or her desire for career employment in the State Department.

Those considered by the FSU Senate Committee, students must submit their 500-word essay to Dr. John C. Cary, 221 History Bldg., Tallahassee.

Selections are made by the Governor of State acting upon recommendations of colleges.

FSU Cagers Start Right, Drop Valdosta State

By BOB CORNET

Led by high scoring guard Bobby Lovell with 22 points the Seminoles opened up the 1965 basketball season by swamping Valdosta State 81-57 in Tully Gym before a packed house last night.

The game was highlighted by sloppy play, scoring bursts by the Tribe, a spirited Rebel team, a "Bob Cousy" behind the backpass by Pete Gonzales, and foul minded referees who almost spent FSU's 6-7 center Gary Schull started the Seminoles out on the right foot by tipping the opening jump to Ron Malmgren. Malmgren took the ball down field, and waited for the Tribe shuffle to set up.

It didn't take long for guard Lovell to get open in the left corner of the court. He set, jumped and then had the honor of getting the first two points of the 1965 season.

Valdosta couldn't do much in the way of hitting the first time they got the ball and the Tribe again took the ball down field. This time they were thwarted on the floor but picked up one point on Malmgren's foul shot.

The Seminoles picked up two more points the next time they got the ball. Gary Schull had Rebels running all around him but managed to get the ball from the foul line anyway. With 17:11 left the score stood 5-0 Tribe.

The Rebels got on the score board when Mike Terry took Bobby Ritch's tip and popped two from the outside. Bill Peacock quickly retaliated by sinking a long shot from his left corner.

With the scoring ice finally broken both teams suddenly warmed to the idea on rallying. Lerson Plant got two for Valdosta. Gonzales, Lovell, and Schull all were good from the foul line and FSU was ahead 11-4.

Tommy Johnson tried to put the Rebels back in contention with two points but these were offset by Lovell from the corner. Ritch again tried to get something good and shot for two more.

The Rebels and Seminoles then traded baskets with Valdosta taking a slight percentage edge until they came within three points of the Tribe at 16-13.

The Seminoles decided to come alive again and picked up six quick points before the Valdosta score board could make any changes. After the Seminoles picked up one more point the Rebels began to sneak up on them again.

They were as close as 24-17 before the Tribe moved out of reach for good in the first half. Capitalizing on opportunities from the foul line the Tribe went into the locker room with a 12 point edge, 36-24.

The Seminoles came out of their midway skul session like their howling namesakes looking for a massacre. They scrapped the first half's loose zone defense for a tight man to man that kept the Rebels off balance.

Big guns Lovell and Malmgren began to blast the Valdosta defense until the Tribe owned a 16 point lead at 46-30. Lovell was hitting from everywhere while soph sensation Malmgren popped from the corners like a machine.

The Garnet and Gold Indians had pushed the score to 50-32 before the Valdosta team could recover from their poise and try to get back into the ball game.

Aided by fouls and slopping passes the Rebels hauled themselves within 12 points. But again the Tribe spurred ahead on the shooting of Lovell, Malmgren, Peacock, and Bill Phillips.

With seven minutes left in the game the Rebels received another setback. Three of their starters, Plant, Tommy Johnson, and Bobby Ritch, fouled out. This gave the Tribe an even better chance to build up a fat lead.

Coach Bud Kennedy then sent Gonzales back in for the Seminoles to administer the coup de grace. He hit one hand long shots and spared the Tribe to a strong finish in a sloppily played contest.

The Tribe met the Rebels attempt at a fast break throughout the second half with a 3/4 court and full court press that forced sloppy passes and hurried shooting by the Valdosta cagers. This pressure plus the Rebel loss by fouls gave the Tribe their 81-57 victory.

GARY SCHULL

... starts the Seminoles on the road to victory with the opening tip-off. The ball went to Ron Malmgren and then to Bobby Lovell who shot it for the Tribe's first field goal of 1965.

GARY SCHULL

... 6-7 center for the Tribe ignores Valdosta State defenders to get two points on this jump shot. Schull's shot was the second basket for the Seminoles.

BOBBY LOVELL

... goes up in the air for two of his game leading 22 points. He later scorers and sparked the Garnet and Gold to an 81-57 smashing of Valdosta State College in the Seminoles' season opener.

Coach Peterson Says Thanks For Students' Team Support

Turn about is fair play for Coach Bill Peterson, Iie, in a gesture of Oriental politeness, returns the thanks of the student body for a magnificent season with thanks to the students.

Peterson said that the football team appreciated the fine support that the student body had given the team all season. He said that this played a big part in the Seminoles' outstanding 8-1-1 season.

Last night the students returned his thanks when they presented a petition to the team thanking them for the successful year. The presentation was made at Sallee Hall, the players' dormitory.

The petition also urged the permanent retirement of Tribe co-captain and All-American flanker Fred Biletnikoff's jersey, number 25. Biletnikoff has been named to the NEA, Football Magazine, Look Magazine, and TV Guide All-American squads.

He will appear on the Johnny Carson show Friday night with the Look team.

Rugged Curriculum Faces Student Meteorologists

A rugged curriculum filled with courses like Calculus I and II, 12 or more hours of physics and meteorology and courses with titles like atmospheric dynamics and atmospheric thermodynamics await 31 new freshmen who enrolled this fall at FSU with the intention of becoming meteorologists.

After completing their bachelor's degree the best student among the group will be qualified to step immediately into a job with the US Weather Bureau, or may get equally good jobs with the Air Force or in industry.

Several of the students probably will stay for graduate work and will qualify for research jobs, either in the Weather Bureau or other agencies.

Whether a student is interested in a bachelor's degree or an advanced degree, he should come to the University with more than just an interest in the weather. Interest is important but, they should take as much mathematics as they can in high school.

As many as one-third of the students who start out as freshmen fall along the wayside and fail to get a meteorology degree.

At FSU, which awards approximately one-fifth of all the bachelor's degrees in meteorology given in this country, freshmen students electing meteorology as a major immediately plunge into a study of meteorology. It is not until the junior year that a student becomes a departmental major and plunges heavily into meteorology itself. And there is still much required work to do in physics and math, along with 15 suggested math electives, 11 in physics and three in statistics, to mention only some.

There are now about 70 departmental meteorology majors at FSU. The Weather Bureau now hires only graduate meteorologists. The old sub-professional jobs in the bureau have largely been eliminated by advancing technology, and companies or research groups do the work formerly done by meteorologists.

Students getting a master's degree may also land a job in the Weather Bureau or may do research for industrial firms or research groups. Their training is not sufficient for meteorology teaching in college. Students going to a Ph.D. at FSU train for careers on the frontiers of weather research and frequently also for university teaching.

There are now more than 40 students going toward graduate degrees.

'Pinafore' Plays

"H.M.S. Pinafore", an all-time Gilbert and Sullivan favorite will open in the Thomasville Municipal Auditorium Monday under the auspices of the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation. The production will be presented as the second in the current series of the Thomasville Entertainment Foundation Concerts.

The opera was designed and directed by Sir Tyrone Guthrie, one of the top theatrical producers of the era.

It was originally presented for the Stratford Festival in Canada, has toured New York and London and is hailed by critics as the "freest, most imaginative" version of the classic.

Mail order requests for tickets are being handled in the order received and may be made by writing Thomasville Entertainment Foundation, P.O. Box 162, Thomasville, Ga. All seats are reserved and are priced at $5 each.

Vivacious Describes Dean Vivian Duxbury

By BEVERLY JOSEPHSON
Flambeau Feature Writer

The term "vivacious" could appropriately describe Miss Vivian Duxbury, dean of nursing.

Unusual as it may seem, Miss Duxbury states that she was born three years after the death of Florence Nightingale in the second decade of the 20th century.

She graduated from a five year program at the University of Iowa. To fulfill the three year experience requirement before obtaining her Master's degree, Miss Duxbury taught in Illinois. Afterwards she attended Teachers College, Columbia University, and later taught in New York State.

In Connecticut she acted as principal and director of a nursing school. For ten months, Miss Duxbury was Director of Nursing and Nursing Education at Orange Memorial.

Here, at FSU Miss Duxbury has kept very busy. She has served as president of both the Florida Nurses Association and the Florida League of Nursing. Miss Duxbury also works on the Board of Directors and is honored in "Who's Who."

Miss Duxbury stands behind her department's philosophy wholeheartedly. This philosophy states that a nursing student will be prepared to assume professional nursing responsibilities and to contribute to our society. Miss Duxbury nursing program is one in which a graduate will be educated in basic clinical concepts, experience, plus the theoretical methods of assuming leadership roles wherever she desires to work.

There are four main objectives in the philosophy of the school of nursing. The first one is to help the student develop the basic knowledge, skill, understanding and attitudes for sound professional nursing practice in beginning nursing in various fields of nursing.

The student also learns to assume increasing responsibilities for the nursing care of patients, with special emphasis on the dynamic interaction which promotes the therapeutic plan.

Thirdly, one is expected to be a foundation on nursing and general knowledge which can be mobilized for continuing professional growth and effective community living.

The last objective is to assist the student to develop awareness of personal responsibility for the health and welfare of this region, a focus for universal health.

At the close of the interview Miss Duxbury stated, "What we need is a new building, and you can get me on that."

Met Begins 26th

Special preparations have been made for all members of the University community to hear broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera Saturday as it celebrates its 25th anniversary on radio, according to the Silver Anniversary Music Committee.

The silver anniversary program will be broadcast over WFSU-FM which is a member of the Metropolitan Opera's 120 member radio network.

High fidelity, FM equipment has been installed in the music listening rooms adjacent to the main desk in the lounge of the University Union.

Opening the season on Saturday, Dec. 5, at 2 p.m. will be the new production of Donizetti's "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Claus Searches For Meteor Fossils

When another "carbonaceous chondrite" strikes the earth, Dr. George Claus, FSU biologist, will be among the first to view it.

Previous investigation of such meteorites by Dr. Claus and Fordham scientist, Bartholomew Nagy, have turned up what appears to them to be fossils of one-celled plants which once lived somewhere on another planet.

The two scientists first discovered the apparent fossils in 1961 while examining a carbonaceous chondrite which fell near Orgueil, France in 1864.

Later they cross-checked their findings with five other similar meteorites.

Claus found they contained fossilized "organized elements," which were similar but not identical to earthly algae and organic chemical compounds.

The different kinds of fossils discovered by Claus are minute, far more so than simply invisible to the naked eye. Measured in scientific terms, most of them are approximately 12 microns in diameter, or about 1/2,000th of an inch.

To study the infinitely small fossils, Claus and Nagy photographed them with an electron microscope with a magnifying power to bring them clearly into view.

The two scientists originally found five different types of microorganisms, varying in shape from round to cylindrical, to those having six to 12 sides. Since then, they and others have found more than 30 different types of supposed fossils. The fossils, Claus says, are composed of organic compounds—which resist acid and react to biological stains in the same way as earthly organisms. They also have the distinctive shape and surface structure of earthly organisms.

The origin of the meteorites is unknown. Claus and Nagy's discovery has been challenged by two University of Chicago scientists, Frank Fitch and Edward Anders. They detect organic compounds in chondrite samples, but challenge the claim that the fossils are those of microorganisms or that they are indigenous to the meteorite.

On the other hand several other scientists have come forward to support the Claus-Nagy discovery. J. D. Bernal of the University of London, after studying slides of the fossils, identified them as being of organic character.

H. Skuja of the University of Uppsala, Sweden, also reported finding microfossils in two chondrite samples. Frank L. Staplin, a Canadian microfossil specialist, likewise reported finding fossils "of unknown affinities or age" in an Orgueil sample.

Dr. Claus, a Hungarian by birth has traveled widely since his departure from Budapest in 1956. The scientist did not participate in the rebellion of that year, but "it was an opportunity to leave," he says. Since that time, he did research in Vienna, Philadelphia, South Africa, and New York before coming to FSU.

Hunt Gets Research Award For Language Usage Study

Professor Kellogg W. Hunt of FSU received $1,000, a citation, and a plaque for his research study, "Differences in Grammatical Structures Written at Three Grade Levels" Friday night when he received the N.C.T.E. Distinguished Research Award.

It is the first time in its 54-year history, that the National Council of Teachers of English awarded one of its members the Distinguished Research Award.

Hunt, professor of English and chairman of written communication, has described the differences in structure of language used by average children in fourth, eighth, and twelfth grades. He found that as children mature, they expand noun structures in their sentences, not their verb phrases or modifiers of verbs.

A committee consisting of G. Robert Carlson, of the University of Iowa, Theodore Clymer of the University of Minnesota, and Albert Markwardt of Princeton University chose Hunt's study because of its valid implications for classroom teaching.

TODAY

Today is the application deadline for the Graduate Record Exam to be given in January.

Undercover Work Offered Students

An opportunity to dig in England is being offered to college students wanting to spend next summer in Europe in an interesting way.

Volunteers may help to reveal the secrets of a Roman villa, an Iron Age hill fort, or the structure of a medieval town or Anglo-Saxon cathedral before they disappear, perhaps forever. Expanding housing programs, city centre redevelopment and new highway projects in Britain today have opened many new possibilities for archaeological investigation.

Students may help in this work, earn credits, make international friends and receive training in archaeology, by joining a program sponsored by the Association for Cultural Exchange, a British non-profit organization.

Volunteers first join a three week seminar for training in British archaeology and excavation techniques at Westminster College, Oxford.

Total cost of the program is $575 including roundtrip air transportation from New York. Part scholarships are available to suitable students with a "B" plus average.

For further details write to United States Representative, Dr. John H. Sloum, Association for Cultural Exchange, 202 W. 10th St., New York, N.Y. Closing application date is Jan. 8.

Grant Awarded FSU

A grant of $42,610 has been awarded to FSU by the National Science Foundation for a summer institute in mathematics for secondary school teachers.

Next summer's institute will be the fifth of a series of such math institutes held at FSU since 1961. Some 30 persons are expected to attend. They will be selected by the mathematics department. Of the 30 participants, more than 20 are expected to have been participants of the previous summer institutes of the series.

The institute will be held June 17-Aug. 12, under the direction of Dr. James E. Snover, associate professor of mathematics.

DIGGING IN THE PAST

... and touring England with shovel in hand, students may apply for an Archaeological Grant for a year's work and study.

Announcements

The University Union lost-and-found has 15 pairs of prescription glasses of which some are sunglasses. They may be identified between 2 and 5 p.m. in room 201 Activities Bldg. of the Union.

1965 "Tally Ho's" may be purchased in room 336 of the University Union Activities Bldg. They are $3.

Circle K will not meet for the remainder of Trimester I.

The Association for Computing Machinery Members will meet today in 301 Love Bldg. at 4 p.m.

Dr. J. F. Traub of the Technical Staff, Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., will be the speaker at two meetings of the Association. He will speak on "Generalized Sequences with Applications to the Discrete Calculus." He will speak again at 7 p.m. on "The Principles of Formula Construction" and "Carvers in Mathematics and Computation."

The Marketing Club will be sponsoring a toy sale in a trailer near the Business Bldg. from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Dec. 7-11.

Steve Guse(es) Brunner, 3-0

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

In a phenomenal come from behind effort Steve Guse won the FSU Tennis Tournament by defeating Stew Brunner in straight sets, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6, Tuesday.

Tennis coach Lex Wood, formerly FSU's number one tennis star, called Guse's effort "superlative tennis". He said that because of his outstanding showing here Guse may play number two or three on the Seminole net squad this year.

What made Guse's win so amazing was that he had lost seven varsity and freshman player on the squad before the tournament. Wood called this a truly great comeback.

FSU will go for two tonight when they play the soldiers of the Virginia Military Institute on the basketball court of Tully gym, at 7:45 p.m.

The Seminoles are fresh from a home victory over Valdosta State College, 81-57. The big score came more from the Rebels inability to beat the full court press, and inability to hit, than from the Tribe's stunning offense.

Coach Bud Kennedy should have the links worked out of his shuffle before the Tribe hits the tough middle of the schedule. The Florida game Wednesday should tell.

More honors for FSU's all time all everything, All-American, Fred Bilenkoff. He was named to the UPI second team as an end. Let's hope Alf shows a little more perception and Fleet Freddy is on the first team where he belongs.

Tully's nice-as-a-gym. But a "Big Time" basketball field house it isn't. After 16 years Bud Kennedy would like a new home. His teams can attract the tenants.

SPORTS ON CAMPUS

By BILLIE G. GRUFF
Flambeau Sports Writer

The sailing Seminoles lost the Centerboard Sloop Championship this weekend at Lake Bradford. The event, sponsored by the South Eastern Intercollegiate Sailing Association, will race in Flying Junior Class Sloops.

Sailing club Commodore Herb Elphick expects a turnout of seven teams including Tulane, Vanderbilt, the University of Georgia, the University of Florida, Miami-Dade Junior College, and St. John's River Junior College.

At the keel for FSU will be Elphick division A, and Bob Waldrup, division B. This is the second intercollegiate regatta held at FSU this year. The first, held in September, saw the Seminoles win by a close margin over Miami Dade in the Florida Championships.

WOMEN'S INTRAMURALS: An election meeting is scheduled for this afternoon at 4:15 p.m. in the Women's Gym for all the Unit Managers of the dorms and sororities to vote on next trimester's officers.

Gilchrist plays Magnolia on the basketball courts at 4:15 p.m. along with Reynolds and Sally Hall. In table tennis, Vickie Rice meets Elizabeth Symes, Cheryl Anton takes on Angela Hanna, Carol Leston plays Marjanne Stanford, Carol Clements battles with Phyllis Roberts and Carol Shoers drew a bye.

Bowling begins Saturday morning at 9:30 a.m. with 11 teams facing the foul lines. At 11:00 a.m. 8 teams vie on the approaches. The schedule is posted in the bulletin board in the Women's Gym.

SOCCER CLUB: The Kickers travel to Dade City this weekend to play St. Leo Abby. After defeating the Brumos Spydres 10-0, the team is victory conscience for this match according to coach Bob Pace.

CROSS COUNTRY: The undisciplined cross country team leaves for the Troy Invitational in Alabama this weekend. They will race against the foremost cross country teams in the South, such as Furman, Auburn, Mississippi, and Alabama.

SG Officials Attend Oklahoma Concave

By STEVE PRENTICE

John Mertling, student body president, Jack Cannon, men's vice president and Bob Rackleff, Secretary of inter-collegiate and public affairs at FSU recently returned from Oklahoma City and the first annual convention of the Associated Student Governments of America.

Approximately 75 schools were represented at the convention. Students from as far west as California and as far east as Florida attended.

Most of the work of student government officials was on the constitution of the organization, according to Mertling.

It was quite a gratifying experience to see so many students sacrifice all of their Thanksgiving days to work to establish an organization of this kind," said Mertling.

Positions Filled By Union Board

A meeting Wednesday night, the Union Board filled positions on the Board of Program Council.

Joe Perkins was elected to the position to fill the place of Susan Smith who graduates this month. Margaret Dehoff was elected rector, secretary of the Board. The Board also elected a representative to the Program Council will be John Garwood.

John Van Assenderp will succeed Joe as chairman of the Music Department.

Mar. Ben Romeka succeeds John Harrison as chairman of the Finance Committee.

After meeting this Spring, the Board will take action. The Board voted to purchase the piano fund and to purchase two instead of one grand piano. The piano purchased through the fund is nine feet and will be placed in Moore Auditorium.

The piano is seven feet and will be placed in the hallrooms. The Board was held by the Board of the new system of the Union and the hours of the Union committee. John Norman and Bill Wood were appointed to study the two systems.

Debators In Tampa

Intern Fees Due

Spring Interns must pay their cap and gown, announcement, and photographs before Dec. 19.

Cap and gown fees are $4.25 and announcements are various prices depending on the size. Photographs are $5. Freshmen may be placed at the University Union Bookstore.

The four day conference began Nov. 26 and lasted through Nov. 29th. Associated Student Governments began taking shape in January of this year when Bill Featheringill, student body president of Vanderbilt University, took steps to organize such an organization.

In February, students from six schools met to discuss plans for the then un-named group. An interim constitution was the result of an April meeting at which 62 schools were represented. It was felt at the early organizational meetings that an organization of this type would greatly benefit students and student governments across the nation.

The purpose of the organization is to "open channels for communication and cooperation among student governments of American colleges and universities."

It is directed at the individual student. "In the hopes of making his student government more satisfactory and beneficial to him during his years at college."

According to the statement of purpose of the organization, "The organization has no political intent or purpose; our main concern is to share ideas about programming and projects, not to provide a national sounding board for the political opinions of students."

The agenda of the recent convention included discussion groups on judicial, election systems, public relations, fiscal affairs, student rights and human relations, international student programming and many other aspects of student government.

Dance, Play Set

The University Union will sponsor a Christmas dance in the Florida and State rooms tomorrow night from 9 till midnight.

Music will be furnished by the Challengers. Admission is $1 and the dress is cocktail style.

The last evening performance of Anton Chekhov's "The Cherry Orchard," presented in Conradi Theatre by the University Theatre, will begin at 8:30 p.m. tonight.

There will be a matinee Sunday. The cast of 15 characters centers around the sale of a cherry orchard. "Each character is important; there are no real leads," said Dr. Arthur Lora.

Tickets will be available at the door at a cost of $7.50 for students and $15.00 for non-students.

FSU Annual Christmas Vespers Presented Sunday By Glee Club

FSU's annual Christmas Vespers will be presented Sunday afternoon at 5 p.m. by the Women's Glee Club in Westcott Auditorium.

The concert which has become a University tradition through the years will be highlighted by guest soloist, Miss Carolyn Love Glem. An instrumental prelude presented by the FSU Brass Choir and directed by William Cramer will also be featured in the program.

Miss Glem, formerly a student of music at FSU, graduated with her degree in music education in 1954 and is presently teaching at Augusta-Rae Junior High School. Her appearance with the Women's Glee Club will be a return performance for Miss Glem, who was a member of the group while attending FSU. Next March, Miss Glem will join in Carnegie Hall in New York.

Miss Betty Jane Grimm, associate professor of music, will direct the 105-voice Glee Club which will musically retell the Christmas story. The music, especially arranged and composed by local composers is adapted from sacred motets of the sixteenth century. Other numbers will include an original composition entitled, "The Prophecy," by FSU graduate student, Richard D. Powell; selected carols from Poland and Bohemia, and carols arranged by Dr. Irvin Cooper of the music school. The Glee Club will also sing five of the "Alfred Burt Carols" composed by Rev. Bates G. Burt and his son, Alfred.

Eleven members of the Glee Club will be featured as soloists. They are Sandra Cooper, Judith Blue, Martha Wilson, Jennifer Black, Sharon Cady, Susan Webber, Joyce Graham, Donna Dickenson, Rose Wilkes, Talia Luptwickier and Lana Sue Faulk.

"O Holy Night" will be sung as the opening and closing number of the evening by Miss Glem. The Rev. Virgil L. Bryant, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Bainbridge, Ga., will lead the invocation and benediction.

Concert Tonight

The University Singers and the Symphonic Band will sponsor a joint concert this evening featuring 90 instrumentalists and 80 singers. The program starts at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott and will be divided into two sections.

The program will present for the first time two original compositions. The 80 voice singing group will open the program with a double choral motet by Andres Gabrieli. Other numbers include, "Four Motets," "To Us A Child is Given," "Holy Infancy" and "All Men Draw Near." Charles Stanley will conduct.

The 90-piece band will perform "Toccata and Fugue in D-minor," "Ella's Procession to the Cathedral from 'Lohengrin,'" and "Fetes from Three Nocturnes."

The Grand Finale will feature the two musical organizations in "Gloria" from "Mass No. 2 in E-minor." Manley Whitcomb will conduct the Finale.

Placement Office Offering Start In Business World To Seniors

By GEORGE BORN

"The experience gained by the student in interviews with business representatives is very important. Placement is a very important part of the educational process. Each senior and graduate student should take advantage of this service," according to James C. Hardy, head of Placement.

The Student Placement Center is located in room 350 Agriculture-Bldg., University Union. The purpose of this office is to help the student to obtain after-graduation jobs. The procedure for this is very simple. The senior student goes to the Placement Office and registers. He is then required to take a date sheet to two professors in his major field. They fill out the forms and return them to the office. It can also be given to persons who know the student to be completed and returned. "A student should register as soon as he obtains senior status," said Hardy. "This procedure should be followed even if the senior plans to enter military service quickly upon graduation," he added. The service is open to all alumni and is free of charge to all who desire to use it.

This is a permanent file and open to the student and graduate student. Once the student obtains a job upon graduation, his file is discontinued.

If he wishes to change jobs after he has been initially placed, his file will be re-activated at his desire and he will be informed of any job openings that might be of interest to him.

Finalitis Attacks

The fickle Tallahassee weather is only partly to blame for the masses which descend upon the infirmary at this time of the year. Finalitis, characterized by gnawed fingernails and fatigue, makes its attack.

Many resort to home remedies, Nodoz, coffee, and unfortunately, a friend's appetite depressant pills which are also thought to stimulate the student's appetite for knowledge even to the point of wanting to "devour the information in the dictionary."

After several sleepless days of wake-up pills and coffee, a student was reported to have left a final exam in a state of euphoria—he knew he had done well. Both student and professor were bewildered when they found that his test paper was merely covered with lines extending in all directions, not bearing the slightest resemblance to English, Chinese, or any other language.

The student himself was completely unaware that he was responsible for the paper which could have been either the product of divine inspiration, or, more likely, exhaustion and someone else's medical prescription, probably "Dex."

Excessive Dex has also been responsible for stomach upsets, faulty judgement and sudden death from its action on the heart.

Another disease called "the flops" is on the increase among women students. She can do nothing but flop on her bed or any available space. She can't sleep, study, or concentrate on a book she herself wants to read.

The solution to finalitis is in the field of prevention. Students having difficulty in courses should seek help at the beginning of the trimester, not when it is too late. Most professors have office hours for this reason.

Yet in one way, finalitis is good. It signifies that students do care. It is the ones with the indifferent attitude, "What do I care anyway" that we should worry most about.

FLAMBEAU FORUM Citizens Too Peace Hungry To Act

To the Editor:

This past weekend United States airplanes, men, and equipment were treacherously attacked by Viet Cong guerrillas. The result was four of my young American comrades dead and twenty-seven of our expensive airplanes littering the airfield.

The same thing happened at Pearl Harbor, but there was a difference in our reactions to the disasterly act. We as a nation had pride in 1941. We were indignant that a foreign nation should dare attack our beloved country so openly. Our young men were so concerned that millions of them immediately volunteered to give up their own lives and risk their lives to defend our country. Our young women selfishly left the comforts of their homes to work in defense plants. Our President asked Congress to declare war on our people's enemies, regardless of age, race, or religion.

Thanks Coeds

To the Editor:

Part of the FSU nursing curriculum includes psychiatric experience at the Florida State Hospital for the mentally ill in Chattahoochee. This program involves working with some 125 women on four of the hospital wards.

Starting this trimester the students wanted to initiate a "word beautifying" project, but were stalled because of lack of funds. However, the various sororities on campus came through and raised $500 to give this project a future.

The money was partly used for patients and partly for Christmas decorations for the wards.

This letter is not only to thank the sororities, but also to thank the 230 gifts that the patients will receive at a Christmas party given by the student nurses. It is one to know that so many students are willing to help others and it is truly appreciated.

To us the people of the United States sit back in apathetic complacency and read newspaper accounts of their countrymen being slain without being stirred. We are so peace-hungry that we will sacri-

FSU To Try Team Teaching With 1200 Mile Wire To 'IBM'

An experimental program to determine the potential of the electronic computer in meeting the individual learning needs of students--the experiment through graduate classes--is being undertaken by FSU in cooperation of the Florida Department of Education and Inter-

It takes 6½ seconds to fasten a seat belt national Business Machines Corporation.

The research effort uses a typewriter-like keyboard terminal linked by telephone wire to an IBM computer system some 1200 miles away at the company's Thomas J. Watson Research Center in Yorktown Heights, New York.

FSU's experiment will utilize Computer Assisted Instruction, a system developed by IBM which enables an educator to enter instructional material, questions and guidance into a computer for presentation to students on typewriter consoles of other equipment. The course unfolds at a pace and in a manner determined by a student's demonstrated ability.

Instructional material used in the computer project is organized, edited and sequenced by the actual teachers of the courses, who are doubly qualified in knowing both their subject matter and the ways in which students learn. The responses made by each student on the typewriter terminal are compared by the computer with the correct answers stored in its memory. Also, the computer keeps stored a record of each student's performance, enabling the presentation of the material to be tailored to the individual's capacities.

Here is how the system works: The student receiving computer-assisted instruction goes to the terminal in accordance with his schedule. There, he types his name, student number and the course title. The computer automatically checks this data to verify how far the student has progressed in the course, and then presents the next lesson.

This usually takes the form of text which the student studies, either for as long as he wishes or for a predetermined time. The typewriter terminal next prints out questions under Computer control.

If a student responds correctly on the keyboard of the terminal, the computer will present another portion of the lesson for study. For incorrect answers, the course author will have previously entered other information into the computer which is presented to the less proficient student.

Remedial reading plus alternative questions guide the student at a slower pace toward an understanding of the material.

In addition to testing the potential value of Computer Assisted Instruction, the project will furnish University faculty members with specific data on student learning processes.

This information will enable educators to investigate the characteristics of individual instruction and its best use by the classroom teacher.

The FSU educators are also seeking to discover any differences in the effectiveness of the computer technique at all grade levels, from reading readiness in kindergarten to course work for graduate degrees. Subject matter now being developed and tested includes solution of trigonometric identities, educational measurement, non-metric geometry, learning paired associates, test validity and stress and strain tensors.

Dr. Donald L. Hartford of the FSU School of Education's Department of Research and Testing, and the Institute of Human Learning will supervise FSU's participation in the project.

Denmark Opens New University

New Experimental College has announced its spring semester, 1965 Educational Explorations in Denmark.

The college is open to students, teachers and others from all countries who are interested in living and learning in Denmark for six months.

It is particularly for those who wish to study in the fields of education, language, psychology, Scandinavian area studies, sociology and in other project areas which would optimally be located in Denmark.

Beginning Feb. 12, 1965, participants will live with Danes in Danish communities for two periods of one month each.

Emphasis will be on developing language proficiency and on building a background for study.

These stays will be followed by three months at a Folkehøjskole (higher education in the liberal arts). Students will live here and study in Danish with the general program and exploring in this area of interest.

The program will conclude on Aug. 8, 1965.

Catholics Party

The Catholic Student Center is having a Christmas Party tomorrow night from 7:30 p.m. to midnight. There will be a tree to trim, singing, refreshments, and dancing. The dress is Sunday best and the admission is two cans of food which will be donated to the Alpha Phi Omega "White Christmas." The party is open to the entire campus.

TED HARVEY

Harvey Named 'Contact' Editor

Ted G. Harvey, 1964 graduate of FSU, member of Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi, is the new editor of "Contact," the East-West Center student association's monthly publication of news and commentary.

Harvey began his East-West Center scholarship studies in Hawaii last June. His East-West Center scholarship provides for master's degree studies in history, principally at the University of Hawaii and with opportunity for field study in Asia.

He is the second Florida student to become editor of "Contact." Serving in the post last year was Judith Lane, Miami. Miss Lane recently completed her East-West Center scholarship following a field study trip to Japan and other countries of Asia.

The staff and contributors of "Contact" represent the current East-West Center scholarship class of nearly 445 students from 24 Asian-Pacific countries and 155 from the U.S. The October issue highlights a section about the American elections.

Students In All Fields Get Aid

By DIANNE MUNYER

Students in every field of study from Asiatic languages to wildlife conservation, orchestra conducting to plasma physics, demography to Byzantine studies are eligible for graduate fellowships.

The nation is experiencing an unprecedented thirst for graduate study today and offering unprecedented amount of help to students who want to continue beyond their Baccalaureate in the form of fellowships.

Graduate school enrollments have increased 300 in the past 20 years, and the growth in fellowships is on a similar scale. In all, more than 60,000 fellowships carrying stipends of some $5 million are offered every year.

Fellowships are no longer reserved for all-A students. Anyone who has done reasonably well in college and who has a serious interest in graduate study is in the running.

Whether a student's plans are definite or not, whether he has chosen a major field of study or not, and even if he is a freshman, now is a good time for him to begin looking into the matter of fellowships.

Fellowships that students may be considering now come from three main sources: universities, the U.S. Government and private foundations. Nearly every university with a graduate study program has a fellowship program to go with it. In addition, the universities administer many of the "outside" fellowship funds provided by the Government and private foundations.

The U.S. Government is the fastest-growing source of fellowships, particularly in the sciences. The National Science Foundation, the National Defense Education, the National Institute of Health, and the Atomic Energy Commission are a few of the government agencies offering awards.

Prominent private programs are the Woodrow Wilson Fellowships and the Danforth Foundation Fellowships.

Far study abroad, the Rhodes and Marshall scholarships are the best known. Among the freest are the Rotary Foundation Fellowships for International Understanding.

The U.S. State Department's Fulbright program offers 700 awards a year for study in foreign countries. Nearly all major foreign fellowships are administered by the Institute of International Education. To apply for a fellowship write the dean of the graduate school at each university where the student would like to seek an award and ask for application forms.

A graduate study adviser is the main guide through the maze of fellowship opportunities. He will have literature from key agencies.

Students should also speak to professor in their undergraduate major departments. Some descriptive catalogues he may use are the "A Guide to Graduate Study," compiled by Frederic W. Ness; "Following in the Arts and Sciences," by Robert Quick; and "Handbook of International Study," for the Institute of International Education.

WFSU-TV Channel 11 News

A rare look at life in seldom-seen regions of Soviet Siberia, and a film report on the tragic fate of France's newly-arrived Algerian immigrants, are two of the highlight features in this month's "International Magazine" Monday night at 9.

Hosted by British commentator John Freeman, the hour-long NET program of events overseas shows a rare visit to Siberia, in which a BBC camera crew, one of the first permitted this far into the Russian region, brings back a rather surprising picture of life in that part of the world. Considered by most to be a frontier wasteland, Siberia is seen as a region complete with European type cities, clothing, and manners.

Another "Magazine" feature extensively examines the sorry plight of thousands of Algerians who continue to stream into Paris. Driven by the hope of finding work and economic security in the French city, the immigrants find nothing but increased hardships and greater poverty. Eventually, they join fellow Algerians who arrived before them, driven by the same hopes. Together, they live in the tin shack squalor of a shanty town just a stone's throw from the Champs Elysee, and they dream of one day returning to their homeland.

On both Tuesday and Thursday, one of television's most meaningful explorations of modern science, "Science Reporter," returns to the air (Tuesday, 9 p.m., Thursday, 6:30 p.m.), with an incisive report on the use and storage of human blood.

Inquisitive host John Fitch meets with Charles Huggins, M.D., assistant in surgery at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, to learn about the many ways bloods now used in the hospital, the procedures for cross matching blood types, and the problems of storage and human blood. Dr. Huggins discusses with Fitch the chemistry of red blood freezing, a technique he has preferred and placed in use in several U.S. medical centers.

In the discussion -- illustrated by a demonstration of the actual process of red blood freezing, the storage freezer, and the critical procedure of thawing and reconstituting blood for transfusion -- Dr. Huggins outlines the specific advantages of transfusions of frozen blood.

"Science Reporter: Instant Blood" is a presentation of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in cooperation with WFSU-TV, Boston's TV Station.

"Cancer" is the topic for discussion on this week's "Call Your Doctor" program, 8 p.m. Thursday. Produced live by Channel 11, "Call Your Doctor" is an audience participation program to which viewers are requested to phone their problems, and a panel of experienced physicians answer the questions over the air.

Larry Watts is host of this half-hour program, and Channel 11's phone number is 599-3406 or 599-3417.

"Classic Cinema" this week is "Happy Is the Bride," starring Ian Carmichael, Joyce Grenfell, and Terry Thomas. A frolicsome, hilarious film produced in Great Britain, "Classic Cinema" airs at 8:30 p.m., Thursday.

Applications Currently Available For Work In European Studies

Our application period for undergraduate foreign study in Paris, Madrid, Vienna, and Freiburg, West Germany are now open, the Institute of European Studies has announced.

All four Institute centers offer both spring-semester, 1968 and full-year 1968-69 programs for students in history, political science, modern languages, literatures, philosophy, and other liberal arts and social science fields.

The programs are designed for college juniors, but some sophomores are admitted in Paris and Vienna.

Formal applications are due Dec. 7 for next spring's programs and May 10, 1968, for full-year programs starting next fall. Sailings are set for Feb. 1 and late in August or mid-September. All programs end in late June or July.

An Institute spokesman said the programs aim at "immersing the student as deeply as his background permits" in a European university. Total immersion is rarely practical, he said, because European university courses are so highly specialized that U.S. undergraduates can usually profit from foreign university courses only in their major or minor fields.

"On the other hand," he said, "we don't want to place the student in a 'ghetto' where he is exposed only to American-style courses taught by American professors, and mustive and study only with other Americans. Whether you look at it academically or culturally, the European experience should be both excellent and different."

"Our aim is to maximize the student's confrontation with European and European education, within the practical limits set by U.S. college requirements."

To supplement the courses students take in the European university, the Institute's Madrid, Paris and Vienna centers each offer from 34 to 55 courses taught by European university professors in fields ranging from art history to sociology and theology.

Lexcept in Vienna, where a number of courses are taught in English for students still brushing up on their German, all instruction is in the native language.

Because the University of Paris courses last the full year, and do not admit new registrants for the second semester, students in the spring-semester program there will be unable to attend regular university lectures. Instead, they will concentrate on language development and French taught courses organized specifically for American students.

In Freiburg, the principal town in Germany's Black Forest, Institute students take all their work with German students in the 500-year old university, described as "A graduate school by U.S. standards."

CAPTAIN LEONARD L. MELTON, JR.

A 1957 graduate of FSU, has been awarded the Air Force Commendation medal for meritorious service in the office of the inspector general at Headquarters, 30th Air Division, at Truxa Field, Madison, Wis. Captain Melton, a 12-year Air Force veteran, is being congratulated here by Major General Frederic R. Terrell, the Division Commander.

"Adventures of Huckleberry Finn"

"The Inn of the Sixth Happiness," starring Ingrid Bergman and Curt Jurgens, will be the campus movie this Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Westcott.

The movie is a biography of Britain's Gladys Aylward, who was rejected by a missionary society, and went to China on her own. With indomitable independence, she set up a mission.

Her exploits, including the conversion of a powerful mandarin, the winning of a band of hostile mule drivers, an affair with an Eurasian army officer, and her courageous struggle to lead 100 children through a Japanese attack, provide a story of powerful charm and warmth.

The Little Seminole Matinee Film Series will feature "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" tomorrow at 1:30 p.m. in Moore Auditorium. Admission is $3.35 and all students, personnel, and their families may attend.

Users will be at Palmetto Way to escort children to the auditorium. The show will be over at approximately 3:35 p.m.

"The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," featuring Eddie Hodges, Tony Randall, and Mickey Shaughnessy, is an adaptation of the famous American classic by Mark Twain.

Two cartoons have been scheduled for the show.

Musicians Give Surprise Recital For Rose Wildes

A surprise recital by Rose Wildes, a senior who is a member of Miss Betty Jane Griffin's choir, Tuesday afternoon in Moore Music Hall by the students of the music school.

The recital was for the purpose of raising funds for the Rose Wildes to Minneapolis, Minn., through 30, where she will compete in the national finals for the "Miss of the Year" award.

Miss Wildes, who is president of the student group, sang at the end of the recital and received a standing ovation from her fellow students. Seventy dollars was contributed to aid in the expenses of the trip. Remembered for her performance in FSU's production of "Kismet," the title role in Bizet's "Carmen," Miss Wildes will be contrasted for the Christmas season presented by the Women's Glee Club Sunday and the Florida State Symphony Association's concert Dec. 11.

Previously appearing with the Women's Glee Club, the Union, and the University of Florida, and featured singer of the year in 1963, Miss Wildes will be representing the Southern region.

SPORTS ON CAMPUS

By MELODIE BETTS

As the pre-season basketball tournament climaxes this men's intramural program, the women are winding up their first week of play in the second sports season.

This is the first time that a sport season has extended over two trimesters. Bowling, basketball, ping pong, and deck tennis continues till exam week and begins again in January.

The main reason for the split season according to WRA president Shirley Haddon is to enable the players to have greater opportunity to play the various sports. Intramural games are played Monday through Thursday at 4:15 p.m., with the exception of bowling which meets Saturday mornings at 9:30 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Following the final lines at 9:30 tomorrow morning, red-Greif, Gilchrist, Reynolds, Flam Court, Alpha Omega, Phi, Alpha Phi, Alpha Xi Delta, and Chi Omega. On the approaches at 11 a.m., will be Delta Zeta, Pi Beta Phi, Magnolia, Jennie Murphee, Kappa Kappa Gamma, and the Mixers.

The Wednesday Mixers finished the first half of their split season in striking form this week when the 4 Roses won four points and the league lead with a 24-12 record. Mike Selznick, Melodie Betts, Bill Malt-house, and Bruce Bussell composed the winning team.

The last place Bunnies set all time highs in team game and set scores as they rolled an 873-849, 750-2512. Team member Hume flick, a 94 average, rolled a 171-383 game.

Nancy Cooper finally rolled her first 200 game of the season with a 205 which she backed with games of 161 and 198 to shoot her highest series 584 and lead the league with a 707 handicap set.

Charles Spencer broke the ice and rolled his first seasonal 500 series with a 182-530, followed by Selznick's 200-504, Malt-house 178-504, and Bill Perry 197-504. Finishing in second place were the Blue Devils followed by the Kingpins, Kagans, Amor, Team Too, Hi-Lo's, and the Bunnies.

Swimmers Clash

The FSU Varsity swimmers split into teams today to kick-off the swim season with a Garnet and Gold tie meet at 2 p.m. Saturday in the Union Pool. Everyone is invited to attend. Bleachers have been erected for the event.

The Tribe didn't have a commanding lead until the last quarter of the game and trailed in most of the first half. Only Pete Gonzales' 23 points staved off complete ruin VMJ showed none of the sloppy play that cost them a 66-59 loss to Florida as they roared through the first half leading the Seminoles until the last two minutes of that stanza.

After the Tribe took the initial tip-off for no score, Keydet captain Joe Kruszewski took advantage of a foul by Ron Malmgren and picked up the first two points of the night. From there to 14-5 of the first half it was VMJ all the way.

VMJ out hustled the Seminoles and hit with more consistency to put the pressure on Bud Kennedy's team in the opening moments.

In the first period alone FSU's Gonzales scored 18 points—nearly half the Tribe's total of 40. He was better than an overworked M-1 while the rest of the team were as cold as gilded gators.

The Keydets pushed to a five point lead at 9-4 and then made the Tribe come get them. But the Seminoles could get no closer than two points until "that man again" Gonzales hit the tying two points from the right corner.

Seconds later center Gary Schull decided to start hitting and got the go ahead basket with 1:45 left in the half. The Keydets came back with two more to tie it again at 38-38. In the last seconds both teams tried to outposition each other, but the Keydets got shook and lost the ball to the Garnet and Gold in the last 10 seconds.

The Tribe stalled to the final two seconds and then gave the ball to Gonzales and, just like it said in the script, lofied a long 25 footer that gave the Seminoles a 40-38 dressing room lead.

Both teams came back at the half with a vengeance, but it appeared that Coach Kennedy had slipped his boys a little of that "Seminole Spirit." The Tribe grabbed the ball and made a real effort at a run-away.

They overcame tying goals by Keydet star Joe Kruszewski, and pulled ahead 46-42 on baskets by Schull and Bobby Lovell. Kruszewski then tied it again at 48-48.

The score see-sawed until the exploding Seminoles ripped off a quick seven points. From here they opened up a 71-61 on the true shots of Schull, Malmgren and Gonzales.

The Tribe kept the VMJ contingent from moving much closer by constant harassment in the press that resulted in several stolen passes which were converted into FSU baskets.

The Keydets tricky ball handling pulled them to 76-70 with about 25 seconds left. Here the Garnet and Gold froze the ball until it were seven seconds.

VMJ's Charlie Schmalz popped a frustration two points and the gun sounded with the score 76-71 FSU.

FSU battles Auburn in an away game tomorrow night.

R. Fallon will be featured in a new interview by Wayne Cowart on the TV show "Focus" at 8:30 p.m. on WFSU-TV. They will talk about the Asolo Festival Theater season and job opportunities for students working in the field for the summer. New and unusual ideas for Christmas decorations will be the subject of the program.

The "Focus" production class of WFSU-TV will be in charge of a special APO sponsored White Christmas drive, and a special feature on the "Calendar Girl" will be shown on Delta Delta Delta, a sophomore, majoring in education. The weekly edition of the entire program will be produced by John Perdue and Wayne Cowart and is directed by Tom Welch of WFSU-TV. The first produced this year was sponsored by the "Flambeau," and is directed by WFSU-TV.

Council Sends Sails

The Student Program Council in a meeting Thursday night decided to send the FSU Sailing Club to the new Orleans Regatta during the Christmas holidays. The regatta which is an activity of the sailing club will attend the sailing regatta in New Orleans, La. to compete with teams from all over the South. Transportation and lodging will be provided by the Program Council through the regatta. The cost will be about $100.

DR. CLAUDE FLORY Flory Speaks

"Why should Huck Finn know of 'Fair Rosamund & Saxon Heptarchies' and not the students of FSU," questioned Dr. Claude Flory at the English Coffee Hour Friday.

Dr. Huck Finn's concept of Fair Rosamund as one of the wives of Henry VIII was erroneous. History reveals that she was really the daughter of Walter Lord Clifford in the Court of Henry II around 1162, and became the mistress of Henry II. The story is centered around the queen's jealousy of Fair Rosamund. Flory feels that there should be a survey course in college that would include stories such as "Fair Rosamund & Saxon Heptarchies." It would be a course of bibliography and inspiration.

Flory then told some of his other favorite Middle English poems that most people fail to read in the course of their literary ramblings.

The story of how Richard the Lion Hearted got his name illustrates how the unlettered people of the time didn't understand the title as a metaphor of his courage, but had to explain it literally.

Flory also told the story of "Aims and Amelion." "Not even Huck Finn knew of this one," said Flory. "I regret that people miss these stories," Flory continued.

Reception Given For President

Dr. Griffith Fugh read "A Child's Christmas in Wales" by Dylan Thomas yesterday afternoon at a reception honoring President and Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell in Florida room of the Union.

Academic deans and student leaders were invited to attend the reception sponsored by the Program Council of the Union and the Inter-Club Council.

Mr. Thomas Wright led the singing of Christmas music and two members of Rick Powell's ensemble played for the reception. "Everyone seemed to have a wonderful time beginning the Christmas season in such a friendly way," said Miss Jeanie Williamson, refreshment chairman of the reception.

Try-Outs Weds.

Tryouts for the play, "The Pied Piper of Hamelin," will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday in Conradi Theater. All FSU students are eligible to try out for roles in the production, according to Kent Wood, director. The play, designed for children's audiences, has a cast of 11 and will be produced Jan. 26-30. Rehearsals will not begin until the second trimester, Wood said.

Scripts of the play may be obtained by students planning to try out in the theater office, 115 History, beginning today.

The play, by William Glenon, will be performed for school children in the Tallahassee area. It is the story of the pied piper ridding Hamelin-town of its rats. It also involves the greed of the adults.

Registrar's Office: 'All Must Register'

All currently enrolled students except graduating seniors must pre-register during the period which ends Dec. 11, according to the Registrar's Office.

Entry to the pre-registration area is through the south entrance of the Suwannee Room.

The appointment card, photo ID card, or temporary ID, and a green trial schedule will be required for admission. A detailed instruction sheet will be issued at the door. Fee payment will be accepted at the Bursar's Office, 105 Westcott, through Dec. 18. Checks received during this period will not be deposited until Jan. 4.

Proud Stickers At Bookstore

"I'm proud of FSU" stickers for cars, scooters, bikes, notebooks, windowpanes or foreheads are available starting today for FSU students, fans and sympathizers, compliments of the University Bookstore.

The idea for the FSU support and spirit-raising stickers came originally from a sample lot sent to the University from Poster Art Display in Jacksonville.

University Business Manager Rod Shaw, upon seeing the stickers, decided that it would be an excellent way for students and alumni to show their visible support of FSU.

Shaw carried his brainstorm to Director of Auxiliaries Philip G. Hunt, who suggested that the Bookstore might be willing to back the production of FSU stickers in quantity.

The bookstore agreed, and 10,000 stickers are now available on demand at the University Union and Bookstore.

Director of Alumni Tom Watts is also considering the possibility of sending out "I'm Proud" stickers to FSU graduates, and Athletic Business Manager Ron Melton may use the stickers as a bonus in Gator Bowl ticket packets.

On Jan. 4 and 5, pre-registered students will be required to turn in a special "check-in" card at the Union ballroom. All delinquent fees must be paid prior to check-in.

The special check-in card issued at registration must be turned in according to the following schedule: Last name beginning with M-Z -- Jan. 4, 8 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Last name beginning with A-L -- Jan. 5, 8 a.m. till 5 p.m.

Failure to check-in as indicated will result in cancellation of pre-registration and assessment of a $25 late fee for re-registering.

Classes will begin Jan. 6 instead of Jan. 7 as indicated in the catalogue. This is to provide a dead day before finals in the Spring semester. Classes will end April 13 and dead day will be April 14. Exams begin April 15.

The late fee is increased effective Jan. 1, 1965, from $5 to $25.

New students or former returning students who do not begin registration prior to 5 p.m. on Jan. 5 must pay the late fee.

Students who do not pay fees prior to 4 p.m. on Jan. 13 must pay the late fee.

Those students who begin registration according to schedule have until Jan. 13, the end of the drop and add period, to pay fees without payment of late fee.

There Are Few 'Educated' Persons

It was with some degree of anticipation that I submitted my first column last week. It's reception has been stimulating. I had previously written letters to the editor but they concerned issues of contemporary nature. My own personal philosophies, I have usually reserved for the boredom of my friends or anyone else kind enough to listen. Someone once said that diversity is the condition of existence. It is in this vein that I present a few personal generalizations concerning education or the lack thereof.

Education is the process in which one is morally and personally developed. It is a life-long process.

tion into the known and, more importantly, the unknown. There are few educated persons.

It is possible to obtain a basic education at a university. We have been done, not often. There is a helluva lot more to than the prompt regurgitation of absorbed lecture notes and textbooks.

We are granted our empty baccalaureates for lasting through four years of mind-fogg. We have too few opportunities to seek, question, and relate. How often do you wander through the library stacks leading to books that might interest you? Do you ever discuss lectures with other students? Have you ever asked a professor for additional sources or argued a point with him? Yeah, I know—I'm laughing too. I purely make it through the required material. Still, I have a point.

The student places the blame for this situation upon the university and the faculty. The instructors say it is our fault, that we aren't students in an ideal sense. Where does the fault lie? As is my usual course, I distribute the blame. I am not an appeaser, I just find that most conflicts among people are not completely the fault of one person or group.

Few of us are hungry for knowledge. It's out there. All we have to do is muster the courage and curiosity to go after it. Nothing is done. Everything in the world remains to be done or done over. "The greatest picture is not yet painted, the greatest play isn't written, the greatest poem is unwritten. There isn't in all the world a perfect railroad, nor a good government, nor a sound law."

Certain professors at this university approach being unstimulating. More candidly, there are a number who are complete bore. Sadly enough, many frequent the basic studies division, that inadequate substitute for a broad education. More knowledge was accumulated during the past ten years than in all the years previous. As this snowball rolls on, it becomes nearly impossible to continue teaching predominantly facts, as we have been doing. We must stress concepts, ideas, relationships. Challenge students to use their minds. Let's build broad people.

We all have a share in the future of education. We students, especially, have a great responsibility before us in the education of our children. Only through a life-long quest to become educated persons can we hope to offer to the generation coming more than we were offered by the generation before. I hope we can.

Union Pool Lacks Polish

To the Editor:

I would like to comment on the expensive, expansive, and modern looking student complex. In general it is a compliment to this progressing campus; but, its construction is typical of a feeling in the building or remodeling industry today. People will spend large amounts of money, during the constructing of a structure, on little details that do not appear or stand out with any significance to the glance of the admiring observer. After all, what is the dollars more or less—even if it isn't needed.

When many of these decisions are made the money begins to count up. The result is that when completion is near there is a lack of funds to finish properly. Short cuts during this phase many times cheapens the appearance and lowers the "polished" effect of a well planned and otherwise exciting building or surroundings.

I am speaking in particular about the miniature pool of sprouting water container in front of the Union Shop. Some people made off with the fountain heads which regulate the flow of the water in an even and desirable fashion, or too much money was spent on everything else without forethought to the cheap and unfinished impression of the building viewing two underfoot.

dollars spent here would have been a completed look in the eyes of the impression of the building on the sky with open space.

only doesn't look good. I realize the saying that if you are generous for the passerby, you are then unsuspicious. I fully believe that.

I realize the saying that if you are generous for the passerby, you are then unsuspicious. I fully believe that. I realize the saying that if you are generous for the passerby, you are then unsuspicious. I fully believe that.

After the harm has been done, it's too late! The headline "Injured spine from falling" takes longer to heal than to prevent the present situation with a yet decorative guard of safety. So to whom it may concern—UP—before it is too late.

William H. Grant

It comes in its own box.

Simply box.

It has nearly twice the power of a standard wagon that don't look like boxes.

It has 7 conventional 4x4's or 4x4's with many unconventional 4x4's.

Or you can put a 40-foot Christmas tree in through the hole in the roof.

You can carry 170 cubic feet of snow in the trunk with the 4x4's inside.

At this time of year, you'll enjoy the 4x4's firm traction. (The engine is in back, over the drive wheels.)

And you'll never spend a dime on oil because the engine is air-cooled. (Which also means it can't boil over next summer.)

Student Is Short-Changed

To the Editor:

It has become apparent that good ole FSU has "escaped" me again, --- the administration has scalped the student body again, that is, in reference to the article by the Athletic Dept. on Dec. 2, 1991, I would like to say, "Congratulations Mr. Mancha, and all others concerned---you have shortchanged the FSU student again. I will say that you seem to have allocated enough seats to the poor student body this time, but where are they located? I'll tell you, just in case you don't know. Be it known to all that the South Stand, the 'OLD SIDELINE STAND', just happens to now be the 'End Zone!' My, my isn't THAT a coincidence.

I formally charge the author/s responsible for the article in reference with purposely attempting to mislead the FSU student into thinking that he is finally getting some good seats. It is my contention that the use of "old sideline stand" in reference to the South Stand of the Gator Bowl is unnecessary, ambiguous, and misleading to the reader.

In addition, I have obtained information from the Athletic Dept. stating that the tickets which will be sold to alumni, Seminole Boosters, etc., are located in the East Stand (present sideline stand). I can pay just as damn much, yell just as damn loud, jump just as damn high, and have just as hell-raising good time at the game as any damn season holder, Seminole Booster, or other alumni.

"I want a good seat," Mr. Mancha! "Why can't I get one?" Larry Allen

Campus Needs Social Spot

To the Editor:

After reading your criticism of the University Union the other day, I should like to add a couple more observations.

First regards the lack of good FREE entertainment such as existed in the previous Student Center (heavens, that's in the past!). There is a definite need for a campus meeting place, hangout, where one can park his bod and have a ball session, or plop a dime in a juke box and go "swim" or something. All we have now is once a week dances that tend to be restrictive in that only those with dates attend. A permanent spot needs to be set up. (It need not be in the "wonderful" University Union if this will get the floors dirty or create headaches, etc. Perhaps the Seminole Club would be better, it is more student.)

My second observation is that atrocious generally spoken of as the Union Pool. Not the swimming pool but the one in front of the bookstore. You know, the one that vaguely resembles a scene out of MOBY DICK. Since they installed the "gyser" it has even been hard to throw somebody in there. But at least it does provide a little campus humor, it generally provokes a chuckle whenever I pass. After all, not every campus has two whales in a pool.

I do believe we have a very good complex building-wise, but I would like to see some improvement socially. At least I hope so.

Announcements

The Alliance Francaise of FSU and Tallahassee will have its second meeting of the year tomorrow at 8 p.m. in the Education Bldg., Lecture Hall.

NSF Announces Math Institute

Plans have been announced for a ten and one-half month institute for junior college teachers of mathematics opening next September.

The director, Dr. Eugene Nichols, head of the Mathematics Education Dept., said the National Science Foundation has made a grant of $71,900 for the institute.

Average teachers who have had limited preparation in mathematics will be selected for the institute and will come to the campus for 30 semester hours of graduate work designed to strengthen their mathematical training.

Among the courses offered will be advanced courses in the fundamentals of algebra and analysis, a special graduate seminar in mathematics education.

Two faculty members from the Mathematics Dept. will join the institute director in teaching the courses. They are Dr. James E. Snover, who has directed the annual Summer Institute for high school teachers of Mathematics since 1961, and Dr. Howard E. Taylor, who has taught college mathematics for 14 years and has published several textbooks.

The speaker will be M. Fernand Vial, head of the department of Romance Languages at Fordham University. He will speak (in French) on Chateaubriand's visit to the United States in 1791. All present and prospective members may attend.

FSU's chapter of Sigma Pi Sigma, national physics honor society, will meet at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in the Library Lecture Hall.

New members and associates will be received into the society at this time and all members are requested to attend as pictures for the 1965 Tally-Ho will be taken.

Student Government needs a secretary who has typing, filing, etc. ability and preferably experience. Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. thru 12:30 p.m. at $1 per hour. See Student Government offices for interview.

The University Union staff offices, lounge areas, and Crenshaw Recreation Bldg. will be closed on the following dates during the Christmas vacation period: Dec. 24, 25, 26, 27, and 31, and Jan. 1 and 2. DR. VICTOR MAMATEY

College Means Mind Change

by CAROLYN McCLILLAN

What makes a college education? "It's a subtle change in the minds of the students," stated Dr. Victor Mamatey, head of the FSU History Dept.

"They are exposed to many different fields; thus, they are forced to use their intelligence. The mind has to be exercised."

Mamatey says he is conscious of the general awareness of the public toward education. This change has taken place since World War II, before the war, there was an indifference, but now people realize the meaning of an educated public.

Mamatey feels that being well-steeped in history has enabled him to evaluate his colleagues. This comes from a study of biographies, which is an integral part of history.

A degree in history makes available not only important teaching positions, but also a variety of government opportunities. Most people who are employed by the National Security Agency, the State Department, and agencies concerning foreign aid are well acquainted with their history books.

To all FSU students, Mamatey says, "Make the best use possible of your time here. Have fun, too, because when you graduate, it is time to really hustle, and leisure time will not come as easily as it has."

Oelschlagel Calls Unique FSU Modern Languages

By CHARLES STANFIELD

"The Department of Modern Languages at FSU is unique," says Dr. Victor Oelschlagel, head of the department. "In that it offers courses leading to graduate degrees in three languages."

Oelschlagel adds that "We are also one of the only two schools in the South that offer Chinese to our undergraduate students."

Since taking the position of chief administrator of his department in 1953, Oelschlagel has seen the Modern Language Dept. increase fourfold.

Oelschlagel was born in Kitchener, Ontario, Canada, in 1909. As a boy he possessed an intense desire to learn and a curiosity which would someday induce him to world travel. The qualities inspired him to obtain a B.A. degree in the Romance Languages from McGill College, where he graduated magna cum laude in 1931.

He then transferred to the University of Wisconsin, where he received his master's degree in Spanish in 1932, and his Ph.D. in Spanish and French in 1937.

Oelschlagel remained at the University of Wisconsin until 1943, as instructor and assistant to the head of the department, and later as an assistant professor.

At the age of 34, he enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps and participated in both the Northern Solomons and Philippines Campaigns. In 1945, he prepared the program for training Marine Corps pilots in aviation intelligence, survival and evasion.

In 1946, Oelschlagel accepted a position as Head of the Department of Modern Languages at Newcomb College of Tulane University, and remained there until 1951 when he took charge of the same department at the University of Southern California.

In 1953, Oelschlagel took over as chief administrator of the Modern Language Department at FSU. Since

The FSU department possesses two language laboratories to assist the student in understanding the language as it is truly spoken. These laboratories are open 11 hours each day, and remain open on weekends for the convenience of the students.

Tankers, Sailors Have Wet Weekend

The annual SEISA Cemerboard Sloop Championship Regatta on Lake Bradford this weekend turned out to be largely a duel between FSU and Miami-Dade Junior College, which won the five-school contest with 46 points.

Florida State entered the last race four points ahead but fouled Miami-Dade at the start of the last race and ended with a second place 45 points. Other teams were: Tulane, 41; Vandemilt, 37; and Georgia, 26.

Bob Brown of Miami-Dade won the Leonard N. Fowle Permanent Trophy as high point skipper with 27 points. He sailed in the B division. Herb Elphick of FSU was high point man for Division A with 23 points.

Sailing began in winds of half a knot and three races were held in a light mist. Overnight the winds shifted to north and increased to 10 knots with gusts nearly twice that.

FSU and Miami-Dade boats fought for position throughout the regatta to make it a match race. The FSU Varsity Swimming team beat the Freshmen 236 to 206 in a meet Saturday. There were several heats of all the events and all the team members swam. The times were not announced.

Some of the outstanding swimmers included Jimmy Maudlin, varsity, in the 200 yard freestyle, Charley Robertson, varsity, had a close race with Dave Gibson, a freshman, in the 50 yard freestyle.

Seely Fledmeyer and Jim Anderson, both freshmen, did well in the 100 yard freestyle, but still lost to Mike Blavin, varsity. Tut Heisler, varsity, won the individual medley against a freshman, Randy Reese. In diving Duane McChalister, varsity, defeated Neil Allen. This was the first time Neil had been beaten home. Duane was the state diving champion of Ohio last year.

SEMINOLE SWIMMERS

...raced against themselves Saturday as Coach Bim Stults sent the varsity and the frosh at each other. The varsity came out on top.

Seminoles Fall To Tigers; Hurt By Beastly Fouls

by CRAIG REDDING

Flambeau Assistant Sports Editor

The Auburn Tigers demonstrated speed and accuracy when they defeated the Tribe Cagers 92-67, Saturday in Alabama, before a packed house in which spectators saw the referees hands up in the air more than the ball.

FSU alone had ten team fouls in the first five minutes of play. Fouls and rebounds made the difference and cost FSU the game with Auburn having 45 rebounds to the Tribe's 30.

At the foul line, the Tigers reigned supreme sinking 83% of their shots to the Tribes measly 43%. Auburn completed over 51% of their field goals as the Garnet and Gold barely made 40% of their feeble attempts.

Lee Defore of Auburn shot true as an arrow from everywhere on the court racking up 28 points. Pete Gonzales was chief for the Tribe with 16. Fred Gay, a Tiger compiled 15 points and Gary Schull came up with 12 before fouling out in the last few minutes of play.

Auburn took the tip from center and quickly scored, but Charlie Fairchild's hook shot hit its mark to tie 2-2. In a matter of seconds Auburns Larry Girt and Tom Fibbe moved the ball down court to score. Schull jumped and came down with two more for the Tribe to once again tie the score at 4-4. The Tigers steamed back to go ahead of the Seminoles who then found themselves lost men as the referee pole for the rest of the evening.

The first of the nights 72 fouls took its toll with Auburn making the first mistake as Ron Malmen put FSU within one point of the Tigers 4-5. But Bobby Lovell then fouled Fibbe and the Tigers rolled along dominating play.

The ball then changed hands with six on scoring until up went the referees hands and in an exchange of foul shots by Curt Lovell, Joe Newton and Fairchild, the score became 10-9. Newton hit for the Tigers and made it 12-9 with only five minutes ticked off the clock. On consecutive shots by Defore, Newton, and Gay with the exception of one free shot made by Schull, Auburn pulled ahead of FSU 20-10.

Auburn built up an 11 point lead of 26-15 before FSU began to show a little drive and Malmen hit two thirty feet out followed by baskets made by Schull and Peacock. But Fibbe and Curt drove down court to score and once again the whistle blew and it was free throw time for the Tigers' Newton and the score read 30-21.

Gonzalez, Joe Phillips, and Peacock hit for the Tribe with Defore, Newton, Girt, and Faircloth sinking baskets and foul shots for the Tigers and the half time ended with the saber tooth team leading 43-31.

PETE GONZALES

ger Auburn team dominate the courts as the Seminoles vain attempts were cancelled by rebounds and the ever present fist in the air.

Auburn racked up their highest lead of 25 points in a battle of speed which found the FSU Indians second best. With six minutes left in the half, the score board read 76-51.

In the final six minutes, both teams became victims of that "one and one" death as Newton, Fibbe, Phillips, Schull, and Malmen fouled out of the game.

With 17 seconds left to play, Green of Auburn stood (you guessed it) on the foul line for two more Tiger points and in a long final desperation pass, FSU's Peacock hit a bulls-eye as the game ended 92-67.

It was the second win for the Tigers against no losses and the Tribes first loss along with two wins. The Seminoles will try to redeem themselves tonight when they play Alabama in Tuscaloosa.

CHRISTMAS CAROLING

The approach of Christmas brought out the first carolers at FSU this week-end. They sang for President Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell while the president lighted a Christmas tree in the yard of his home. With Mrs. Blackwells on porch are son, Randy, a graduate student at FSU, and his wife.

R. Burgin Will Conduct 'Ninth'

Richard Burgin, distinguished pedagogue of music on campus, will be the conductor when the State Symphony of Florida and a 200-voice choir present Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Westcott Auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday.

Tickets to the concert are $2.50. They may be obtained through the Office of Music. Season tickets for the symphony concerts are valid for the performance.

A 40-piece orchestra will present the Conservatory of Music in 1912. The program by Wagner as opening number in the program, Robert Schoder, the symphony conductor, will conduct the overture.

Beethoven's monumental Symphony No. 9 in D minor will conclude with the choral finale "Schiller's Ode to Joy Opus 125." This will be the first time that Beethoven's Ninth has been performed on campus, according to Dr. Karl O. Kuersteiner, director of the School of Music.

Soloists for the Beethoven Symphony are Ethel Donaldson, soprano; John Nichols, tenor; Rosie Wildes, alto; and Sidney Buckley, baritone, all music students.

Conductor Richard Burgin is a native of Warsaw, Poland. A child prodigy on the violin, he made his debut in 1903 as violin soloist with the Warsaw Philharmonic at the age of eleven.

Burgin graduated from the Petrov Conservatory of Music in 1912. He has been concertmaster of the Tampere Symphony of Finland for many years was associate conductor of the Boston Symphony, and conductor of the 200-voice State Symphony of Florida Chorus are William J. Wiley Housewright, Herman J. Jr., and Ramon Meyer, all of the School of Music.

One of the soloists for the concert, Mrs. Christine Wildes, is currently concertmaster in the national finals of the Singer of the Year award by the National Association of Teachers of Music. A regional winner, Miss Wildes will represent the South in the finals at Minneapolis this month. Mrs. Wildes played the lead in "The Sound of Music" and the title role in "The Sound of Music."

Other soloist, Ethel Donaldson, is known throughout Florida for her performance in the title role of Carlisle Floyd's "Susannah." Miss Donaldson was leading soprano for a season at the Asolo Comedy Festival Theater in Saratoga.

Students Must Pre-Register

Currently enrolled students, except graduating seniors, are reminded that pre-registration is mandatory. Students who HAVE COMPLETED PRE-REGISTRATION AND HAVE PAID FEES may return the "check-in" cards to the Westcott ticket window on January 4, 5 or 6, 1965 (8-5 each day) at their convenience.

If fees are NOT PREPAID, students MUST RETURN on January 4 (last names beginning M through Z) or Jan. 5 (last names beginning A through L) to check in and pay fees at the Student Union Ballroom.

Failure to check in as indicated will result in cancellation of pre-registration and assessment of a $25 late fee for re-registration. Interns, who have not turned in the check-in card at pre-registration, are not required to return to campus in January. Interns' registration is complete, subject to final check by delinquent accounts for outstanding bills and fee payment.

and was one of the 10 national finalists in the 1963 Metropolitan Opera National Auditions. The other two soloists are both graduate students: Clinton Nichols and Sidney Buckley.

Mrs. Blackwell Gives Degrees

While her husband has been handing out diplomas, Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell has been awarding P.H.T. degrees to wives of FSU students. This week she presided at her fourth and final commencement and received a certificate of appreciation from the Dames Club.

The P.H.T. degree, standing for "Putting Hubby Through," is sponsored by the Dames Club, an organization of student wives. The degree is given to wives of undergraduates and graduate students who work and put their husbands through FSU. Ten degrees were awarded this week. Recipients were: Shirlee (Mrs. Russell) Caswell, Sally (Mrs. Clifton, Jr.) Gunter, Gail (Mrs. George) Knauper, Gayle (Mrs. Thomas) McArthur, June (Mrs. Von) Smith, Vasi (Mrs. Nicholas) Tsales, Joan (Mrs. Frank) Rhoads, Dianne (Mrs. George) Von Borstel, Marion (Mrs. Norman) Williams, and Margie (Mrs. Joseph) Richter.

This was Mrs. Blackwell's last commencement, as she will accompany her husband when he leaves FSU to become president of Furman University.

A certificate presented to her at the meeting stated: "The Florida State Chapter of the National Association of Lyle Blackwell declares Elizabeth Lyles Blackwell an honorary member, this 2nd day of December, 1964, in deep appreciation for her interest and support of Dames Club activities, and for her keen understanding of the art of 'Putting Hubby Through.'"

The FSU chapter was organized in 1962 and was the first to award P.H.T. degrees. Membership has climbed to 80 members in the past year.

Assumptions Wrong About Gator Tickets

By STEVE PRENTICE

A wrong assumption on the part of some FSU students has led to grumblings and ill feeling about seating for the Gator Bowl, according to Jay Tillman, off-campus senator.

In a letter to the editor which appeared in yesterday's "Flambeau," an FSU student charged that information about seats at the Gator Bowl was "purposely attempting to mislead the FSU student into thinking that he is getting some good seats." His reference was to the use of the term of "Old Sideline Stand," which he correctly identified as the end zone.

According to Tillman and Senate President Joyce Killian, there is valid reason for this arrangement. It was explained during a conference with FSU Ticket Office Manager Ron Nelson, that FSU was offered only 2,000 seats for the game and that these would be split into three separate sections. The 2,000 seats would have been partially made of preferred seats and partially end zone.

Through a compromise, however, it was arranged that FSU students would get 3,000 seats and would sit together in the end zone.

With the final arrangement, the end zone will also be partially made of preferred seats, in the end zone.

"I believe that FSU students will be scrambling for Gator Bowl tickets, no matter where they are seated," Tillman said, "And this will just give 1,000 more students a chance to see the game."

"From what we were able to find out, the Old Sideline Stand has always been the end zone and there was no attempt on the part of anyone to deceive the student body," he added.

"The action of the athletic office was in the interest of all FSU students who want to attend the game," he concluded.

Bus Service Discontinued

"The FSU administration cannot support the operation of the campus bus as it has until this time, either with the FSU bus or the city buses," said Acting Associate Dean of Students Jack Arnold yesterday.

Friday, bus transportation across the FSU campus will cease. "Unless there is a decided increase in passengers, there will be no possibility of service continuation in the near future," added Jack Arnold.

The University had previously run the old Garnet and Gold bus across campus, but the lack of finances caused this to cease. After negotiations with the Cities Transit Company, it was decided to operate two city buses on a conditional routing across campus. This lasted four weeks. There was a charge of 10¢ per ride, instead of the usual 20¢ fee.

The city provided the buses and FSU was to support any operating deficiencies. But lack of student support of the bus line has led to its demise. Not enough money was made to support its continuance.

P.H.T. DEGREES

While her husband has been presiding at several commencements, Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell has been issuing P.H.T. degrees to wives of students who have worked to help their husbands get through school.

Flambeau Forum

U.S. Is Peace-Hungry, Feed And Clothe First

To the Editor:

I became a little irritated after having read someone's super-patriotic letter to the Flambeau concerning the refusal of our peace hungry citizens to rise up and throw off the bonds of complacency.

The author of the letter cited an incident in Viet Nam in which four Americans were killed and to which President Johnson replied that no large scale retaliatory action would be taken. What annoyed the author was the fact that the President refused to counter-act and the American people have refused to "wake up" in order to work to effectively eradicate Communism.

Firstly, I should like to ask the letter's author what exactly he proposes to do about waking up. Talking about a war is not quite the same as fighting a war. How can anyone who has never fought in a real war truly understand its hellish rigors? I generally have confidence in how that he is in a most proper position to determine what measures will be assure the well-being of our people. His decision concerning refusal to take full scale retaliatory action was not a hasty, ill conceived one. Before their death, the four soldiers well realized that as men engaged in battle their lives were constantly in jeopardy. Of course, their dying meant something more than a mere aspect of war. But the fact still remains that we have always died and will continue to die on battlefields in defense of their country, an ideology, or a way of life. No wise nation leader would plunge his country into total war and jeopardize the lives of an entire nation—and in our time, practically an entire world—because a few men have been killed in an engagement what that nation had clearly decided to take part in.

Secondly, we are a peace hungry nation. Why shouldn't we be? I know that I am not so enthusiastic about the idea of losing my life, neither are millions of others. This does not mean that if I were called upon to defend my country I would refuse to do so. But as long as we can continue to hope for and realize peace, why shouldn't we?

Thirdly, why blame all Americans for being complacent and refusing to work towards such dangers as Communism when they threaten the very freedom of our existence? This reminds me of the time of President Kennedy's death. There were some lost people who screamed, "All Americans are to blame for the President's death." Take a minute or two to think about such a fantastic statement.

In one fell swoop it aims at finding an easy solution to a problem by pinning the President's death on one big scapegoat—the American people. It disregards the fact that there are thousands of educators working to instill in your Americans a knowledge, appreciation, and respect for the good things in life including the meaning and expression of American ideals, and an understanding of the way of peoples and their cultures abroad.

Perhaps more significantly, it disregards a great segment of our population North, South, East, and West, performing its everyday tasks, which, in a vital aspect, constitute the sheer dynamism of sustained American growth on the social, economic, cultural and political levels. Of course, we must realize that there is still much more to be desired in these areas in the way of progress. This should give us all the more reason to take a fair and realistic attitude toward things.

Finally, I too do not enjoy hearing about the loss of American lives in Viet Nam or anywhere. I strongly believe we should remove our men from Viet Nam altogether. The overwhelming majority of people there could not care less about being Communist, Neutralist, or whatever. They care about being fed and clothed. Hunger probably eclipses all other drives. If people who have died of starvation are strewn all over the land, what does it matter if the specter of Communism, Democracy, or Neutralism hovers over the land? Alright, in the long run, such a thing as the nature of the existing way of life or ideology may mean a great deal; but, before anything else is done, the people must be fed and clothed, and the democracy, if it is to eventually accomplish these things would mean virtually a super-human effort on the part of our forces in fighting to overcome the threat of Communist domination.

We would have to greatly expand our present number of troops with the result that another Korea or another world war would most likely develop. Should another Korea ensue, we would see our troops inevitably drawn far into Communist Chinese territory with the result that many lives would be lost, especially amid guerrilla warfare.

At the moment, I can think of no fitting solution to the Viet Nam situation. The dangers for our survival are too great. For the reasons enumerated above I favor a withdrawal from Viet Nam. Let us hope that an adequate solution can be worked out in the very near future.

'Tired Of Cynics, Crew Cuts, Smut

—Paul Brown—

Not long ago a good friend of mine read a very curious piece of printed literature to me. It is entitled "On Leaving This Place," and it is said to have been written by a graduating senior at Emory.

It could probably very well fit virtually any university in the country. I will not say anything more about it, but please judge it for yourself.

"I'm tired. Tired of puppets instead of people. Of people with crew cuts and tweed coats, pipes and fraternity pins. People who drop s-l-i-l-l-q-u-i-s carefully labeled intelligence.

I'm tired of people who play the dating game like tips at a racetrack. Tired of seeing people use because it's only a game.

Of people who turn love into a social grace and a woman into a piece of beef.

Of watching sincerity fester into smoothness.

I'm tired of cynics who call themselves realists.

Tired of minds rotting in indifference.

Of people bored because they're afraid to care.

Of intellectual games of ring-around-the-rose.

Miss America steps out on campus in the high-stepping Oldsmobile 442

If you can tear your eyes off pretty Vonda Kay Van Dyke for a moment, we'd like to tell you about the car: Oldsmobile's new 4-4-2. Earns its name from a 400-cu.-in., 345-hp V-8 . . . 4-barrel carb . . . and twin pipes. Red-line tires, heavy-duty suspension, three transmission availabilities live up to the package—no matter which F-85 V-8 coupe or convertible you pick for your 4-4-2 action! But the real clincher is price: 4-4-2 prices start lower than any other high-performance car in America designed for everyday driving! Vonda, by the way, is not included. But that's no problem for a tiger like you!

Watch for the 4-4-2 . . . coming to your Oldsmobile Quality Dealer's soon!

... 'Tired'

I'm tired of people who love to be entertained;

Tired of people looking for kicks with a bottle in one hand, and a prophylactic in the other.

Of girls proud of knowing the score and snickering about it.

Of the girls intent on learning the score.

I'm tired of sophisticated slob.

Tired of drunks who are never more than tight.

Of people who tinker with sex until it's smut.

Of people who see understanding goes as deep as 'neat' or 'sharp.'

I'm tired of people who scream they hate it, but won't leave it because they're lazy.

Tired of people with nothing better to do than glue their days together with alcohol.

I'm tired of people embarrassed at honesty, at love, at knowledge.

I'm tired. Yeah, very tired.

So long, Emory.

It could just be Salinger's Holden out of prep school and in college!

Kuersteiner Calls Ninth Symphony One Of Greatest

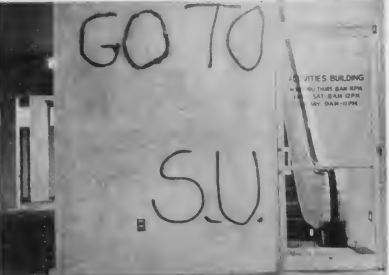

Beethoven's Ninth Symphony is one of the greatest works in Western civilization. Musicians treat it as if it were a great religious event," said K. O. Kuersteiner of the school orchestra, who conducted the symphony's production of the work today at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Beethoven did not consider instrumental music sufficient expression for his masterpiece, so he included a final choral movement, Schiller's Ode to Joy," Kuersteiner explained. He added that this makes the work very difficult to perform.

"We chose the work because we have the facilities here at FSU with the 200-member chorus and 90-piece orchestra, and because the work is so important and exciting," he said.

The performance will feature four soloists: Ethel Donaldson, soprano; Nelson Nichols, tenor; Rose Wildes, contralto; and Sidney Buckley, baritone. Dr. Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, FSU professor of music, will be the conductor.

Beethoven uses the symphony to express his belief in the brotherhood of man, and his optimistic faith in humanity and the joy of living. Kuersteiner noted that music enthusiasts from all over Florida and the southeast are planning to come to see the performance, including the conductors of the Jacksonville, Atlanta and Mobile symphonies.

Inter-Class Council Organized On Service Basis Says Hurlbut

"The Inter-Class Council was organized last Spring by combining the offices of president, vice president and secretary-social chairman of each class for the purpose of providing an effective working body with improved service to the entire Student Body," stated Gary Hurlbut, treasurer of the Council.

The council has participated in various activities this year. During orientation week, they were assisted by the Alpha Council in selling rat caps to incoming freshmen. Directed by Sophomore Council, the members of Inter-Class Council have replaced misplaced and dilapidated Campus Tour signs.

A combined Christmas party, going-away reception for President and Mrs. Gordon W. Blackwell was sponsored by the council Sunday in the Union. Jim Jones, president of the council for this academic year, was in charge of the Serenade Sunday night at the Blackwell's home.

Who's Who nominations and elections were handled by the I.C.C.

"After getting off to a good start this first trimester, the I.C.C. is looking forward to productive second trimester, also," Hurlbut said.

He spoke of the possibility of an annual inter-faculty basketball game sponsored by I.C.C. with proceeds being used to build a traditional structure of some kind in the Union. According to Hurlbut, a long-sought-after sign on Tennessee street denoting the entrance to FSU is now under consideration by the council.

Alumni Village Gets $2,154,600 Addition

By SARA ANN SLOAT

Alumni Village will have a new $2,154,600 development ready for occupancy in September 1965, for married students and their families.

The project will contain 332 units, consisting of 150 one-bedroom, 150 two-bedroom, and 22 three-bedroom apartments.

All the apartments are designed in such a way that there will not be one family living over another. All the one-bedroom units are single-unit units.

All the apartments are furnished except for six of the three-bedroom apartments.

Miss Edith McCollum, director of University Housing said, "Warm and cool color schemes are being used on the outside of the brick units to add more interest."

The units were designed by state architect Forest Kelly, Jr.

Rent is $55 for one-bedroom, $70 for two bedroom, $80 for Three-bedroom and $70 for the unfurnished three-bedroom. The price of utilities is not included in the rent.

There is a recreational area and car-bay for use by the residents. There is also a coin-operated laundry.

Retaliations Not Planned; Kenna

"There is no truth to the rumor that is presently on campus that there will be massive retaliation by the Registrar's Office against those students who have registered before they were scheduled," said Dr. Murray Kenna, registrar.

"The instances of cutting into registration before scheduled times is no worse than it has been in the past," he added.

Kenna mentioned that the main problem is to try to control this so that the student who registers at this proper time will not reach registration and find that all his classes have been closed because of those students who sneak into registration early, obtaining all class cards.

According to Mrs. Valentine, assistant director, "The units are arranged in such a way that they are pleasing to the eye, and do not make the development look like a regular development."

Applications forms are available in the Housing Office and are processed on a first come first serve basis upon receipt of the application and the required $25 deposit.

Union Explained

There will be a program Thursday night in the Moore Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. to acquaint students with the University Union, sponsored by the Union Board of Directors.

Fanny Burnham, chairman of the Union Board of Directors, will open the program with a welcome and an explanation of the board structure. Roy Whitehead, chairman of the Program Council, will talk on the program of the Union for the students.

Tommy Garwood, chairman-to-be of the Program Council will talk on next trimester's program. The film "You in the Union," will be shown and light refreshments will be served.

Classic Film Tonight

The Classic Film Series will present "Caesar and Cleopatra" tonight in Moore Auditorium at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

The film stars Vivien Leigh and Claude Rains in a fine rendition of the G.B. Shaw play.

This is the last film of this series for Trimester I. Admission is 50 cents and open to all who wish to attend.

Books Of Childhood Collection On Display In Strozier Library

Books from FSU's Childhood Library collection containing some of the most memorable rhymes about Christmas are now on display at Strozier Library.

The books are from a personal collection of more than 5,000 rare books given to the Library in 1960 by John McKay Shaw and added to the collection. Shaw is curator of the collection.

One volume printed in 1837 represents the first book printing of Clement C. Moore's "The Night Before Christmas," which originally appeared in the Troy Sentinel in 1822.

Another volume, recently issued, contains the same poem in braille. It was made by retired telephone for blind children.

In addition to many old books the collection in the rare books room and near the circulation desk contains several books of recent years with Christmas rhymes. One book published in 1934 contains a Christmas poem by Shaw.

Mud In Abundance

We were very distressed this past week to discover that the FSU Athletic Dept. in cooperation with Mother Nature had arranged for several thousand tons of mud to be blown onto the campus.

We understand that it was all a grand exercise for the track team. At least members of the track team seem to be the only ones who can get over the puddles and through the mud.

In all seriousness we would like to suggest to the Administration that something be done to alleviate the campus mud surplus. Specifically—we'd like to see (1) sidewalks diagonally across the mud in front of the Business Bldg. and at least one new walk across Landis Green.

(2) There is a very large box culvert under Call Street where it passes the University Union, yet there are only two gutter drains in that section of Call. Last Friday there were several thousand gallons of water at that same spot high enough to get into several cars.

(3) There should be grass planted both in the area south of the Union Bldg. across Call and grass or asphalt put down in the patch of ground adjacent to the Union on the south side plus several other areas.

(4) A sidewalk is badly needed between the Union and the swimming pool.

These are little problems and should be treated like little problems in very little time.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

by STEVE PRENTICE

Student Government at FSU has been described as a miniature of a full scale state government. In order to fall into this classification, Student Government must of course include a court system.

The judiciary at FSU ranges from House Councils which rule on infractions of dorm and housing rules and regulations, to Traffic Court and the Honor Court.

Cases involving stealing, lying and infractions of the Honor Code fall within the jurisdiction of the Honor Court. Cases may also be appealed from the lower courts to the Honor Court which is the highest of the campus judicial bodies.

The student body adopted a new Honor Code during March of this year. It is based on the premise that every student has the responsibility to uphold the highest standards of academic honesty in his own work and to refuse to tolerate academic dishonesty on the part of any other person.

Eight undergraduate, upperclassmen, a chief justice and a clerk make up the court. Investigators, provided through the Attorney General's office provide the court with the facts of each case that comes before it. Defendants are provided with defense counselors or may provide defense for themselves, when brought before the court.

In the words of Hines Boyd, chief justice of the Honor Court, "Though appropriate penalties are set up for violations of the code, our program for making the honor system even stronger is based upon encouraging a high sense of academic responsibility through education, rather than upon threats of discipline."

"A meaningful and vital honor system will play a major role in the development of a greater university."

Scalping Honor Court Offense

The resale of tickets for the Gator football game between FSU and the University of Oklahoma for prices other than those paid is an honor court offense.

Florida Statutes 817.36 on the resale of tickets to amusements, etc., has the following:

Whoever shall offer for sale or sell any ticket for . . . admission to a sporting exhibition or athletic contest . . . where an admission price is charged, and requests or receives a price in excess of one dollar above the price charged therefore by the original seller of said ticket, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine of not less than $500 or more than $1000 or imprisoned for not more than 6 months, or both by fine and imprisonment."

Seminoles Recover Pride In Loss To Alabama Five

FSU lost its second game on the road Monday night, but recovered its pride and spunk. Their own mistakes may have lead to the 76-73 Alabama overtime victory, but the Tide had to fight for the win.

The Seminoles went into the game after a stringing loss to Auburn Saturday night. In that game the Garnet and Gold looked and played shok. At the beginning of the game they didn't look any different.

The Crimson Tide quickly built up a 12 point lead on the foul shots of Bob Andrews who was high point man for the night with 28. The Tide also controlled the backboards, never giving the Tribe a second chance.

In the middle of the first half, Coach Bud Kennedy pulled a rabbit out of his hat in the form of forward Jerry Shirley. Shirley had been out of action with mono and wasn't expected to play.

With the two year veteran on the floor for the first time this year the Seminoles seemed to get new life. They started pulling in rebounds and finding the basket from outside. In the last few minutes of the half they had the momentum and pulled within eight points of the Tide at 38-30.

In the second half the Seminole's surge kept cutting into the Tide lead until with 11:19 left in the game, Ken Leaky canned a jump shot to put the Tribe ahead 50-49.

From then until the end of the game the two teams traded baskets until a foul shot by the Tribe pulled the two teams even at the end of the game, 64-64.

In the overtime period the Tribe's foul play finally caught up with them as Andrews and Charley Craig went to the line for the Tide to put the game out of reach.

The Tribe plays Florida in Tully tonight at 7:45.

Women Senators Go To Miami; Men's Senate Ponders Problems

by MELDIE BETTS

Five representatives of Women's Senate were in Miami last weekend for the first Associations of Women's Students State Convention ever held in Southern Florida. At the same time, Men's Senate met on campus.

Jack Cannon, men's vice president, announced that the city buses would discontinue their service on campus next week. The reason for the discharge of the buses was due to the fact that the Board of Control felt the university was losing money and according to Cannon, they couldn't see why FSU should supply free transportation when no other state-supported school does.

A possible solution to the problem was proposed by Senator Mike Thackston when he stated that if the rides were reduced to five cents (now ten) and if the buses were given more publicity that possibly more students would take advantage of the service.

Other decisions made by the senate were to continue the gun closet, which under the supervision of the security office would offer individuals lockers in which to keep their firearms under lock and key rather than in their rooms which is against university rules. Liphart reported

Secretary of State Tom Adams charged yesterday that one of the new building designs for FSU resembled "something out of Mars" in an attack on the lack of architectural control which exists on state-supported campuses.

Officials of the Board of Control were out of town and there were no immediate replies to the Secretary of State's comments that "not only do the buildings violate campus building harmony, they also involve hopeless design defects which leave needs unfilled and which cost too much money."

Adams revealed that numerous building defects have been uncovered at FSU. His inspection of the new University Union complex revealed only one inside stairway, wide enough for single file traffic, and only one escalator, not wide enough for a wheelchair, leading to the second floor where there is a ballroom large enough to hold 2,000 persons, the Secretary reported.

He claimed that the wooden floor of the large ballroom had been cut across in two places to overcome buckling. Adams said that this was probably a result of poor structural design of the sub-floor.

Use of the Center Auditorium will be limited, charged Adams, because an electrician will have to stand on the side of the stage in full view of the audience for any changes in lighting.

He added that at present no curtain has been installed, and if one were then the seats on the ends of the front row would be behind it.

He explained that complaints from time to time plus design defects revealed by the State Board of Control architects' office to the Cabinet for some time.

Adams has been questioning change orders submitted to the State Board of Control architects' office to the Cabinet for some time.

Defects uncovered by change orders range from improper cost estimates for the foundation at the University of South Florida to the gargantuan architectural masterpiece of the University of Florida. Adams reported that original plans for an addition to the FSU library school, one of seven in the nation, called for classrooms in the sub-basement.

He added that a problem which existed in the Union cafeteria had been corrected by the State Board of Control architects' office to the Cabinet for some time.

"Unless some design controls are placed on the planned Science Center at FSU, each building will be a monument to a different architect," commented Adams.

President Gordon W. Blackwell also expressed a fear that his dream for a well-designed, coordinated Science Center "is not coming about."

Adams, after looking at plans for the latest proposed FSU Science Center building, said that "it looks like something from Mars. It is as much in keeping with the architectural concept of the campus as the Leon County jail."

"This thing needs to come to a halt," he concluded. Adams said, "There is a Board of Control, a Board of Commissioners of State Institutions, a Board of Education -- and the result of a building and its use is a job, then we should find out why."

BOP Rules 'Smoke Signals' OK

By SARA ANN SLOAT

Because of several complaints about the tone of the "Smoke Signals," the Board of Publications ruled yesterday that the magazine is fulfilling its purpose as a general interest magazine and will be allowed to continue to do so.

The Board passed a motion to review the publication after each edition.

Jim Preston, editor of the "Smoke Signals," was officially commended for his fine work on the magazine. It was decided by the Board that the "Legend," the campus literary magazine, should be copyrighted in order to keep other publications from using their material.

A Student Publications Workshop and Publicity Week are being planned for the spring to increase interest in the publications and to recruit more staffers.

Ginger Lewis, line-editor of the Tally Ho, said "There are still about 200 Tally Ho's on sale on a first come first serve basis. They may be obtained in room 336 of the Union Activities Bldg. for $3."

Carolyn Christensen, editor of the "Legend," stated "Material is still being accepted for the next edition. The deadline for this material is next Friday."

Pat Freeman, chairman of the Board of Publications, and Bob Haynie, member of the Board, submitted their resignations to the Board. They cannot remain on the Board because they will be interning.

Fannon Named Assis. Director

The appointment of Pete Fannon, formerly a representative of Prentice-Hall, as assistant director of admissions was announced today. Dr. Harry Day, dean of students, said Fannon is assigned to the office of Director of Admissions Willis Caldwell.

Fannon has been serving the publishing firm at North Florida representative of the Textbook Division since shortly after getting a bachelor's degree. He was the first to graduate from Jacksonville University, in January, 1959. He was first winner of the Outstanding Leadership Club at Jacksonville.

He played basketball at the Jacksonville school, winning All American honorable mention in the 1958-59 season.

Pats And Pans

Congratulations to the members of Women's Glee Club and to Miss Betty Jane Grimm for one of the most successful performances of the annual Christmas Vespers ever given at FSU.

The size of the audience (standing-room only) was the largest ever, according to several long-time fans of the Vespers Program.

It is somehow heartening to think that so many students took time out from their last-minute cramming for finals to soak in a little Christmas "seasonality."

The time has come, as the Walrus said, not to speak of anything so mundane as cabbages or kings, but to talk of time.

It is a bit unnerving to dash madly from the shelter of the History Bldg. at 8:55 a.m. (by the History time pieces) and to arrive at the Education Bldg. fifteen actual minutes later anywhere from five to fifty-five minutes earlier or later (by the Education Bldg. time pieces).

A discrepancy of one or even two minutes in time across campus might be understandable (even time takes time), but the individuality expressed in our "official" guardians of time on campus is just a little far-fetched for a modern university.

Students suffer penalties depending on the whims of erratic Father Time, when the installation of a central time system would more than pay for itself in the confusion saved by students, faculty and staff in their day-to-day battle with the chronic shortage of enough minutes in the day.

There was a time when there was one time. Let's go back to the "good old days" when time was time, gang.

Flag Stands For Cowardice

Recently there was an article published in this paper concerning the lack of pride that we Americans have in "Old Glory." Now, whether this assertion is true or not I cannot say, however, that there is good cause for such a condition to exist is quite understandable.

Not too many years ago, the Stars and Stripes represented, besides God, motherhood, and George Washington, the concept of courage.

If it weren't for the courage of our forefathers, this great country might never have been conceived; if it weren't for the courage of those men who were willing to risk their lives and fortunes, in order to keep the United States true to its name, our country may today have been two separate lands; if it weren't for the G. I.'s who braved the dangers of war, in order to destroy the worst Frankenstein in the history of the world, Adolph Hitler, we might have been victims of Nazi concentration camps on American and not European soil.

Whereas "Old Glory" stood for courage in the past, it stands for cowardice, vacillation, acquiescence and an embracing of socialism in the present. Instead of representing our Cuban, Southeast Asian and foreign aid policies, our government is too busy trying to strike out the terms "individualism," "singular" and "man" from our language.

Whenever I see our flag, I visualize dead Americans in the swamps of Viet-Nam, communist grown fat on American's wheat, our U.S. Information Service Library in Jakarta destroyed and our banner replaced by the Indonesian flag, after "Old Glory" had first been desecrated; college students in California occupying jail cells, because they desired political freedom, dead women and children whose lives were taken by Congolese cannibals and the world's treasure swollen with American foreign aid.

Yet, in light of all of our troubles, what are our leaders doing? Our congressmen are taking pleasure trips to Hawaii on public funds; our statesmen are busy preparing impressive speeches, rather than effective policies; and our President is declaring that we are building the foundation for the "Great Society."

You know, I wonder if "Old Glory" isn't getting a little sick herself?

'Anarchy, You Say - So Be It'

We are entering a radically new socio-economic system. Its requirements are as different from those of the industrial age as those of the industrial age were different from the agricultural.

In the agricultural age, human skill combined with human and animal power in a system which provided a minimal standard of living for the vast majority of the people and a leisure existence for a small elite. In the industrial age, which we are now living, human skills were combined with machine power to provide great wealth for a few, a reasonable standard of living for many and abject poverty for those unable to find a place within the productive system.

Today the Cybernation productive system is emerging—a new innovation in productive techniques and organization based on machine power and machine skill. Cybernation is the process of linking a computer, which is effectively a machine which will make decisions, and using it to control automated machinery.

The application of Cybernetics to the productive system will mean that 90% of the toil by men and women can be done by machines, possibly within a decade. Machines will be capable of producing goods for everyone—while at the same time keeping themselves in repair and even manufacturing replacement parts for themselves. (The machines that is!)

A Rand Corporation computer expert, Richard Bellman, estimates that in the discernable future, 90 per cent of the population will be able to produce all the goods and services needed to feed, clothe, and run our society, with the aid of machines.

A year ago, the Research Institute of America, an organization reflecting the views of scientists declared that, "The moment of truth on automation is coming—a lot sooner than most people realize. The shattering fact is that the U. S. is still almost totally unprepared for the approaching crisis."

Robert Theobald, a Columbia University economist, insists that it will no longer be necessary for man to earn his bread by the sweat of his brow. He states that the idea that we can continue to aim at finding a job for everybody is obsolete.

Because both conservatives and liberals are still committed to operating within the existing industrial system, they have failed to grasp that the coming of Cybernation out modes it.

In the next ten years it will be cheaper and more effective to carry out the vast majority of repetitive physical and mental tasks with the aid of machines rather than men. At this point, the industrial system will no longer function because the fundamental social and political requirements required for its continuance will no longer exist.

In a cybernated society, work will no longer be essentially a labor payment, but rather the full use of an individual's potential for the material and cultural benefits of the system and his own self-fulfillment.

In the same way, it is no longer by the time not spent in the factory that the individual's potential for self-fulfillment and benefit of his fellow man is increased.

I assume the benefits of the system from toil, and therefore that our efforts should be directed toward the speediest adoption and broadest application of Cybernation. It is the income-producing link that acts as the main factor in the capacity of a cybernated productive system. This link has been broken.

Man must be provided, as it is right, guaranteed employment. Non-working men cannot now live in the future, even though creative process without need income for their support and for their life of education and training. (Russia) worries about this.

Federal Expenditures Stated Beneficial

Large federal expenditures for higher education "have had a great and generally beneficial impact" in recent years, Dr. Werner Baum, vice-president for academic affairs at the University of Miami said recently in a lecture at the Government Department's Lecture Series.

Since World War II, Baum said, the federal government has provided substantial sums "to finance educational activities which it deemed to be of special importance to the national interest."

Baum, former director of research and dean of faculties at FSU, said that probably more than two billion dollars per year is expended by the federal government to support educational and research activities.

"These funds come from dozens of agencies under the cabinet and from numerous independent offices, such as the National Science Foundation and the Atomic Energy Commission, and the 'heavy scientific orientation' of the federal government's program has led some academicians to charge that "graduate education was being distorted" but Baum said graduate enrollments are increasing faster in some non-science fields than in science.

"It may be a shock to those who like to think otherwise, but it is clear that the vast sums invested in science have not significantly raised the proportion of graduate enrollment in the sciences," he said.

"For some twenty years now, the United States has been cloaked in a mantle of world leadership. Whether we sought this or not, whether we like it or not, the responsibility is ours. With it comes the responsibility for leadership in science, for it is the key to prosperity and possibly to peace for mankind in our era," Baum explained.

"World leadership could not have come to us if the government had not possessed both the enlightenment and the mechanisms to allow American scientists to take up the challenge, and if the nation had not been willing to invest heavily in science," he added.

"The federal government, the universities, and the scientific community have worked together in the forging of a durable and flexible alliance. As a whole, the system of support of research in the university by federal funds is a fine example of responsible government in action," he said.

"Very recently we have become more sharply aware of the broader significance of higher education and research beyond the narrow realm of science, to our well being as individuals and a nation. We have therefore embarked on new streams of government-campus relationships. Either the government of the United States will find the policies and the additional resources which permit our universities to flourish and their duties to be adequately discharged, or no one will," Baum declared.

Novel Given To Strozier Library

An inscribed copy of "My Enemy, My Brother," a first novel by Mrs. Adele Waldeman, who does most of her writing at Sarasota, has been presented to Strozier Library.

The novel, about a Jewish family in Germany during the Nazi regime, received many favorable reviews after it was issued in 1963 by Thomas Yoseloff. New York publisher.

"The first novel of Adele Waldeman is tender and absorbing, but explosive and devastating in its indictment of a humanity that lost its sanity and turned into a beast to gore its own kind to death," said a review by Frank Veale Jr., in the Atlanta Constitution.

Mrs. Waldeman is now working on a sequel to the novel and expects to complete a trilogy.

Karl Zerbe Contributes Picture

A 1962 painting by Karl Zerbe is one of two by Florida artists in the 1964 Pittsburgh International Exhibition now being shown and the show also contains works of three painters who were taught by Zerbe.

One of Zerbe's former students, Ellsworth Kelly, was the only American to win a prize.

Zerbe's paintings, "Trinidad White

No. 1," painted in 1962, was loaned by the Nordness Gallery, The exhibition of art from more than 30 countries lasts through Jan. 10 at the Museum of Art, Carnegie Institute.

In addition to Zerbe's painting, Florida is represented by "Heads," painting by Hiram Williams of the University of Florida.

Zerbe, who won third prize in the Carnegie International in 1948, is represented by two other paintings in the Gallery Vendome exhibition, also being held in Pittsburgh.

Zerbe's other former pupils whose works are in the show are David Aronson and Alejandro Obregon.

HPER Chooses FSU Professors

Four FSU faculty members have been elected to offices in the Florida Association of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Dr. Mary Virginia Alexander, dept. of physical education and recreation, was elected president-elect of the Association at its annual state convention in Clearwater, Dec. 5-7.

Jack Haskin, physical education and recreation, was elected vice president-elect of recreation and Dr. Marion Riser Jr., health education dept., vice president-elect of health education.

Edward Cubbon, physical education and recreation, was elected district director of the north Florida area.

...Anarchy

Americans worry about Socialism and Communism.

But the revolution, that is destined to make ancient neanderthals out of both, is the Cybernation Revolution. Cybernation bids fair to fossilize all the fantastic 'isms' now existing in the world.

In a world of real material abundance, and freedom from work--who will need private enterprise or the Dictatorship of the Proletariat? Under such conditions, why should the individual be so coerced and saddled with such obsolete political and social systems? Anarchy, you say? Well, so be it.

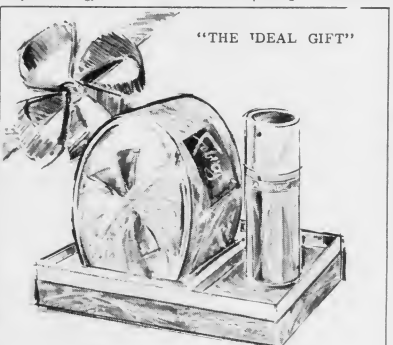

For humane man, living in non-competitive conditions of freedom from toil and of universal affluence, anarchy is simply the appropriate state of society.

Students Pull Hair At Registration While Housewives Man Stations

While students are pulling their hair, screaming about closed courses, and fighting their way through re-registration, there are some 45 townspeople in the Suwannee Room who are enjoying themselves.

To facilitate smooth registration and to ease the burden on various departments, the registrar's office has employed some 45 Tallahassee housewives to man the stations at pre-registration this semester.

"This is a welcome change from housework," reported one worker. "It's really sort of fun."

"If I didn't enjoy it, I wouldn't be here," said another. "You just get so tired of housework."

Many of the women admit preferences for one station or another, saying that, "The fatter back you get in the room the madder the students get when you hold them up." Extra Christmas money leads the list of reasons for the employment of some of the women. "It's so close to Christmas and this is a fun way to earn a few extra pennies," smiled one mother of three.

Coordinator of this year's pre-registration is Miss Martha Ann Gray. Besides doing the hiring of the women, Miss Gray conducts an instruction program for the workers a few days in advance of registration. "Registration is really going along rather smoothly," according to Miss Gray. "The students are being cooperative for the most part and the workers are doing just fine."

Miss Gray chooses pre-registration workers from a cumulative list of women who have worked for FSU in the past. "Some of these women have been doing this for 15 years," she comments.

Not entirely woman's work, pre-registration at other times of the year often involves several male student assistants as well as female employees.

"It is certainly a great deal to help January registration in a great deal," said Miss Gray. "Since we spread it out over a two-week period it wasn't really too much of a load on anyone."

CONFUSION PLUS SIMPLIFICATION

...as the old familiar story of Pre-Registration, as the eternal cause the sometimes painful process of registering.

FORD MOTOR COMPANY BUILDS A TOUGH ONE

IT SWIMS

Ford Motor Company's new military truck floats. Airtight hull and internal air reserves keep this buoy and mechanical components dry. Its water speed is 2.5 mph.

IT CLIMBS STEPS

Climbing over a 20-inch high step at a 60° grade when fully loaded is no problem for this Ford vehicle. Proof that it can go over rough cross-country terrain.

IN FACT, THE ARMY'S NEW TRUCK GOES ALMOST ANYWHERE

Early in 1963 Ford Motor Company received a contract from the U.S. Army to design and develop a 5-ton cargo truck for use in tactical military operations. Before the end of that year, the first test unit had been designed and built.

This new vehicle, called the XM656 cargo truck, was sent to the Aberdeen Proving Ground for 40,000 miles of testing—twice that required for military acceptance. The vehicle was tested against road conditions that might be found anywhere in the world: swamps, loose sand, hilly backcountry... and highways. During the test, the truck carried a 10,000-lb payload and, half the time, towed a 13,000-lb ballast.

Outstanding characteristics of the truck's design are its floatability, improved cross-country mobility, light weight, reduced need for maintenance and a multi-fuel power plant that will run on anything from diesel oil to gasoline.

This is only one of many exciting new developments at Ford Motor Company. From manufacturing to marketing, we are finding better ways to do things. Career opportunities at Ford Motor Company have never been better. Schedule an interview with our representative to find one just right for you.

Seminoles Sip By Gators

By BOB CORNET
Flambeau Sports Editor

With three seconds left in a 50-50 tie in Tully last night, Gary Schull put his two sprained wrists in the air for the first of two free throws. The ball went up, bounced around the rim and out. The Seminole fans let out a sonic boom and Schull called time. Coming back to the line he took two deep breaths and then dropped in the winning one point.

Both teams came to the floor at the start of the first half showing none of the jitteriness that characterized their first few games. FSU seemed to have come out of the last close loss a stronger team with lots of guts.

After the big Florida squad had taken the tip off--their center had a three inch advantage in Schull--they were unable to score as the Tribe showed a tight defense.

The Gators got the first two points of the game finally in the third minute of play. The Seminoles quickly matched them. The game stayed relatively even from there to the last two minutes of play when the Gators pulled ahead.

Before those final moments of the half the Seminoles, led by Jerry Shirley, the Tribe's high scorer with 18, and backed up by Schull and Lewis, stayed up with the gasping Gators. Nick Toolin, Brooks Henderson, Tom Baxley, and Gary Koller.

Baxley was the Gators' scoring leader with 14.

Both teams kept the early scoring down with close played defense. Florida even went so far as to open with a full court press. Midway in the first stanza, the Tribe initiated this move.

The solid zone that Florida threw at the Gatornet and Gold forced the Tribe to shoot from outside, but they were equal to the task with the long guns of Shirley and Schull.

Despite being 31-26 at the half, the Tribe led in the statistics, shooting 500 from the floor and 246 from the foul line. Florida hit 324 from the floor and 582 off the line.

Whatever Coach Bud Kennedy said to the team in the dressing room last night has been potent to cause the Seminoles came out at half time determined to match their statistically lead with a scoring lead.

Lewis got things started with a 5-0 shot that brought the Tribe within four points. The Schull and Shirley put the Gatornet and Gold closer with foul shots and foul shooting.

Before closing the gap at 5:30 of the game, the Tribe showed true Christmas spirit by letting Florida rebound slip out of their hands and thus gave the Reptiles two, three and sometimes four chances to score. But the butter-chained grunters couldn't do a thing.

At 5:03 in the game, high scoring Shirley stepped to the line with the score 45-44. Florida, he canned his two free throws to put the Tribe out in front for the second time in the evening.

JERRY SHIRLEY

...was the night's leading scorer with 15 points in the first half, but he was out of the game for the second time in the game for Shirley who has been out with a knee injury.

PETE GONZALES

...appears to be one slightly hunched up Seminole, but he gets his shot away anyway, and scores the winning point last night.

Bowl Bound Seminoles Set 32 School Records

By CRAIG REISING
Assistant Sports Editor

The football season officially ended last week, but the top teams in the nation continue to practice for the upcoming Bowl games. FSU is no exception to this rule as the team prepares to meet Oklahoma, January 2 in the Gator Bowl.

The Seminole team which will play in Jacksonville broke or tied 32 school records this year, 29 of which were set by either quarterback Steve Tensi, flankerback Fred Bilenkoff, or place kicker Les Murdock.

The team tied previous school records for victories with eight, yards passing, 2029, and passes completed in a season, 147.

Ironically, Tensi and Bilenkoff, set their individual records for a single game in the VPI clash which resulted in FSU's only defeat. Tensi completed 21 out of 39 passes and Bilenkoff caught 11 passes for 182 yards.

The only record which the trio failed to shatter was for one-game passing yardage set by Joe Majors in 1959 against Tampa when he hit for 313 yards.

Six foot, five inch Tensi finished his career in a blaze of glory, finishing 13 single game, season, and career records. His final 1964 figures read 121 completions, including 14 touchdowns, out of 204 attempts for 1683 yards and 1637 yards total offense, all school records.

His career Bilenkoff established himself as the greatest offensive player to ever wear the Gatornet and Gold uniform in the 18 year history of FSU football. He established records for one game, season, and career marks for passes caught and points scored.

Fleet Fred scored 11 touchdowns and scooped in 57 receptions for 987 yards, bringing his career record to a grand total of 87 receptions for 1,463 yards and 17 TD's. The talented too of Les Murdock scored 49 points this season, including three decisive touchdowns against the University of Florida for a record number of field goals scored in one game. All in all, Murdock booted nine of fourteen field goals through the uprights and 22 of 26 extra point attempts.

Also setting the pace for the Seminoles' bowl bid were Don Floyd with 41 receptions for 556 yards, determined runners Phil Spooner, who averaged 3.7 yards for a net gain of 557, Lee Narramore and team mate Wayne Giardino, who burrowed through opposing defensive lines. Leading the Magnificent Seven and Formidable Four were Frank Penne as career recoverer of fumbles for FSU, Avery Sumner and Dale MacKenzie, along with the big fist of Bill McDowell which batted down enemy passes.

George D'Allesandro, Howard Eubank, and Mury Eubank, who intercepted six passes, added to the powerful defensive attack which held opponents to only 43 first downs, 75 yards rushing, 1061 yards passing, and 66 points, and forced opponents to punt 74 times and fumble 32 times (of which FSU recovered 23).

Florida State Orchestra Gives Beethoven's 'Ninth Symphony'

By TOM MIMMS

The 200-piece State Symphony of Florida and a 200-voice chorus will present Beethoven's Ninth Symphony tonight at 8:15 p.m. in Westcott Auditorium.

Dr. Richard Burgin, associate conductor of the Boston Symphony and FSU music professor, will be guest conductor.

Dr. Robert Sedore, professor of music, will conduct the opening number, the overture to Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersinger von Nurnberg."

SOLOISTS FOR BEETHOVEN'S NINTH SYMPHONY

Clinton Nichols, tenor; Ethel Donaldson, soprano; Rose Wildes, contralto; and Sidney Buckley, baritone review tonight's program with guest conductor, Dr. Richard Burgin.

"The overture is a magnificent piece of music that is commonly used as a symphonic number," Burgin explained.

"It is a forceful work, expressing the dignity and authority of the mastersingers of the medieval German guilds," he added.

Regarding Beethoven's Ninth Symphony, Burgin said that the last movement is especially important not only because of the greatness of the music, but because it is choral and nearly all symphonies are solely instrumental.

"Many people feel that the last movement is the greatest one, but then many others feel that the first or second movements are the greatest. It depends upon the listener," Burgin stated.

The choral movement requires a quartet. "Although the number they sing is short, it is extremely difficult because Beethoven did not have a high regard for the human voice," he added.

The quartet includes Ethel Donaldson, soprano; Clinton Nichols, tenor; Rose Wildes, contralto; and Sidney Buckley, baritone.

O'Connell Selected To Speak For Tully Gym Commencement

Justice Stephen C. O'Connell of the Florida Supreme Court will be the speaker for commencement ceremonies scheduled in Tully Gymnasium at 8 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 12.

The registrar's office said approximately 800 candidates for degrees are completing their work during the fall trimester ending with the commencement.

President Gordon W. Blackwell will be presiding at his last commencement at FSU. He leaves in February to become president of his alma mater, Furman University.

O'Connell is a native of West Palm Beach. Before his appointment to the Court by former Gov. LeRoy Collins he practiced law at Ft. Lauderdale.

O'Connell received his law degree from the University of Florida in 1940. While studying at Florida he was president of the student body.

of Florida Blue Key and of Alpha Tau Omega and captain of the boxing team. He began his practice of law in 1940 and after Air Force service during World War II resumed his practice in April, 1946.

'Gifts Of The Modern Magi'

By JAMES TRAMMEL COX

The season of lights and gifts again. Some hearts: their lights, the star of Bethlehem; their gifts, the ancient magi's gifts' gain.

Christ, the King, is born again for them.

For those with other lights, other gifts. These lights deface, these lights disgrace.

The modern magi, lacking gold, make shift.

With gift of self, and do despair of ancient grace.

Through gifts of gold, and myrrh and frankincense.

(All tokens old employed in sacrifice)

Thus for golden gifts, this recompense. From modern magi must suffice. These measured lines so meanly meaning well: Best wished to all; to all unjoyous Noel

Code Refined By Justice H. Boyd

In response to a concern shown by the administration, Hines Boyd, chief justice of the Honor Court, has issued the following statement about violations of the Honor Code.

"With the approach of finals, students begin to feel the pressure and to concern themselves even more with the standards established by the Academic Honor Code.

"The Code defines academic dishonesty in the form of cheating as (1) receiving any unauthorized information during an examination, (2) sealing, buying or selling an examination, or (3) referring to a copy of such examination before it has been administered.

"The Code further indicates that any student who is tolerant toward these forms of dishonesty is also subject to Honor Court action.

"A student confronted with one of these violations should report the incident to the teacher of the course or the Honor Court. He may also demand that a person in the act of cheating stop immediately or face the consequences of being reported.

"Penalties may include probation, suspension, or expulsion from the university."

GRK Exam Changed

The time and place for the GRK French Exam has been changed to 9 a.m., Dec. 12. It will be given in room 102 Business.

The German, Spanish, Latin, Russian, and Italian exams will be given at 9, Dec. 12, in room 228 Conradi, by state funds.

Geology Building Addition Set

"The removal of the palm trees and clearance of the area in front of the Mathematics Meteorology Bldg. is for the construction of an addition to the Geology Bldg." Monte Drake, Asst. Director for Planning announced today.

Dr. Goodell, asst. professor of Geology, said "The new building will be called the Anarcitic, Marine Geology Research Facility."

The building has been given to the university by the National Science Foundation, and is not supplemented by state funds.

Most of the facility will be a climate-controlled storage area for deep sea cores from the Anarcitic. Fifteen graduate students have participated in a project in which researchers go out in the USNS Eltanin for two months. This ship is now cruising the South Pacific and will soon go down to the Anarcitic.

The deep sea cores will be brought back to the Geology Bldg. and stored for research.

The palm trees are being replanted around the campus.

Bowl Tickets Sold

Three thousand tickets will go on sale Monday at 8 a.m. in Tully Gym. Students may purchase any reasonable number of tickets at $6 piece.

All Good Things End Gee, Folks, I'm Sure Proud Of FSU

All good things have to come to an end.

From that beginning one may instantly deduce that this editorial is not written about the end of the trimester.

Today marks the end of a most fruitful association between the "Flambeau" and Miss Pat Freeman, our news feature, and general humor editor for four years, and the grand matriarch and mother confessor of the "Flambeau" staff.

Pat is one of those people who has a triple major, maintains a 3.5 grade point average, is a member of too many clubs, organizations and honoraries to mention.

Besides all this she has found time to spend fifteen hours a day cajoling, pleading and ordering our diminishing reporting staff and writing the news herself when things get hectic.

We know that this all sounds a little incredible but Pat is pretty incredible.

We all will miss her next trimester.

We can't refrain any longer.

Finals are approaching, the staff is diminishing, grades are dropping, tempers are on edge, and things generally are in a state of confusion.

Despite all this, a sly note of cheer has somehow crept into our office. Maybe it's the Welkian yuletide carols piped in over the loudspeakers, maybe it's the relieved look on the face of Marshall, our production manager on learning that this is the last "Flambeau" for the trimester.

What ever it is, it has undermined our usual note of cynicism.

Anyhow, Merry Christmas.

E.L.C.

To the Editor:

Enclosed is a short epistle which I recently managed to retrieve from the dead-letter office in the campus post office. Whoever wrote it used a Christmas seal for a stamp, and it was addressed to: "Mommy and Daddy, Pine Cone Creek, Tenn." Thought you might get a kick out of it.

Dear Mom and Dad,

Gee—believe it or not, my college education is over half-completed already! It really is hard to believe. Pretty soon I'll be in the ranks of the loyal alumni—uhh, well, er ahh—the Alumni, anyway.

Thinking back, it really has been great fun. No decisions to make, really—the people in Westcott have had everything thought out before and hand just like you two used to do. They are such nice folks, the administration—always thinking about our welfare. It's heartening to know how much respect they have for the college student.

As an example of how they help us think everything out for ourselves, you remember last year when I told you how they let us pick out half our courses all by our little ones? Well, that's not as scary as it sounds, because they don't offer a third of the courses in the catalog, and the ones they do offer are at 10:30 in the mornings so only have to close my eyes and nod one, and hope the section is still open. See how easy it is to make decisions on our own? They really are good to us, aren't they?

By the way, I hope Hayden Burns doesn't do away with the trimester system! I just discovered that I will be short six hours for graduation.

Peace Does Not Happen By Itself

To the Editor:

Contrary to Mr. Mickey Harrison's pessimism concerning Viet Nam, I should like to point out that the U.S. has at last closed a very important gap that had existed with Russia, and now is pulling ahead. I refer of course to the "Death Gap." Since 1961, an estimated 66,000 Viet Cong have been killed and 22,000 wounded, this puts us way ahead of the Russians and the total they scored in Hungry in the vital field of killing. We now have a good chance for beating the all-time record set by France in Algeria. And of course it's vital for America to be first in every field. So cheer when you read that another Viet Cong has been killed, another one has been burned alive by flaming jellied gasoline and another's body has been broken by a grenade and left with his blood dripping to fertilize the soil. Patriotic Americans stand up and cheer for the record set by France in Algeria.

Of course, not all the deaths are directly attributable to the American "advisors" in Viet Nam. But since for the last five years at least the government in power has existed solely because of our support we can claim the "credit."

In fact, since the war goes on only because we are there we might even wish to claim the 63,000 casualties to government forces and civilians. And innocent civilians make up more than half of that number.

Talk of a Death Gap may be absurd, but it is surely no more absurd than to compare an attack by a foreign nation on an American territory, (Pearl Harbor), with an attack by the people of a foreign country against American "advisors" stationed in that country in open violation of an international agreement we swore to uphold. (Viet Nam).

Two news stories broke simultaneously recently. One was the Walter Jenkins case. The other was a report that during the 1962 Cuban missile crisis about half of the members of the informal 12-man "Executive Committee" (Composed of top officials from the Cabinet and the National Security Council) urged that the U.S. bomb Cuba without negotiation or warning.

drone spy plane violations of the sovereign air space of China, that accept the concept of bombing nations we are not at war with, (Cuba and North Viet Nam).

No, the American people are not really peacehungry. They want peace sure. But they want peace at no price whatsoever. They want peace just to happen. And sooner or later they are going to find out that peace won't just happen by itself. It never will.

Anthony Harrison

Printing By Candle, At The 'Flambeau'

By Sand T. Clause
Flambeau Feature Writer

Sometimes it looks like the "Flambeau" is not going to get out at all.

At least that is what it has seemed like to the few regular staffers left on the FSU campus daily newspaper. Starting with a reporting staff of over 30 and a line editor staff of eight, the former cast has dwindled to five or six reliable reporters and three editors, who on occasion are the only ones in the office during the day.

Besides the difficulty of recruiting staffers under the pressure of the trimester system and the keen competition for grades, the "Flambeau" has also had trouble in its technical production.

The "Flambeau" is printed by an offset press which is considerably different from the hot lead, linotype using papers, so familiar in movies and common to big city dailies.

Offset is a method where the molds or plates from which the final paper is taken are done photographically. Thus the "Flambeau" is set in cold type (or simply the pasting down of the material on a special page) and then the photographing of this page to make the mold.

The paper is printed by the Dixie Printing Co., which was low bidder for the contract this year. Dixie has not been used to printing anything of the size and regularity of the "Flambeau". Therefore several mistakes have been made, such as poor picture reproduction and an occasional switching of pictures. This simply will have to be worked out as both sides become adjusted to one another.

The actual paste-up for the "Flambeau" is done in the Publication Laboratory, located down the hall from the "Flambeau" office in the Activities Bldg. of the University Union.

The lab uses "Justwriters," which type the raw copy on a justified or controlled 8-point news print column. This copy is then pasted down, along with any pictures that may be used, on flats which are then sent to the printer.

Again the "Flambeau" has had some difficulties with this end of production, due mostly to change happenings.

Several times the justwriters have broken down and typing has been delayed until late in the evening. Other times include the headline machines being out of order and a laborious process of hand-setting individual pieces of type is required. One may imagine the problems involved by cutting our each letter of the headlines of a typical "Flambeau" and then trying to paste them letter by letter onto a different sheet of paper.

Last Thursday, the "Flambeau" was put together by candlelight as there was no power in the Union. These seem to outsiders to be crises. However, to veteran staffers it has become routine.

There are times when both of the men responsible for the "Flambeau" paste-up have been sick, requiring the editors to take over the production end also.

"Flambeau" deadlines are 6 p.m. for copy unless emergencies or late stories require an extension and a 12 midnight deadline to the printers.

Work usually begins in the "Flambeau" office around 2 p.m. and lasts through writing, layout, production adjustment and proof-reading until approximately 10:30 p.m. or 11 p.m., depending on the size of the paper.

The editors and reporters are expected to carry a normal load of course hours, however, so studying usually doesn't begin until late and ends much later if it begins.

This coupled with class time and the innumerable meetings attended simply as a function of the office, tend to make an editor's life a harried one.

Asked why they stay, however, brings replies of responsibility to the University and student body plus the thrill of seeing the finished production the next morning, day after day, week after week.

Collins Elected To Opera Office

Richard Collins, director of opera at FSU, has been selected vice president in charge of conventions of the National Opera Association.

The election took place at the annual convention in Denver.

The National Opera Association consists of individuals and organizations actively engaged in opera production throughout the United States and Canada. Its purpose is to encourage opera composition and production, particularly at the local and regional level.

"We definitely seek to encourage the decentralization of opera, so that it will be possible for singers to live in Tallahassee or Miami or California, and earn a living in opera," Collins said.

FSU Sponsors Charter Plane

A charter plane sponsored by FSU will carry students, faculty, and former students and faculty to Europe this summer.

Leaving New York June 21 and flying to Madrid, the plane will return London to New York Aug. 19. The cost of the round-trip flight will be $260 to $265.

Immediate families of students and faculty are eligible to take the trip. On board will be two travel-credit groups.

Dr. Gildner Bosch, head of Fine Arts Dept., will lead a group in art history with three or six hours credit.

For further information contact either Mrs. Dillingham or Dr. Bosch.

SG Needs Sec.

According to Student Body President John Mering, Student Government is in dire need of a secretary who can work 15 hours a week, from 9:30 a.m. until 12:30 p.m. daily.

According to Student Government officials, the person hired must be willing to sacrifice time, effort, blood, sweat and tears along with the rest of the crew.

She must be able to type and do general office work, and will receive $15 per week or $1 per hour. Students who are interested should contact Nancy May or Marty Rankin in the Student Government office after noon weekdays.

Work for the new secretary will begin with the second trimester.

Parties Head Week For Greeks

ALPHA CHI OMEGA--The Alpha Chi's enjoyed their annual Christmas party and exchange of gifts Monday. A special farewell was extended to the leaving interns.

ALPHA PHI--At the recent scholarship dinner Florence Floyd was nominated for the highest active average and Mary Ball for the highest pledge average.

ALPHA OMEGA--Last weekend the AOP's entertained their collegiate director, Miss Sara Smith.

Founder's Day banquet and program was held Tuesday.

Jan Cheeley is pledge of the week. Sunday night the annual Christmas tree trimming party was held.

ALPHA XI DELTA--Santa visited the Alpha Xi's Monday when they held their Christmas party with carols, tree trimming, and presents.

CHI OMEGA--The seniors were entertained at a dinner Sunday night by the Tallahassee alums.

Pledges honored their "big sister" last weekend in a "Owl Hoot."

Wednesday night the chapter held the annual Christmas party with the toys exchanged going to children in Tallahassee.

DELTA CHI--The Delta Chi's had a tree decorating party last night with the Little Sisters of the White Carnation.

There will be a record party at the house tomorrow night to close off the trimester.

DELTA DELTA DELTA--At the annual Christmas party Monday the pledges gave a skit and Santa came to give out presents. Tuesday the Tallahassee alums honored the seniors with a dinner at the home of Mrs. William Kidd.

New Tri Delta officers are Andy Meng, president; Barbara Bell, vice president; Mimi Webb, corresponding secretary; Susie Hill, recording secretary; Linda Teague, chaplain; Connie Frindle, rush chairman; Lynn Phillips, recommendations chairman; Suzanne Duff, marshal; Vicki Cramer, social chairman; Sandy Greer, scholarship chairman; Lynn Patrick, treasurer; Andrea Fuller, music chairman; and Nancy Ashley, Panhellenic representative.

DELTA GAMMA--The newly installed officers discussed plans for the year at a retreat at the reservation Saturday.

The DG's will hold their Christmas party tonight.

The DG's enjoyed having their province secretary, Mrs. Mayo, with them for the past two weeks. Sara Adams was active of the month, and Pam Winning was pledge of the month.

KAPPA ALPHA--New chapter officers are Lamar Thomas, corresponding secretary; Rusty Shenk, treasurer; Mike Huey, parliamentarian; Tommy Carter, doorteeper; and Sid Pickard, sergeant at arms.

The annual Christmas dance will be held tomorrow night featuring the traditional exchange of gifts between the brothers.

KAPPA KAPPA GAMMA--Tuesday the graduating seniors held a "football banquet", and tonight after closing hours will find the Kappa's at their annual Christmas party. Marsha Love was selected Kappa of the Month.

"Mr. Thomson....please!"

Please tell me how you manage to make me look so great on campus. The only thing I can't pass now is a crowd of boys. Those vertical stretch pants follow the sleek line of most resistance. And guarantee the least resistance on campus. Then, total recovery (only the pants, Mr. Thomson, not the boys). The reflex action of your proportioned stretch pants is second only to the reflex action of that Psych major I've had my eye on. And the fit! Mr. Thomson, please, how did you get them to fit so well? I adore you, Mr. Thomson!

Louis Barnett Heads AFROTC

At change of command ceremonies yesterday in Campbell Stadium, Cadet Louis R. Barnett assumed command of the 14th AFROTC Wing at FSU.

Barnett is a senior working toward a degree in international affairs. He has been chairman of the University Party and a senator in student government as well as a member of the varsity debate team. He is a member of the Arnold Air Society and has been designated to be honored as a Distinguished Military graduate in April.

Cadet Wing Commander during this trimester, Cadet Colonel Louis DeLaverge, will assume new duties in the Cadet Wing administration next trimester.

Composition Published

A composition by Dr. John Boda, associate professor of composition in the school of music, is featured in the December issue of "This Day," monthly magazine of the Concordia Publishing House of St. Louis. The composition was written at the request of Jaroslav Vajda, poet, as a setting for his poem "Leap, Man, for Joy."

In the article about Boda, Vajda, also editor of "This Day," described the composition as a "Christmas Hymn for Contemporary Christians."

An interview with Boda is scheduled to appear as a feature in an early 1965 issue of "This Day."

Boda originally composed a four-part choral arrangement, which the University Singers recently programmed on their Christmas concert, as a setting for the poem. Vajda, however, desired a solo setting and Boda reset the poem to a second melody, which appears in the current issue of "This Day."

Record Released

Miss Claire Luce, who presented a one-woman show at FSU under the sponsorship of the University Artist Series and the Department of Speech last spring, is now in London preparing to play the part of Lady Macbeth in the Royal Shakespeare Company production of Macbeth at Stratford.

The program presented by Miss Luce in Conradi Theater was called "Women of Shakespeare," and was the premiere performance. It was recorded by William Boulez for WFSU-FM and has just been released by Folkways Records.

The record of her performance here has received critical acclaim from St. Petersburg Times and the New York Times. Miss Luce has written from England that she is extremely interested in working with the University Theater at the first opportunity upon her return.

Old Spice - with that crisp, clean masculine aroma!

Thinclads Run In Orange; Fourteen Go

While the Seminole are anxiously awaiting kickoff at the Gator Bowl Jan. 2, the FSU track team and Coach Mike Long have their eyes focused on the invitational Orange Bowl Track Meet Jan 1.

FSU will send 12 to 14 boys to the cinder circle and according to Long are considered strong contenders in many events, especially the 440 and mile relays.

Running in the 440 relay for FSU are Kenny White, Bob Sabie, and the two captains Al Kato and Jerry McDaniel.

McDaniel will also compete in the mile relay along with Boye Ferry, Ross Winter, and John Brogie.

Last year FSU placed second in both these events losing to Florida A & M's team anchored by Olympic star Bob Hayes.

Al Kato will run in the hundred yard dash followed by Jerry Mc-Daniel in the 220 dash with his sole blistering time of 21.2 seconds. In dual competition McDaniel hasn't been beaten in two years. Vaulting over the bamboo pole will be Hull Carr and Don Pharis who holds the school record at 14' 6".

While Charley Fuchs is putting the shot, Bill Neslos and Irv Watson will run the mile and Sidney Gainey and Leslie King will be at the broad jump pit.

The Orange Bowl Track Meet was created last year by the Miami

Track Club. Due to rain and resulting postponement of the meet many contenders departed prematurely and the meet wasn't what many had hoped it would be.

This year, however, the Orange Bowl Committee has taken over the event and with contestants from such schools as Florida, Miami, Tennessee, Texas, Alabama, and Florida A&M it promises to be a real sportsman's spectacle.

FSU Gains Points For Award By Squeezing Past UF Five

FSU racked up another point toward winning the Petersburg Exchange Club Scholarship by squeaking past the University of Florida 51-50 in Wednesday night battle.

The $500 scholarship is presented by the Exchange Club to the school which wins the most intercollegiate competitive sports between FSU and Florida. The Seminoles won four events this season against no losses when the defeated Florida in two cross country meets, football, and basketball.

The two ribals will compete in swimming, baseball, tennis, and golf next year along with the above. FSU has never won the football game either.

The Makala Trophy is also presented by the Exchange Club to the victors of the FSU-Florida game which the Tribe captured for the first time this year. The trophy is a carving of an authentic relic depicting a Seminole Indian fighting a Gator.
